COUNTRY BANKS LASH MONEY BILL

Times Canvass Reveals Almost Unanimous Sentiment Against Reserve Plan.

42 BANKERS GIVE VIEWS

Predict Wholesale Surrender of National Charters if the Measure Goes Through.

DISCOUNT SCHEME NO AID

Verdict the Same Throughout Middle West, Far West, South, and Southwest.

Answers received by THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday to telegrams sent to country banks in the smaller towns of the West, Far West, South, and Southwest, asking their opinions on the Currency bill, disclosed the somewhat surprising fact that sentiment is practically unanimous against it.

The authors of the bill have been asserting that the opposition came from the large financial centres, chiefly in the East, and particularly in New York City, while the banks in those parts of the country that it was proposed to benefit at the expense of Wall Street would support it enthusiastically.

The opposition from the small centres, it develops, is more fundamental than that in the East. One of the chief purposes of the bill is to afford facilities in times of stringency for the banks to take some of their assets in the form of commercial paper to the Federal reserve bank of the district, rediscount it, and receive money in the form of the new notes. The bill specifies the classes of commercial paper that may be used, and limits it in general to notes running not more than forty-five days.

To this provision no objection has been urged by the bankers of the East or of the large Western cities, so far as their own interests are concerned. They have plenty of commercial paper of this kind. Some of them have pointed out that the country banks would have much less paper of the available sort, and now the country bankers come in clamorous protest against any such provision.

Condemn Discount Plan.

Almost with one accord they assert that the rediscount provision—the backbone of the bill—is of no benefit to them, because the bulk of their paper runs from four to eight months, and much of it is not paid upon maturity, but when the farmer has marketed his crops or the stockman has sold his cattle. To come into a system that would be of no service to them, according to their views, and to be compelled at the same time to subscribe 20 per cent. of their capital toward the establishment of the reserve banks, would be paying a heavy price for something without value. Rather than do so many of them say that they would give up their charters and become State banks. They do not say this as a threat either, but on the ground that they could not compete with the present State banks otherwise.

The banks also condemn the requirement, originally in the bill, that they must keep their reserves entirely in their vaults and in the reserve banks, whereas now 60 per cent. may be kept on deposit with other banks in the reserve and central reserve cities, drawing 2 per cent. interest. The portion kept in the reserve banks would draw no interest, and neither would that in their vaults. This provision, however, was altered on Wednesday, when the four bankers who went to Washington conferred with President Wilson and the other sponsors for the bill. It now authorizes them to keep one-third of their reserves in their correspondent banks, if the Federal Reserve Board lends its sanction.

Few of the country bankers see enough advantage in the bill to go more deeply into it, but those that do mention the feature of political control object to it seriously.

In sending out the telegrams THE TIMES purposely avoided the Eastern States and thoroughly covered the other parts of the country, including only the smaller places. The banks canvassed range in capital from $50,000 up, but few are large institutions. The answers come from eleven States in the Middle West, nine States in the South and Southwest, and five States in the Far West. They number in all forty-two answers from twenty-five States.

Strong Political Factor.

The "country banks," so called, can wield vast political power, for they represent about half the national banking power of the United States. The official classification of "country banks" means all those outside of the reserve and central reserve cities. The last available report of the Controller of the Currency shows that they numbered 7,072, as against 368 in the reserve cities. Their net deposits were $3,651,848,139, against $3,567,179,620 in the reserve cities. Their cash on hand was $261,998,032, as against $626,285,708 in the reserve cities, where, under the present law, the country banks keep part of their reserves. Their outstanding circulation was $478,115,361, as against $240,861,322 in the reserve cities.

Light is also thrown on the protest of the country banks against putting 20 per cent. of their capital into the Reserve Banks, where it is restricted to 5 per cent. interest, by the fact shown in the Controller's report that the average earnings of the banks on their loans and investments is 6.87 per cent. in the Southern States, 5.75 in the middle Western States, 8.33 in the Western States, and 6.30 in the Pacific States.

The answers received from the country banks are as follows:

FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

Ohio.

AKRON, Ohio, June 27.—I have a very limited knowledge of the proposed bill. It will be of no benefit to the country banks. The national banks will be heavily handicapped. N. C. STONE, President National City Bank.

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio, June 27.—As we understand it, we do not favor the proposed currency law. The political patronage and taking the control out of the hands of the bankers are objectionable. The rediscount feature may be all right. D. B. KIRK, President New Knox National Bank.

Illinois.

PONTIAC, Ill., June 27.—We have read and pondered the proposed currency law. We regard the law as arbitrary and oppressive. The rediscount facilities are slow and cumbersome and CONVICT JERSEY PASTOR.

Jury Recommends Mercy for the Rev. Willis McRorie.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 27.—After deliberating for three and one-half hours, the jury in the case of the Rev. Willis McRorie, charged with improper relations with Miss Edith Nelson, a member of his choir, found the clergyman guilty this afternoon, but recommended him to the mercy of the court.

Miss Alice Nelson, a twin sister of Miss Edith Nelson, was called as a witness to-day in an effort to offset the testimony of Dr. William S. Bullman of 2,147 Sixth Avenue, New York. Dr. Bullman was sure it was Miss Edith Nelson who had visited his office, and he picked her out when the twin sisters were brought before him in court. Mrs. Nelson, mother of the two girls, testified that although she made the complaint against the clergyman in November, she had been confused at the time and did not know what she was signing.

McRorie testified in the afternoon. He denied that he was with Miss Nelson on Nov. 19, and retracted a confession he signed in Plainfield in which he admitted that he was with the girl on that day. He explained that he was "completely crushed and overwhelmed" when he signed the confession, and did not realize what he was signing or saying. He admitted that he put money in letters he sent to Miss Nelson, saying he had given her small sums of money on her birthdays. He testified that he had sent money to other members of his congregation, but refused to tell their names.

Moses Boaz, foreman of the jury, was overcome by heat while in the juryroom, and it was Juror No. 3, Percy Faulkner, who announced the verdict to the court. MacRorie will be arraigned for sentence on July 11. The maximum sentence for his offense is six months in the county jail and a fine of $50.

WILSON STAYS AT HIS POST.

Changes Mind About Accompanying Family for Week-End to Cornish.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A couple of hours before the train on which he was to leave for Cornish, N. H., for the week end was to depart, President Wilson changed his mind about quitting the Capital, and Mrs. Wilson and her daughters went without him. The President said that there were no matters of pressing importance to cause him to remain here, but there were several that might need attending to, and he thought it better to stay. He hoped to get away next week, he said, and be with his family at Cornish over the Fourth of July.

The prospect of further conferences in regard to the Administration Currency bill was one reason that caused the President to remain in Washington, as well as the fact that the fiscal year of the Government ends on Monday, and that many matters having to do with appropriations required the President's attention.

WILLS ESTATE TO PRINCETON

Property of Dr. Hartley After Trusts Expire to Go to University.

Under the will of Dr. Frank Hartley, a noted surgeon, who died on June 19 at his home, 61 West Forty-ninth Street, Princeton University, of which he was a graduate, becomes his residuary legatee. The will was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, and in the petition accompanying it the estate was estimated to be worth "more than $100,000 in personalty." In the will there were cash legacies of $50,000. The rest of the property was left in life trusts which on their termination were to go to Princeton to form the "Hartley Fund." The income from this fund is to be used to establish free scholarships for needy students.

The Society of the New York Hospital and Princeton University each receive a cash legacy of $5,000, and Bowdoin College, from which Dr. Hartley's father graduated, a legacy of $15,000 to found a free scholarship. The income for life from a trust fund of $10,000 goes to Marita Hartley, Dr. Hartley's half-neice, and an equal sum to Frank Hartley to provide for his education until he reaches the age of 22 years, when the principal falls into the residuary estate.

After bequeathing $4,000 in legacies to friends and distant relations, Dr. Hartley directed that his wife, Mrs. Emma Allyne Hartley, should receive $20,000 outright and a life interest in the residue of the estate, which upon her death becomes the absolute property of Princeton University.

THIEF CHASE ON ELEVATED.

Five Escape on Train and Sixth Runs Up the Track.

Benjamin Aranoff of 580 East 140th Street, with Samuel Elsow, whose address is not known, were crossing the Willis Avenue Bridge into the Bronx late last night when six young men stopped them, one pointing a revolver at them. A gold chain was pulled from Aranoff's pocket, minus the watch, and the six youths took to their heels. They made their way toward the 133d Street station of the Third Avenue elevated, and five of them boarded a train before the pursuit caught up with them. The sixth saw he was unable to make the train and started north along the elevated tracks, which run there at an elevation of about fifteen feet through a private right of way in the middle of the block.

Several citizens had taken up the chase, and they followed him along the tracks. He climbed down at 135th Street, directly into the arms of Detective Wickman of the Alexander Avenue Station, whither he was taken, and where he gave his name as Thomas Stio of 245 East 113th Street. Aranoff's chain was found at the foot of the ticket box on the elevated station, and the ticket chopper said that one of the gang had dropped into the box an Ingersoll watch supposed to have belonged to Elsow. It could not be recovered until the boxes are opened to-day.

BIG COAL STRIKE ORDERED.

Mine Workers, Negotiations Failing, Call It for Tuesday.

CHARLESTON, West Va., June 27.—Negotiations looking to a settlement of the proposed strike of Tuesday next in the New River coal field, where 15,000 miners are employed, were called off to-night. A call for a general strike was mailed throughout the field by the officials of the United Mine Workers of America.

Conferences had been under way to prevent the strike for the last three days. The miners, officials and coal operators, with Gov. Hatfield as mediator, failed to reach a solution of the trouble. Attempts, it was said, would be made to-morrow to renew negotiations.

Conditions on Cabin Creek, where 1,000 miners again are striking, were quiet to-night. Preparations are being perfected for holding a mass meeting of miners in Eskdale on Sunday.

CONNOLLY ATTACKED IN ALIENATION SUIT

Borough President of Queens Blames "Cassidy Gang" for $50,000 Halleran Action.

HIS SISTER-IN-LAW INVOLVED

District Attorney Smith Denounced in Court for Sounding Witnesses —Complaint to Governor.

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens served notice of voluntary acceptance last night of the issue in a suit brought against him by his brother-in-law, Aloysius G. Halleran, demanding $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affections of his wife, Sarah G. Halleran. The plaintiff is a brother of Tax Commissioner John J. Halleran. President Connolly and Aloysius G. Halleran married sisters, Helen and Sarah Connell, daughters of James H. Connell of Flushing. President Connolly issued a statement in his apartments in the Hotel Plaza, in which this appears:

"Halleran shows his true character by lending himself to a political conspiracy which uses as a weapon of attack upon me the defilement of the character of his wife, my sister-in-law, who is a pure, virtuous, and religious woman. While I deplore that this attack should be made upon me through this good and pure woman, I welcome it as disclosing to the people of this city the degradation of my political enemies and the friends of District Attorney Matthew J. Smith of Queens, who have inspired Halleran to do their scurrilous work. The desperation of the Cassidy gang in this enterprise is forcibly shown."

President Connolly is authority for the statement that papers in a suit for divorce have been prepared by counsel for Mrs. Halleran, who is living with the Connollys at their Summer home at Babylon, L. I. Efforts to serve the papers on Halleran have been unsuccessful thus far. Mrs. Connolly's confidence in her husband is expressed in the following statement, which she made last night:

"I am, naturally, very much distressed by the publicity and notoriety that has been occasioned by the malicious stories and charges made against my sister and my husband by my sister's husband, inspired by Mr. Connolly's political enemies, who have, since he took office, been endeavoring to get something in his official life that would discredit him. The rumors preceding these charges, while galling, he has ignored in a dignified manner.

"The charges made are known to me to be false and untrue and such only as a person of the unfortunate reputation of my sister's husband would make. My sister is now living with us at my home in Babylon. She and my husband have my utmost confidence. She will remain with us as long as she desires."

Political Sensations Expected.

Persistent reports that sensational developments would arise in the fight for political supremacy in Queens have been current for some time. Joseph Cassidy, the old leader, was known to be active in opposing President Connolly. District Attorney Smith is a henchman of Cassidy. President Connolly charges that his brother-in-law was won over to the Cassidy camp. When rumors of the proposed alienation suit came to President Connolly's ears, he canvassed the list of persons whom he might call as witnesses. Among them were Samuel Brackner, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boyland, and Elmore Reilly, all of Flushing.

These four were surprised to receive subpoenas calling for their appearance yesterday in John Doe proceedings at the County Court House. Friends of President Connolly learned of this, and summoned Eugene N. L. Young, a lawyer, to make an investigation. At the conclusion of the proceedings, which took place in District Attorney Smith's private office, Mr. Young appeared before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court, Long Island City, and charged Smith with making an unlawful and illegal use of his office as public prosecutor with the help of Grand Jury subpoenas while the Grand Jury was not in session.

Mr. Young asked the Court to vacate the subpoena served on Brackner, and read from an affidavit made by Brackner that when the latter was being questioned in the District Attorney's private office concerning what took place seven months ago between President Connolly, his brother, Walter, and Aloysius G. Halleran, in a Flushing Hotel, Halleran's counsel, Robert Price Bell, was present.

District Attorney Smith did not appear in court personally, but was represented by his first assistant, John J. Hetherington, who said that the subpoenas were issued the day before, when the Grand Jury was in session. The Grand Jury adjourned until Monday, but the District Attorney believed the session would be continued yesterday. Mr. Hetherington said that when the four witnesses appeared yesterday the District Attorney took advantage of their presence in the Court House to invite them into his office for an inquiry.

"Get that into the record," Mr. Young exclaimed, "that this is a personal investigation by the District Attorney."

"By a personal investigation I mean that this is a matter which has come to the District Attorney's personal knowledge," Mr. Hetherington said.

"The District Attorney has no right to use a Grand Jury subpoena to bring a witness to his office," Judge Humphrey said. "He may invite a witness to the Court House, but he has no right to use a subpoena. It is a misuse of the office. I don't think the District Attorney would or should use his powers to compel witnesses to appear before him."

The court then directed that an order be drawn vacating the Brackner subpoena.

"What about the other witnesses?" Mr. Young asked.

"If they will appear before me I will vacate their subpoenas also," Judge Humphrey replied.

Connolly Appeals to Governor.

President Connolly dispatched a representative to Albany to ask Gov. Sulzer to order the Attorney General to send an impartial representative of the State to Queens County to take charge of the office of District Attorney. President Connolly's statement reads in part:

"District Attorney Smith was nominated for his present office by Joe Cassidy and his henchmen. When my selection as Borough President was pending, and before Smith's election, Smith met me on the street and said: 'If you were to take the job of Borough President Cassidy will have the District Attorney and would send you to jail in six months.' Cassidy also informed some of my friends that he would, through his District Attorney, have me indicted in no time.

"Subsequently, Smith was nominated and tried to convince me that he would not carry out the threat Cassidy made, if elected. Nevertheless, since that time throughout my administration this gang has in vain tried to find some excuse for attack on my public life. Failing in this, they have picked out the husband of my wife's sister as the medium of attack on me. Mrs. Halleran has begun an action for divorce against Halleran upon statutory grounds, and

LAMAR WILL TESTIFY ABOUT U.P. MESSAGES

Meets Lauterbach Here and Decides to Ask for a Special Hearing.

David Lamar, the Wall Street plunger, whose name was prominently mentioned in the testimony Thursday before the Senate lobby investigating committee concerning the Union Pacific Railroad conspiracy, returned hurriedly to the city last evening from a short stay at Lanesboro, near Pittsfield, where he has had a Summer home for four years.

At first he would make no answer to intimations made at that hearing that he might be involved in the affair. Nor would he give any suggestion as to the identity of the mysterious talker over the telephone who, as an alleged Congressman, pretended to have great influence with political leaders in Washington and urged persistently the employment of Edward Lauterbach as an attorney by the railroad company.

Later in the evening, however, he went to the home of Mr. Lauterbach at 301 West 106th Street and met the attorney, who had arrived from Washington and had reached his house a few minutes ahead of his visitor. They were in conference several hours.

Then Mr. Lauterbach stated that he and Lamar had talked over the whole situation, and that Lamar had asked for a special hearing so that he might appear immediately before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee. His request will be sent to the committee at once.

It was explained that in asking for a special hearing Lamar was willing to waive the service of a subpoena, and was ready to testify in his own defense at any time that the committee should find it convenient to hear him.

Lamar, who was evidently nervous over the developments of the investigation, alighted from the train at 125th Street and went to his apartments at 362 Riverside Avenue, where he shut himself in and refused to see any one or talk over the telephone. Later, when a reporter for THE TIMES saw him, he said he had no comment to make on the subject.

He was referred to the question by Senator Nelson concerning the telephone talker, who represented himself as Congressman Palmer, the Senator asking Edward Lauterbach: "Don't you suppose the man at the telephone might have been Mr. Lamar?"

The reporter asked Lamar:

"Did you ever call Lewis Cass Ledyard over the telephone and represent yourself to him as Congressman Palmer of Pennsylvania?"

"I have nothing to say," replied Lamar.

"Did you ever telephone to Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Union Pacific Railroad, and represent yourself as Congressman Daniel F. Riordan of New York?"

"I make the same answer to that; I have nothing to say."

Lamar smiled at the summary of the testimony given by Edward Lauterbach, to the effect that his friendship for Lamar had caused him to lose his former cordial relations with the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., but he declined to comment on any feature of the testimony.

POINT TO ONE U. P. PLOTTER.

Shorthand Notes and Telephone Records That Ledyard Had Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A big sensation is promised when Lewis Cass Ledyard, counsel for J. P. Morgan & Co., appears before the Senate Lobby Committee to testify concerning the activities of some person or persons in New York, who called up Mr. Ledyard and other prominent men connected with financial interests, and represented himself or themselves to be Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania and Representative Daniel J. Riordan of New York.

Mr. Ledyard is expected to appear before the committee when it reassembles next week, and it became known here to-day that he had in his possession stenographic notes of the telephone conversations between himself and the person or persons pretending to be Representatives Palmer and Riordan. He took the precaution, according to good information, to have a stenographer stationed at an extension of the telephone when Mr. Ledyard was talking to the impersonator of the Congressmen.

It is said also that through the New York Telephone Company Mr. Ledyard had been able to trace all these calls, and that these records will point to one person as being engaged in the attempt to win for Mr. Lauterbach employment in connection with pending problems here involving big concerns, especially the Union Pacific in its dissolution plan.

It is expected that Paul Cravath also will be one of the early witnesses heard by the committee. Mr. Cravath also, according to Judge Lovett's testimony, was called up by the unknown person on the telephone.

Chairman Overman said to-day that David Lamar also would be summoned to tell what he knows about the mysterious telephone messages to Ledyard and others.

"We will go to the bottom of this thing," said Senator Overman.

It is stated that Speaker Clark, Representative Underwood, Representative Henry of Texas, and others, whose names were used by the persons in conversation with financial men, are urging the committee to push its inquiry.

According to one report current here to-day, Lamar will be subpoenaed for the next hearing, which will be held next week after the Senate Democratic caucus has finished with the Tariff bill.

The committee was careful at the outset of Mr. Lauterbach's testimony to make it clear by his own declarations that he had appeared voluntarily and had not been summoned to Washington by the committee. In the examination that followed Mr. Lauterbach's statement no effort was made by the committee to pin him down to more detailed explanation of some of the things to which he had testified. Among these matters were his latest talk with Lamar, which took place on a Hudson River boat on June 19.

INTERESTS' UNLUCKY DAY.

Corporations Hit by Pennsylvania Courts and Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—This was "Black Friday" for Pennsylvania corporations. The first shock came early this morning, when the Legislature passed the public utilities measure, one of Gov. Tener's pet reforms.

Later the Supreme Court declared constitutional the "full crew" law, which will cost the Pennsylvania Railroad alone $500,000 a year.

The Supreme Court also decided that the City of Philadelphia could not condemn land along the Parkway and then resell it. The city sought to acquire property valued at $1,000,000 and transfer it to the Bell Telephone Company.

INDUCES HEART BEAT IN DEAD SUBJECT

Paris Doctor Restores Pulsations for 35 Minutes After Instant Killing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—Dr. Bouchon, following in the footsteps of Dr. Carrel, recently succeeded in reviving the normal action of the heart ten minutes after death. In a paper which he will read at the next meeting of the Academy of Medicine Dr. Bouchon says:

"After a motor car accident I was called in, and immediately perceived that the victim had been killed instantaneously. Despite my assurance that there was no doubt as to his death, the friends of the victim insisted that a desperate attempt should be made at resuscitation, and about ten minutes after the last breath I decided upon a surgical operation, having diagnosed traumatic rupture of the heart.

"I opened the thorax, and in fifty seconds laid bare the heart. I immediately found about a pint of blood in the pericardium and a heart wound about two and one-half inches long on the inner surface of the left ventricle. After suture I proceeded to apply my method of reviving heart action.

"After filling all the cardiac cavities with a special organic liquid I made a rapid tracheotomy and introduced oxygen by the tracheal tube, while my assistant performed artificial respiration tractions. I then began alternate rhythmic auricular massage of the heart, and at the end of about a minute I clearly perceived that the heart had resumed its physiological tonicity, and, to my great surprise, it continued to contract by its own true action. Radical pulsation then became perceptible, and after I had closed the thoracic flap the heart continued to contract for thirty-five minutes. At the end of this time the contractions suddenly ceased and all subsequent efforts to re-establish them were in vain.

"The autopsy was very significant, showing the tearing away of the lower cardiac nerves, the bursting of the right kidney and liver, and a part of the intestine, proving the case an exceptionally violent one of traumatism. Had there been merely cardiac traumatism by a dagger thrust, followed by instantaneous death, I think my method of revival, applied under favorable conditions, might possibly have given an appreciable prolongation of life; but this is merely hypothesis.

"I consider that this case has given valuable information from a scientific standpoint, as it was not merely a desperate one, but a confirmed case of death."

NEW MILITANT TO JAIL.

Mrs. Mackworth, a Recruit, Put Explosives in the Mail.

NEWPORT, England, June 27.—Mrs. Margaret Haigh Mackworth, daughter of the "coal king," David A. Thomas, was brought before the Magistrate here to-day and remanded for fourteen days on a charge of placing explosives in a mail box. Mrs. Mackworth is Secretary of the Newport Branch of the Women's Social and Political Union, but hitherto had not been a militant. Her mother, Mrs. Thomas, is also prominent in the suffrage movement. Her husband, Capt. Humphrey Mackworth of the Royal Monmouthshire Engineers, is the eldest son of Sir Arthur Mackworth and heir to the baronetcy.

Gertrude Shaw, who hurled a brick through a window of the Scotland Yard Police Headquarters last Saturday, and subsequently was sent to prison for a term of three weeks and immediately went on a hunger strike, was released on license to-day. At the time of her arrest Miss Shaw declared that she threw the missile as a protest against the treatment of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and other suffragette prisoners.

LIBERAL MAJORITY CUT.

Drift to the Unionist Party Again Shown in Bye-Election.

LONDON, June 27.—The flow of the election tide in the direction of the Unionists, which was exhibited at Altringham on May 29, when the Unionist candidate defeated his Liberal opponent in a bye-election by a largely increased majority, was again shown to-day in a bye-election at Leicester, made necessary the retirement of the holder of the seat in the House of Commons, Eliot Crawshay-Williams, who had become involved as a corespondent in a divorce suit.

The Liberals retained the seat, but by a greatly reduced majority, the vote being Hewart, Liberal, 10,863; Wilshere, Unionist, 9,279, and Hartley, Socialist, 2,580.

In the general election in December, 1910, Crawshay-Williams's majority was 5,691 over the Unionist candidate.

NEW HAVEN TRAIN IN CRASH.

Boston Passengers Jolted as Engine Smashes Freight Cars.

WELLFLEET, Mass., June 27.—Running into an open switch at the Wellfleet station of the New Haven Road, the "afternoon Cape train" from Boston crashed into a freight on a siding to-night.

No one was hurt dangerously. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train jumped and escaped injury. Their engine was overturned and several cars of the freight train were demolished. The passengers were jolted severely.

M'REYNOLDS AGAIN UNDER CRITICISM

Advised Author of Commerce Court Bill to Heed Railroad Counsel's Advice.

HOUSE GETS THE LETTERS

Sims Says He Accepted Hines's Amendments Because of McReynolds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—A demand for the production of correspondence between Representative Sims of Tennessee, Attorney General McReynolds, and Walker D. Hines, general counsel and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company, relative to the framing of the Sims bill for the abolition of the United States Court of Commerce, was quickly followed up to-day by Mr. Sims laying the letters before the House of Representatives for its scrutiny.

The demand for this correspondence was made by John B. Daish, a Washington attorney, who represents shippers opposed to the abolition of the Commerce Court.

The correspondence shows that Mr. Hines was brought into written consultation with Mr. Sims, who has charge of the Democratic bill for the abolition of the Commerce Court, at the suggestion of and through a letter written by Attorney General McReynolds.

ence shows that Mr. Hines was brought into written consultation with Mr. Sims, who has charge of the Democratic bill for the abolition of the Commerce Court, at the suggestion of and through a letter written by Attorney General McReynolds.

"Will the gentlemen tell me who brought this Mr. Hines or the Attorney General into this thing?" demanded Representative Hardwick of Georgia, asked.

"All I know about Mr. Hines being in it," replied Mr. Sims, "was from the letter I received from the Attorney General commending his suggestions to my consideration.

"I never heard of Mr. Hines, of course, in connection with the Commerce Court legislation. I do not even know whether Mr. Hines is in favor of the Commerce Court or not. I was interested in the matter of transferring the jurisdiction of the Commerce Court to the district courts, and as the Attorney General had sent the letter to me I thought it was my duty, and nothing but proper respect to the Attorney General to submit the bill to Mr. Hines for his suggestions. And I did so as stated in his letters. I see nothing wrong in my connection with the matter from beginning to end."

Mr. Sims explained that at the suggestion of Chairman Adamson of the House Interstate Commerce Commission he (Mr. Sims) had taken a copy of the [illegible] Commerce Court to Attorney General McReynolds. Mr. Sims asked Mr. McReynolds for any suggestions he cared to make, stating to him plainly that the question whether the court was to be abolished or not was not to be considered by him, because that had been settled by the Democratic leaders.

Under date of May 6, 1913, Mr. Sims received a letter from Attorney General McReynolds saying the latter had considered the bill with a view to giving Mr. Sims some aid about the jurisdiction of the courts to be affected by the abolition of the court. Mr. McReynolds, this letter shows, suggested eight changes in the bill.

Then, on May 22 last, Representative Sims received the following letter from the Attorney General:

> My Dear Mr. Congressman: I am sending you herewith a copy of a letter from my friend, Mr. Hines, who for a long time has been connected with the Inter-state commerce litigation as a representative of the railroads. What he says is always worthy of very serious consideration, and I commend his suggestions to you.
>
> Attorney General.

The letter of Mr. Hines, which Mr. McReynolds inclosed in this letter, was written on the office paper of Cravath & Henderson of New York, dated May 21, 1913, and signed by Mr. Hines. In this letter Mr. Hines refers to a letter he had written on May 7 to Mr. McReynolds relative to the Sims bill, which measure Mr. Hines said he presumed was intended to be superseded by a subsequent bill on the Commerce Court introduced by Mr. Sims, "and to my conversation with you yesterday." After commenting on various phases of the matter Mr. Hines closed this letter thus:

"I believe it very important to the Government and desirable to the carriers that there should be an express provision in the Sims bill that all suits covered there by the process of District Court shall run, be served, and returnable anywhere in the United States."

Mr. Sims said that at the suggestion of Mr. McReynolds he did submit the new draft of the Commerce Court bill to Mr. Hines for his suggestions and received from Mr. Hines a letter under date of June 2, in which Mr. Hines said he felt greatly complimented that Mr. Sims had written to him and would do his best to comply with Mr. Sims's request for suggestions. Mr. Hines suggested various changes in the bill.

The Sims bill as submitted to Mr. Hines required the application for a temporary restraining order to be made to three Judges and on five days' notice. This Mr. Hines thought would wipe out entirely "the plan of the Commerce Court act, which contemplates that an application for a temporary restraining order may be made to a single Judge of a court and on three days' notice."

"Indeed," wrote Mr. Hines in this letter, "it will be much more important in the District Court to have an opportunity for a temporary restraining order to a single Judge than it has been in the Commerce Court. * * * This may be a matter of most serious importance, and it may become utterly impracticable within the time before an order is to take effect to get the Judges assembled who are qualified to pass upon the application for the restraining order."

Mr. Sims wrote to Mr. Hines acknowledging the receipt of his suggestions and inclosed to him a series of proposed amendments along the line of Mr. Hines's suggestions in three particulars, but Mr. Sims stated that he could not agree to one of Mr. Hines's proposals, and that was that a petition for a preliminary restraining order should be submitted to a single Judge, because there seemed to be great opposition by those who were in favor of continuing the court to having petitioners who bring suits to enjoin orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission submit their applications to particular Judges that the petitioners might select.

Mr. Sims then received a long letter, under date of June 9, from Mr. Hines, on paper of the law office of Cravath & Henderson, giving his views as to the amendments proposed by Mr. Sims and making further suggestions.

After receiving these letters and suggestions from Mr. Hines, Mr. Sims took them and the three amendments proposed by Mr. Sims, which had been submitted by him to Mr. Hines, to the Solicitor of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Sims asserted this Solicitor said the three amendments proposed could not possibly hurt the bill, and believed they would benefit it. Thereupon Mr. Sims advocated putting these three amendments into the bill.

CANAL GATES FIRM.

Water at Sea Level at Gatun and Full Pressure On.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, June 27.—The Atlantic waters which have been allowed to run slowly against the lower gates at Gatun reached sea level this afternoon. The large gates are being put to the actual test of full pressure for the first time.

The engineers are watching the rise of the water with interest, and they report that the gates are watertight. The water is at the 50-foot stage.

SIX MILLIONS TO $5 CLERK.

Argentine Uncle Planned Huge Surprise to Italian Nephew.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, June 27.—Vittorio Mariani, a ticket office clerk at the Tivoli railway station, in the suburbs of Rome, at a salary of $5 a week, has just come in for a windfall of $6,400,000.

Forty years ago an uncle, Signor Allesandro Corrandoini, who was Italian Consul at Alexandria was obliged to fly for his life during the anti-Christian persecution. He proceeded to Buenos Aires, where, being of a frugal turn of mind and eschewing matrimony, he set his uncommon wits to the amassing of a fortune of 32,000,000 lire. He continued to live upon the interest till his death.

When his will was opened it came out that he had all along intended to leave his estate to his nephew, who had been kept in utter ignorance of the huge good luck awaiting him.

STERN HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Dry Goods Man's $10,000 Foreign Car Backfires with Him in It.

ROSLYN, L. I., June 27.—Benjamin Stern, a member of a New York dry goods firm, had a narrow escape from injury to-night when his $10,000 foreign made automobile was damaged by fire on the North Hempstead Turnpike. Mr. Stern and his chauffeur were on their way from New York to his home when the machine backfired and caught fire.

Both men jumped out of the machine and threw dirt and sand on the fire, but the machine was badly damaged before the fire was extinguished.

This is the second foreign-made machine which Mr. Stern has had bad luck with. Three months ago he lost a $10,000 automobile by theft and no trace ever was obtained of car or thieves.

FIRST SENATOR ELECTION.

Maryland on Nov. 4 Will Choose Rayner's Successor.

BALTIMORE, June 27.—Gov. Goldsborough announced to-day that he would issue a writ naming Nov. 4, the regular election day, as the date for electing the United States Senator from Maryland to succeed the late Isidor Rayner. This will be the first election under the Seventeenth Amendment to the Constitution.

William P. Jackson, Republican, was appointed to the position by Gov. Goldsborough pending the election of a successor by the Legislature, but with the adoption of the Constitutional amendment providing for the popular election of United States Senators the Governor says he feels it his duty to take the first reasonable opportunity to substitute the choice of the people for his own personal selection.

DRUMMERS IN WAR ON TIPS.

Also Begin Nation-Wide Fight for Better Hotel Service.

COLUMBUS, June 27.—The United Commercial Travelers of America is lining up its forces for a fight for better hotel regulations, the elimination of tips, and the exemption of commercial travelers from jury duty. The Supreme Council, in annual session here, has indorsed these measures, and they will be presented to the Legislatures of nearly all the States.

The council also approved the bill introduced by Representative Wallin of New York providing for a uniform and interchangeable mileage book, acceptable for passage on all railroads.

SULZER'S GETTYSBURG TRIP

Will Be One of the Speakers on Battlefield Thursday.

ALBANY, June 27.—The Governor and Mrs. Sulzer plan to leave Albany the evening of July 1 to attend the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg. Gov. Sulzer is to be one of the speakers on July 3, Governors' Day and New York Day. The Governor expects to return to Albany on July 5, but is uncertain whether he will spend the Fourth in New York City.

The Governor will be accompanied to the Gettysburg celebration by his military staff.

AUTO RUNS INTO TRUCK.

Keene, Follansbee, and Brisbane Shaken, but Not Hurt.

An automobile carrying Foxhall Keene, who was injured recently while training to participate in the international polo games, John G. Follansbee, and Arthur Brisbane crashed into the back of an automobile mail truck at Broadway and Forty-second Street yesterday morning. The three men were somewhat shaken, but not injured.

Neither the automobile nor the truck was damaged. The truck was operated by John Bappi of 2,306 First Avenue. Patrolman Flannery of the West Thirty-seventh Street Police Station said that the automobile was going east in Forty-second Street and was attempting to cross Broadway when it collided with the truck, south bound.

MAYOR OFFERS SKIN PATCH.

Mr. Fuhrmann and Two Women Will Aid Buffalo Fire Victims.

BUFFALO, June 27.—Mayor Louis P. Fuhrmann and two women, whose names were not disclosed, joined to-day the score of persons offering to supply skin to the victims of the Husted Milling Company's fire of last Tuesday, following an explosion of dust in a grain elevator. The Mayor was as eager as the women to keep his offer secret, but a hospital physician made it public. Questioned about it, Mr. Fuhrmann admitted that he had volunteered to surrender part of his skin, but he would not say anything further. He visited the wrecked grain elevator this afternoon and watched the search for bodies.

The surgeons need 10,000 square inches of skin for their patients.

E. M. Husted, President of the company, headed the 150 searchers in the ruins. It was believed at least nine bodies still were buried under the wreckage. Twelve persons were missing.

The death list to-night stood at fourteen.

5 DEAD, MANY HURT, IN SHIP EXPLOSION

Oil Tank Blows Up on the Mohawk as She Lies at Anchor in the Bay.

CANDLE SETS GAS ABLAZE

Bare Flame Carried by Machinist's Helper Ignites Fumes in the Hold of Standard Oil Vessel.

Owing it is believed to the carelessness of a machinist's helper, a feed tank containing 200 tons of fuel oil on the steel tank steamship Mohawk, belonging to the Standard Oil Company, exploded at 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon while the ship was at anchor off Tompkinsville. So far as could be ascertained last night, five men were killed and six others injured. Twelve members of the crew were unaccounted for at 11 o'clock last night, but they were believed to have escaped on tugs that came to the aid of the Mohawk or by swimming ashore. Two bodies were seen floating in the hold while the fireboats were pouring streams of water into the wreck after the explosion. Here are the lists of those known to have been killed and injured:

The Dead.

DONAHUE, EDWARD, a steamfitter of Brooklyn.

DONOVAN, JOHN, a machinist's helper of Brooklyn.

Two unidentified sailors, members of the Mohawk's crew.

The fourth engineer of the steamer, a German, whose name could not be ascertained.

The Injured.

ELINGREN, GUSTAVE, steamfitter, address unknown; taken to Smith Infirmary; will probably die from burns.

GONGRE, JOHN, an oiler of 185 East Second Street, Manhattan; burned about face and head; treated and taken home.

HAYNE, PERCY, a machinist, address ununknown; stayed on ship after burns were treated.

LEPIE, PHILIP, a sailor, address unknown; taken to Smith Infirmary suffering from burns.

LUCIE, PHILIP, an oiler, address unknown; taken to the Smith Infirmary suffering from burns.

WEISSMANN, HERMAN, a machinst, address unknown; injured internally; taken to Smith Infirmary; will die.

At the time of the explosion fifty men, including the crew and twenty machinists, were overhauling the machinery preparatory to the Mohawk's departure for Tuxpan, Mexico, to-day. There was no cargo of oil in the hold, as the ship had arrived from Tuxpan on Wednesday, and the oil had all been pumped out. Survivors asserted that the explosion occurred in the afterhold and they thought that a helper, who went below to look for a lost washer with a lighted candle, ignited the gas in the hold.

Some 200 tons of oil were stored in a feed tank at the after part of the hatch and caught fire after the explosion, sending a column of flame 20 feet into the air. The explosion was terrific, and it was heard on the Jersey shore. The engineroom hatch, with its heavy iron combings and beams weighing several tons, was blown up into the air and fell into the water some distance away from the ship.

Soon after the explosion, which was thought to have torn a hole in the hull of the Mohawk below the waterline, she began to settle in the stern. Wrecking tugs of the Standard Oil Company and the fireboat David Boody raced to St. George under full steam as soon as they learned of the accident. In less than fifteen minutes seventeen tugs and the fireboat were pouring streams of water into the afterhold and over the wrecked stern of the ship from which dense clouds of suffocating smoke poured. Many members of the crew of the burning ship jumped overboard into the bay to escape the flames and they were rescued by the tugboats. The Mohawk's lifeboat was thrown a hundred yards by the force of the explosion, and twelve men, who were standing on the forward deck of the ship, were blown into the water, but were rescued unhurt.

Others clung to the rails on the starboard side of the foc'sale deck too dazed by the shock of the explosion to help themselves. They were dragged away by the crew of the first tugboat which ventured to go alongside the burning steamer. When the streams of water from the fireboat and wrecking tugs began to have effect on the fire Policeman John Conroy of the Tottenville Precinct, who was near the Mohawk at the time of the explosion, rowed to the vessel and managed to climb on board forward, where he found Weissmann lying against the side of the vessel where he had been blown by the explosion. He was unconscious and apparently dying.

Conroy picked him up, and with the aid of others carried him to the upper deck and then lowered him into a tug that came alongside.

All of the injured men and at least two of the men who are missing were employed by the Atlantic Basin Iron Works of Brooklyn and were in charge of Joseph Donohue as foreman.

At 9 o'clock last night the fire was under control and the crew returned to the forward part of the ship. The stern was completely under water, and it was thought that the engine room and its contents were destroyed by the fire. Four wrecking tugs began to pump the water out of the hold last night, and it was believed that the wreck could be towed into dry dock for repairs some time to-day. The fire was seen by the passengers on the Coney Island steamboats and yachts and motor boats circled around the ship while she was burning.

The Mohawk is a vessel of 6,000 gross tonnage and flies the German flag. She is in charge of Capt. H. Makeke, and J. Farkenbush is first officer.

POISONED AT A WEDDING.

Fifty Guests Made Ill by Paris Green on Lettuce.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 27.—Fifty of the guests at the wedding breakfast which followed the marriage of Miss Delia McDonnell of 517 South Third Street to Harry Delsey of Hammonton, this morning, were poisoned by paris green. Eight of the sufferers, including the bridegroom, were in a serious condition last night, but it was said that all would recover. Miss Mamie Cassidy, a friend of the bride, who had been ill with diphtheria and was under quarantine at home, was also taken ill. It was learned that some of the dainties from the breakfast table had been sent to her. The bride, who ate sparingly and didn't touch any of the chicken salad served at the feast, was the only person to escape.

An investigation showed that the poison was contained in the chicken salad and a farmer who sold the lettuce used in the salad admitted that he had used paris green to spray his lettuce. Those who were reported seriously ill last night were Miss Mary McDonnell, John McDonnell, Frank McDonnell, Miss Charlotte Clancy, Miss May Flannigan, and Miss Gertrude Flannigan.

M'NAB'S TELEGRAM MOVES M'REYNOLDS

Message to The Times Leads the Attorney General to Send Correspondence to House.

BUT INQUIRY WILL BE MADE

Suggestion That Wilson Would Not Have Backed McReynolds Had He Seen McNab's Several Warnings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—All the correspondence and other papers in the possession of Attorney General McReynolds relating to his action in postponing the trials of Caminetti and Diggs, charged with violating the white slave law, and Bruce and Smith, charged with conspiracy to defraud the customs revenues, will be sent to the House to-morrow, according to announcement made this evening by that official, who will not wait for action by the House.

It is believed here that the decision of the Attorney General to send the documents to the House was due to the publication in THE NEW YORK TIMES to-day of the telegraphed statement from former District Attorney McNab at San Francisco, in which he cited letters and telegrams on the Caminetti-Diggs case that had not been mentioned by Mr. McReynolds in the report he made to President Wilson, explaining why the trials had been postponed.

Mr. McReynolds's decision to give all the correspondence on these cases to the House will relieve the Democratic leaders of some embarrassment. A meeting was to have been held to-day of the Committee on the Judiciary to consider the pending resolutions calling for correspondence and providing for an inquiry into the Attorney General's course, but there was no quorum.

It is probable that the transmission of the correspondence to the House will be used by the leaders as an argument that no action is necessary on the resolutions of Representative Kahn directing the Attorney General to furnish the documents. The Republican leaders are not disposed to drop the matter, however, and will line up in favor of the resolution of Representative Himbaugh, Progressive, directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into all the circumstances connected with the postponement of the trials.

The Attorney General declined to comment on his decision to send the correspondence to the House other than to say that he was glad to make public everything in his possession on the San Francisco cases.

Thomas E. Hayden, who has been selected as one of the special Government counsel to prosecute the cases postponed by the Attorney General, but ordered set for trial at an early date by President Wilson, will be appointed District Attorney at San Francisco to succeed Mr. McNab. With him in the trials will be associated Matt L. Sullivan, who has earned a reputation on the Pacific Coast as a prosecutor of grafters. Mr. Sullivan will be employed as special counsel.

The statement of former District Attorney McNab in THE TIMES to-day attracted much attention in Washington. There are many things in it that require explanation from the Department of Justice, according to opinions expressed by some of those interested, and it is expected that the Republican leaders will use the statement as a basis for pressing for further information.

One of the things said to-day after Mr. McNab's statement had been read was that had the President known the contents of McNab's letter of June 3, or of the existence of the McClatchy letter of May 20 to Secretary Lane, which was delivered to McReynolds, or of the McNab letter to McReynolds on May 28, he could not have accused McNab of "inexcusable haste" in resigning. Now that the facts are coming to light there are rumors that the President will insist on a full knowledge of the correspondence.

The Attorney General was closeted with the President more than an hour late this afternoon, and when he came out he said that he had caled to talk about the Union Pacific merger. At the White House it was stated that the President had not taken up the statement made by McNab.

COLUMBIAN CASE COLLAPSES

Yates and Sidwell Acquitted—Orff and Atkin Partly Freed.

The Government case against two of the defendants, Eugene B. Yates and Lee Sidwell, in the Columbian-Sterling Publishing Company case, collapsed suddenly in the Federal District Court yesterday afternoon, and two of the three counts against the other two defendants, Frank Orff and J. F. B. Atkin, were quashed. Argument will be heard as to the quashing of the remaining counts against Orff and Atkin this morning.

Orff was the President of the Columbian-Sterling Publishing Company and Atkin, a Philadelphia lawyer, was his adviser. Yates and Sidwell were connected with the same company, which had been formed by the merger of the Western Publishing Company with the Columbian Magazine Publishing Company in June, 1911, and after its formation it bought the control of Hampton's Magazine.

The defendants were indicted in November, 1911, and with them J. Braunton Haynes, who, the Post Office authorities declared, was the brains of the combination. He, however, went to Europe just before the indictment was returned and has never come back. The Government was forced, consequently, to place the other defendants on trial three weeks ago. The absence of Haynes hampered it in the presentation of its case, and now the prosecution, which has cost the Federal authorities at least $15,000, appears to have broken down.

Judge Mayer, on motion of the defense, directed the jury yesterday afternoon to acquit Yates. He will hear argument on the other counts against Orff and Atkin this morning.

TICKET FOR FRANCE LETS JOHNSON PASS

Canada Seemingly Can't Deport Convicted Pugilist as an Immigrant.

HE'S CLASSED AS A TOURIST

Negro Had Expert Advice in Chicago—Bryan Has Asked That He Be Held.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, June 27.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist and convicted white slaver, apparently has escaped whatever punishment was reserved for him in the United States, and it is thought that next week will find him on his way to Europe. He showed to representatives of the Department of Immigration to-night a tnrough ticket from Chicago to Havre. The ticket was bought in the American city. It calls for the prize-fighter's transportation from that point through the Dominion and across the Atlantic to the French port. The fact that the purchase was made in Illinois, it is said, has made it impossible to deport the negro from Canada to the United States as an undesirable immigrant. Under the Canadian immigration law he is not an immigrant, but merely is an alien traveling through this country. The violation of the American white slave law, of which he was convicted in Chicago, is not covered by the extradition treaty between Canada and the United States.

Johnson is accompanied by Lucille Cameron Johnson, his white wife. They are booked to sail for Havre in the Allan Line steamer Corinthian next Sunday morning. No chance will be taken by the Dominion authorities of letting Johnson violate the terms of the transportation contract that seemingly protects him so long as he lives up to it. Immigrant agents took up his trail this evening. They will stick to it until he shall have sailed from this port.

Can't Stop Him, Says Judge.

"So long as Johnson keeps on his way nothing can be done with him here," said Judge Choquet, Extradition Commissioner, to-day, "and until he may betray an intention to remain here indefinitely, the local authorities can take no action."

Dominion Uncertain as to Law.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, June 27.—It apparently was decided to-day by the Department of Immigration that Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, could not be deported back to the United States as an undesirable alien, because he had entered Canada, not as an immigrant, but merely as a tourist passing through the Dominion. The Immigration Department has no jurisdiction over travelers, however undesirable they might be as residents, who merely are on their way in Canada from one foreign country to another.

Federal Officials Pessimistic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The State Department and the Department of Justice were active to-day in the effort to have Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, arrested in Montreal as a fugitive from Justice and extradited to the United States. Secretary Bryan sent a request to the Dominion Government through the British Embassy, asking for the negro's arrest and detention with a view to his extradition if he attempted to remain in Canada. Little hope is felt that Johnson will be brought back to this country through that means. The offense of which he was convicted is not extraditable. There is strong probability that he will be permitted to sail for France in the steamer for which he and his white wife have engaged passage.

Can't Catch Him, Chicago Hears.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Jack Johnson, negro prizefighter, under sentence of imprisonment in Leavenworth Prison on a white slave charge, has got away safely, according to Federal officials here, and cannot be caught unless he once more sets foot on United States soil. That information came to Charles F. Dewoody, Superintendent of the Department of Justice, in Chicago, in a dispatch from Washington, following communication with the Canadian Government.

The negro laid his plans carefully and was guided by expert legal opinion. Had he bought railroad transportation to Montreal and merely purposed buying his steamship ticket for Europe at that point, he could have been returned to this city. Johnson, however, bought here a through ticket to Europe, thereby not coming under the jurisdiction of the Canadian authorities any more than a passenger from Chicago to New York over the Grand Trunk would be amenable to such jurisdiction.

Eight-Notch Man Dies in Chair.

EDDYVILLE, Ky., June 27.—General May, whose eyer-ready pistol bore eight notches, was put to death in the electric chair here to-day for the murder of Mrs. Belle Meredith of Clay County. Mrs. Meredith was shot down after May had killed her husband. May, whose Christian name was General, had been a Deputy Sheriff, and in a fight several years ago he was shot twelve times.

ANGLED FOR MEN WHO WANTED WIVES

Two Respected Jamaica Women Who Collected from Prospective Husbands Caught.

SENT LETTERS FAR AND WIDE

Expenses of a Trip Usually Asked For and Obtained—Held for Federal Grand Jury.

Regarded by their neighbors as highly respectable, Mrs. Jeanette Foster and her daughter, Mrs. Laura Mayers, were arrested at their home, 27 Willow Street, Jamaica, L. I., by the United States Post Office authorities charged with using the mails for a fake matrimonial bureau. Both women were caught by decoy letters. Following their arrest they were taken to the Federal Building in Washington Street, Brooklyn, and arraigned before United States Commissioner Cahoone. They pleaded guilty and the Commissioner held them under bail for the September Grand Jury.

Posing as women ready to marry they received communications from widowers equally willing for another matrimonial venture. Assistant United States District Attorney Louis R. Beck has in his possession fifty letters sent by the women to persons in various parts of the country. In his opinion this number is only a small part of the extensive correspondence they carried on with men in almost every State in the Union. Various sums of money, ranging from $2 to $55, were sent to the women, as indicated by the letters now in possession of the Government authorities for railroad fare and other expenses, which they said they needed to get to their "intended husbands."

Although the women have been living in Jamaica for almost a year, suspicion was not directed against them until four months ago, when Postmaster Warren B. Ashmead of Jamaica observed that they received a large volume of mail matter. Then he discovered that both women called often at the Post Office to cash money orders. Early in May complaints began to pour in from men all over the country. Letters came addressed to the Mayor or Chief of Police of Jamaica and to Postmaster Ashmead inquiring about the character of the women.

Some of the complaints received by the Jamaica authorities contained the letters bearing the signature of either Mrs. Foster or her daughter. One of the first letters received by Postmaster Ashmead inquiring about the character of the women was sent by D. Carmichael of 2,304 Wilfe Street, Little Rock, Ark. He said he was a widower with four children and had corresponded with one of the women.

Post Office Inspector C. M. Brown of Brooklyn then began an investigation with Postmaster Ashmead, and on the strength of the information they obtained application was made to United States Commissioner Cahoone yesterday morning for warrants. Brown and Deputy United States Marshal J. E. McAvoy with the warrants waited near the home of the women yesterday afternoon until they came to the door to receive the two decoy letters sent to them by Postmaster Ashmead. As soon as the women appeared the letter carrier gave a signal to Brown and McAvoy, who promptly arrested them.

A mass of correspondence was found. Some of the men had sent money to one or the other of the women three or four times. One man in Montana sent $55 before he realized he was out the money and his intended wife. Another man, according to Mr. Beck, living in Kalamazoo, Mich., had furnished a house, expecting to marry one of the women.

One letter sent by Mrs. Mayers was addressed "My Dear, Loving Husband," and was received by Ernest Chaffee of Cherry Creek, Chautauqua County, N. Y. Chaffee was invited to come to Jamaica and take Mrs. Mayers to his home. The letter was signed "Your intended wife, Laura Mayers," and asked him to send a railroad ticket and $2 if he could not come to Jamaica, and she would go to him. In another letter sent by one of the women she sympathized with the prospective husband, who was recovering from an attack of appendicitis, and wrote, "I love your picture. Send $6 toward my railroad fare and I will foot the rest."

A Western man sent funds to Mrs. Mayers to pay her traveling expenses. He received word afterward that she could not go there, as she did not have carfare for her child.

NELSON PAGE'S PEN TO REST

Author to Drop Literary Work While Ambassador to Italy.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Thomas Nelson Page, the new Ambassador to Italy, will drop his literary work while abroad in that capacity and devote all his attention to his post. Mr. Page, however, expects to study the literature of the Latin people, and their romantic qualities will probably be reflected in his future work.

Mr. Page reads Italian, and is now learning to speak it fluently.

The new Ambassador has three books almost ready for publication. A volume of essays, a long story which he describes as "almost a novel," and a history of Washington, on which he has been working for more than two years.

BURIED ALIVE AND LIVES.

Workman Caught for Half an Hour Under Tons of Dirt.

Buried beneath tons of sand and dirt at the bottom of a trench 8 feet deep, in which he was at work at Far Rockaway, yesterday afternoon, John Burns of Corona, L. I., was held a prisoner for half an hour before he was dug out, barely alive, by firemen who came to his rescue.

Burns was making connections with the main sewer of the town with the sewer of the Far Rockaway Police Court, when the shoring in the trench gave way.

A gang of Italians at work on the dirt pile above were so unnerved at the accident that they were powerless to help. Four firemen from Engine Company 264 and Truck 134 seized the shovels from the frightened Italians and set to work with a will to dig Burns out. They finally dragged him from the trench unconscious. The firemen held up an auto that happened to be passing at the time, and Burns was rushed at full speed to St. Joseph's Hospital a mile away. At the hospital Burns was found to be suffering from a broken leg, internal injuries, and shock. It is believed he will recover.

too limited in time and terms to be of any use to country banks. The privilege extended to banks to borrow upon petition of not less than ten banks is absurd. No bank will ever be able to avail itself of it. The provision as to nine-months' loans on real estate is too ridiculous to admit of discussion. Real estate loans are negotiated for a period of five years on the average. We shall regard the enactment of this bill as a calamity, and in that case will favor a surrender of national charters.

O. P. BOURLAND,
President National Bank of Pontiac.
C. W. LYON,
President Livingston Co. National Bank

Indiana.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 27.—We do not like being forced to subscribe to the capital of the reserve bank. Our own opinion is that the only legislation needed is to permit the reserve cities to issue Clearing House notes looking like and having all the functions of national currency, with redundancy or abuse safeguarded by taxation.

MYRON CAMPBELL,
Cashier South Bend National Bank.

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., June 27.—I consider the currency law as proposed detrimental, while the rediscount of paper, as incorporated in the bill, would not be beneficial. This law would probably force many small country banks to surrender their charters and become State banks.

CLAUDE S. KITTERMAN,
President First National Bank.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., June 27.—I think it would drive the country banks to surrender their charters. L. LINK, President Rush County National Bank.

Michigan.

FLINT, Mich., June 27.—In Michigan, few if any national banks would be organized under the proposed new currency law, and a large percentage of the national banks would undoubtedly take out State charters. The needs of the country banks have been entirely ignored in the bill, if the published summary is correct.

JOHN J. CARTON,
President National Bank of Flint.

Iowa.

WATERLOO, Iowa, June 27.—Should the proposed currency law be passed we would prefer to surrender our charter and take one out under the State.

COMMERCIAL NATIONAL BANK.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, June 27.—Cannot see how the proposed currency law would benefit agricultural communities, as only short time high grade commercial paper can be rediscounted, except that any law that provides relief for the larger commercial and financial centres indirectly benefits the country bank. But the proposed law forces the withdrawal of funds from reserve cities which would tend to the contraction of loanable funds. It might take about $10,000,000 out of the reserve banks in Iowa and very large amounts from the central reserve cities, where in the ordinary course of business it is most convenient for the country banks to deposit their funds and rediscount their papers. The entire political control of the general reserve board is hazardous and unstable.

E. H. RICH,
Cashier First National Bank.

Nebraska.

HASTINGS, Neb., June 27.—I think neither the country banks nor their patrons would be much benefited by the proposed rediscount arrangement. The proposed political management is bad. The passage of the measure in its present form would doubtless make a State charter the only alternative.

A. L. CLARKE,
President First National Bank.

BEATRICE, Neb., June 27.—If the conditions named become a law and we are also compelled to deposit 5 per cent. of our deposits with the central reserve bank, which I understand is part of the new currency bill, I do not believe that national banks could compete with the State banks in the State of Nebraska.

D. W. COOK,
President Beatrice National Bank.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—The discount privileges will not be practical for country banks, and many would surrender their national charters. The reserve feature is too radical a change and would be disastrous.

S. H. BURNHAM,
President First National Bank.

Minnesota.

ROCHESTER, Minn., June 27.—For country banks the rediscount privilege should be based on longer maturities than forty-five days. The cash [illegible] is the correct [illegible] It is not lik[illegible] surrender our charter, although we do not believe this is the best law which could be enacted.

A. C. GOODING,
President First National Bank.

DULUTH, Minn., June 27.—We are not prepared at this time to give the opinion asked for in your telegram.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK.

Wisconsin.

APPLETON, Wis., June 27.—I consider the proposed currency law injurious to the best interests of the country, and consequently its bankers, because, in my opinion, it will work for a contraction of capital which cannot be remedied by the discount facilities offered by the bill. In case of stringency a period of forty-five days for discounting paper is entirely too short to afford relief. On the whole, I would say for the present extend the Aldrich-Vreeland act, with such restrictions or limitations as experience may have shown are necessary to incorporate in an extension of that law, until the proposed currency law is perfected.

HERMAN ERB,
President First National Bank.

Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 27.—As I interpret the proposed currency law, it will be impossible for country banks to operate profitably under it, and the result would be that small country national banks would be compelled to denationalize and reorganize under State laws or go out of business.

B. P. WAGGENER,
President Exchange National Bank.

WELLINGTON, Kan., June 27.—Answering your telegram, our country banks can't profit by the rediscount privileges, because a forty-five-day time limit is not long enough. Harvest time is uncertain some years, owing to the weather. We are dependent on wheat or corn.

E. B. ROSE,
President National Bank of Commerce.

North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., June 27.—Facilities for rediscounting for a period of forty-five days would be of little or no value to North Dakota banks, which must place their paper ordinarily for from three to four months from Spring to Fall. In the event of the passage of the proposed currency bill as framed I believe many national banks in this State would take out State charters. E. J. WEISER,
President First National Bank.

South Dakota.

ABERDEEN, S. D., June 27.—The proposed currency law is not of much advantage to the country banks. The rediscount proposition is too limited, the paper running too short a time, and is not profitable. I think many would abandon their national charters.

J. C. BASSETT,
President Aberdeen National Bank.

FROM THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST.

Georgia.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 27.—If correct, the bill in its present form would prove a burden rather than a benefit to the country banks, and should it pass without material amendment many of them would no doubt reorganize under State charters. E. H. MASON.
President, National Bank of Brunswick.

North Carolina.

HIGH POINT, N. C., June 27.—Forty-five-day paper for rediscount is too short a time to be of much value to Southern country bankers. We like the recommendations of the National Monetary Commission made in January, 1912, better than the present proposed law.

J. ELWOOD COX,
President, Commercial National Bank.

Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 27.—Replying to your message of the 26th, will say that we do not think the country or the small city banks would realize much or any benefit under the proposed currency law. They, as a rule, do not have sufficient short time commercial paper to justify qualifying.

CHARLES E. HOGE,
President, State National Bank.

DANVILLE, Ky., June 27.—With 20 per cent. tied up with the reserve bank at a very low rate, re-discounts limited to forty-five days' commercial paper, when 90 per cent. of the average country discounts would not so class, we can see no practical advantage to any well-managed country bank in tying up from one-fifth to one-fourth of its capital for very small returns, with probable loss of income.

FARMERS NATIONAL BANK.

Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 27.—Growing crops in the South are financed by collateral notes running four to six months. The crop movement in the Fall requires large accommodations, averaging ninety days. The rediscount privilege under the currency bill as introduced appears of little value to Southern banks, and the facilities of national banks would be impaired by the compulsory subscription of 20 per cent. of their capital to the capital of the reserve bank. Should the bill become a law without material amendments, I would expect many national banks to take out State charters. It is too early to say what action this bank would take.

W. H. G. HARDING,
President First National Bank.

ANNISTON, Ala., June 27.—Replying to your inquiry, the re-discount privilege does not appeal especially to us, as present facilities in New York are adequate. Country banks do not care to take stock in reserve banks. The main thing is to get a law to give us ample currency in times of panic. There is no direct profit in having a national bank charter. I think the country banks now have all the facilities needed so far as borrowing is concerned. Any more would likely cause an excess of credits.

M. B. WELLBORN,
President First National Bank of Anniston, Ala.

GADSDEN, Ala., June 27.—Your telegram received. It is our opinion that for country banks to subscribe 20 per cent. of their capital to the capital of reserve banks would be hurtful to the average country bank. The forty-five-day limitation on paper for discount with the reserve bank would serve to preclude country banks from enjoying the rediscount privilege. This because the majority of paper taken by the country banks runs from four to eight months.

S. McGAUGHY,
Vice President First National Bank.

Missouri.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 27.—I am perfectly willing to trust our able legislators, believing that no currency legislation will be enacted but what will finally be for the best interests of the entire nation.

B. ZICK, Jr.,
President First National Bank.

Louisiana.

LAKE CHARLES, La., June 27.—We would not care to express an opinion until authentic copies of the bill are received and thoroughly investigated.

CALCASIEU NATIONAL BANK.

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 27.—The proposed currency law is not practicable for country banks, but it is too early to state what action we would take.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 27.—I have not had an opportunity to read the proposed currency bill, but from the synopsis I approve its general principle, without going into detail. This country needs an absolute divorce from the concentration of its wealth in one city, which practically dominates the finances of our entire country. The reserve or regional banks proposed would accomplish that end. There may be, and no doubt are, some objectionable features, such as the rediscount facilities being limited to receivables having a maturity of not more than forty-five days, and the 10 per cent. cash reserve. Even such a provision is preferable to present conditions. Up to date I see no reason why a national bank under the proposed bill should surrender its charter for a State charter.

JOE GOTTLIEB,
President Louisiana National Bank.

Texas.

WEATHERFORD, Texas, June 27.—The required 20 per cent. investment in the capital of reserve banks is very objectionable, and proposed rediscount privileges are unfavorable. We have now ample facilities for rediscounting good paper running for time to suit our needs. The present national bank system is good, and needs only slight amendment. It is desirable to have a supply of emergency currency based on commercial paper.

W. S. FANT,
President First National Bank.

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 27.—Yours of the 26th received. We prefer to reserve opinion pending an examination of the proposed law. JOHN C. WARD,
President First National Bank.

SHERMAN, Texas, June 27.—According to your interpretation as expressed in your telegram of the 26th, the currency measure pending in Congress would not, we think, be of much direct advantage to country banks such as ours.

MERCHANTS AND PLANTERS' NATIONAL BANK.

Oklahoma.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 27.—Replying to your telegram of the 26th, we think the following conditions in the currency bill seriously handicap its usefulness: By all means the banks should have representation on the Board of Directors of the central bank. Forty-five-day limit for rediscounts is absolutely useless to Southern bankers, who depend on the maturity of crops for the payment of their notes. A 20 per cent. investment of the bank's capital in the central bank is excessive. So also is the cash reserve requirement in bank's own vaults. The law of this State would not appeal to us for a State charter.

D. N. FINK,
President Commercial National Bank.

Mississippi.

ABERDEEN, Miss., June 27.—I have not read the entire bill, but I do not think subscribing to reserve banks' capital would be any benefit to country banks. Cash reserve in vaults of 10 per cent. is entirely too much. Rediscount facilities, limiting country banks to put up paper running only forty-five days is no benefit whatever. Throughout the South loans generally run six to nine months. There is very little profit in operating as national banks in the South under present laws, which do not allow real estate loans. If further restrictions against agricultural loans are made, many national banks would be forced to take out State charters. The greatest benefit of operating as a national bank at present is the strict Government supervision.

J. C. McFARLANE, Jr.,
Cashier First National Bank.

CANTON, Miss., June 27.—I have not seen the Glass-Owen bill. The cash reserves are opposed by the country banks. There is very little short maturing paper available for rediscount in this section.

C. S. PRIESTLEY,
President First National Bank.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

Oregon.

PENDLETON, Ore., June 27.—Rediscount facilities limited to paper having forty-five days to run would preclude the country banks from receiving any benefits. Farmers' and stockmen's paper runs six to twelve months. Provision for rediscounting their paper having four months to run would be a practical benefit. Five per cent. cash reserve is ample. Unless the law provides reasonable benefits to offset the forced subscription of capital and the reserve requirements, we will be forced to withdraw form the national system to meet the competition of State banks.

W. L. THOMPSON,
President American National Bank.
President Oregon Bankers' Association.

Montana.

HELENA, Mont., June 27.—We favor a proper currency law, but under the proposed bill the country banks, as a rule, would be at a disadvantage so far as rediscount facilities are concerned, as loans advanced to farmers, live stock interests, and so forth, have to be carried until the products are marketed. If the proposed law is enacted it will no doubt force the smaller national banks to take out State charters.

T. C. POWER,
President American National Bank.

Idaho.

BOISE, Idaho, June 27.—No direct advantage could come to the country bank from the proposed rediscount privilege. Its loans are largely to farmers and stock growers from whom it would be futile to always expect cash payment at the maturity of short-time loans. A country bank attempting to use the rediscount facilities would be kept busy substituting and exchanging forty-five-day paper. I should want to continue as a national bank rather than as a State bank only until it would involve a charge or cost to do so.

C. W. MOORE,
President First National Bank.

Washington.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., June 27.—Under the proposed currency law emergencies will arise and cease before relief can be obtained by the rediscount method. It is too slow, technical, and cumbersome. The country banks of this region are hardly able to offer the kind of paper classed as eligible. The law is not broad enough for all sections. It would be better to struggle along with the present law than hastily adopt the new, which may prove a failure. A close study of the law, if passed in its present form, might make it necessary to go out of the system.

W. L. STEINWEG,
President First National Bank.

CENTRALIA, Wash., June 27.—No feature of the proposed currency law is of especial benefit to the country banks. It should apply only to banks in cities of the first class or reserve cities. Country banks can secure greater relief and more effective results by dealing direct with their correspondents in the large cities. We would seriously consider changing to a State charter.

C. S. GILCHRIST,
Vice President United States National Bank.

California.

REDLANDS, Cal., June 27.—Few country banks can afford to place 20 per cent. of their capital with the central bank. The time for the rediscount facilities is too short. The effect of the proposed bill would probably be to drive the small country banks to take State charters. We are most strongly opposed to placing the banking interests under the control of political influence. We cannot see how the proposed bill furnishes an elastic currency. It rather tends to inflation.

H. H. FORD,
President Redlands National Bank.

HEARINGS ON MONEY BILL.

Committee to Get Advice from Bankers and Experts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—While it is said that under no circumstances will the Federal Reserve Board be increased by the addition of bankers, President Wilson's [illegible] "common counsel" will be [illegible]tant details of the new currency bill. With this purpose in mind Senator Owen to-day announced that the Banking and Currency Committee of the Senate would begin hearings on the bill at the end of next week. Replies to the questions propounded to the bankers of the country are coming in rapidly, and oral examination at the hearings is expected to supplement the written answers now on file.

Mr. Owen always has been in favor of a currency system directly controlled by the Government, and he says that feature of the bill will not be changed. Some weeks ago he seemed to think that the bankers might be allowed to have a minority representation on the Governing Board, but his statement to-day indicated that he considered the subject closed.

"I am told," said Chairman Glass of the House Banking and Currency Committee to-day, "that the so-called exclusive Government control of the general board appointed to supervise the regional banks will antagonize bankers and keep them out of associations. It also is stated that the provision for the appointment of the members of the board by the President is a dangerous delegation of power to the executive.

"These critics forget that the Supreme Court of the United States has the last word in matters of vital importance to the nation. Members of the Supreme Court are appointed by the President. Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission are appointed by the President. We propose to have at least one banker on the board. There is no arrangement for the appointment of a railroad man to the Interstate Commerce Commission."

SEES HOPE IN CURRENCY BILL.

George M. Reynolds Believes It Will Be Mainly Satisfactory.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 27.—George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank, who returned from Washington to-day, has faith in the ultimate adoption of a currency bill that will be practicable within a moderate range of that term.

The two features upon which the contention of the bankers and the Administration now rests, he says, are the Government's right to appoint all members of the Federal Reserve Board and the method of issuing the new currency.

Beyond these two factors, Mr. Reynolds regards the new bill as reasonably satisfactory. The change back to the plan of refunding the 2 per cent. into 3 per cent. Government bonds and the modification of reserve requirements being favorable developments.

Mr. Reynolds expects that further modifications of the bill will be made, especially in relation to the appointment of the Federal Reserve Board. He says President Wilson regards the board as a regulating rather than as a managerial body.

NOT A BANKERS' BILL.

Inter-Ocean Says Practical Men Should Be Heard on Currency.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Under the head of "Currency Reform in Congress" The Inter-Ocean will say, editorially, of the Glass Currency bill to-morrow:

"As the measure stands it is too much of a politician's and lawyer's bill and too little of a banker's and business man's. It would be better if its framers had listened more carefully to the practical and experienced men who know by doing it how the money and credit machinery of the country can be kept running with fewest jolts and jars.

"For that reason the House should grant the public hearings asked for on the measure. With a full and fair hearing of bankers and business men from all parts of the country Congress would realize, as President Wilson and his immediate advisors evidently do not, what is the probably fatal objection to the bill as it now stands, and the feature that may make it fail to work if enacted."

DANGER IN FEDERAL BOARD.

Prof. W. A. Scott Likens It to "Power Behind the Throne."

AKRON, Ohio, June 27.—Prof. William A. Scott of the University of Wisconsin, in his address on "Needed Currency Legislation" before the Northern Ohio Bankers' Association here this afternoon, suggested some amendments to the new Currency bill.

"The act confuses commercial and investment banking in a dangerous fashion by placing investment paper secured by national and State bonds on the same basis as commercial paper, so far as concerns rediscounts and note issues," said Prof. Scott. "This opens the way for inflation of the most dangerous kind and endangers the elasticity of the note issues provided for."

The power delegated to the Federal Reserve Board to compel one bank to rediscount for another, would subject the Federal Board to great political pressure, Prof. Scott thought. He said he believed the members of the Federal Board would get out of touch with the agricultural and commercial industries of the country, and there would be great danger of the development of "an invisible power behind the throne."

he is now evading service of summons in this action. This trial will disclose to the public Halleran's true character and the perfidy of my political enemies. The attempts to gain political advantage in American politics through blackening the character of pure women, I am glad to say, to the credit of American manhood, have been few.

"I am the proud possessor of a loving wife. My home is a happy one. None of Cassidy's thugs can destroy that home, nor the confidence and affections of my family."

Mr. Connolly explains that when Halleran got in business troubles he and his wife came to him and Mrs. Connolly and got a loan of $1,500 to save the Halleran home. This money, he says, was never returned. He could not continue in business, and so he appointed him an inspector. Halleran's wife left him, the Borough President says, but even before that he had had complaints of inattention to his duties. He remonstrated with him, and told him unless he reformed he would discharge him, and it was only after he failed to do his work properly that he did discharge him.

"On the following day he threatened over the telephone that he would 'get square with me.'"

Mr. Connolly tells of overtures Halleran made to have Connolly back him for the Assembly or a political appointment, all of which he had rejected, and he says this of his attempts to settle the trouble between Halleran and his wife:

"During the married life of Halleran my wife spoke to me about messages which she had received from Mrs. Halleran as to the manner in which her husband was conducting himself, asking us to intercede for her, which we did, and everything which I did in this direction was with the approval of my wife, and it is unquestionably these instances when I called at the house or was called upon the telephone that Halleran has reference to."

Halleran Extends the Charge.

"As to the specific allegations set forth in Halleran's complaint," adds Mr. Connolly, "they are maliciously false and without foundation. His wife having been forced by brutality to leave him, he attempts to explain the fact, and in doing so slanders his wife. In the various statements which he has made concerning me to his friends he has invariably followed it up with the remark that he was after my money, and that he was advised by my political enemies to hold the suit back until such time as it would injure me politically."

Halleran also issued a statement in which he deplored the necessity of bringing the suit. "For more than two years I kept my troubles to myself," the statement reads, "hoping that there might come a change in my wife's conduct that would make life with her more tolerable, and that something would happen that would prevent Maurice Connolly from breaking up my home. Even after I had discovered my wife and Connolly in a most compromising situation and had had forced to my attention what I now see I should have known were conclusive evidences of her infidelity, I refrained from taking any action, preferring to permit my wife to go and live her life her own way. I would have continued silent had not Connolly and others sought to injure and degrade me through the circulation of malicious slanders.

"I spoke to Connolly several times and requested him that out of consideration for his wife and her family, if for no other reason, he make his attentions to my wife less marked, and that people were talking about them. Usually he made no reply, but continued to visit Mrs. Halleran and take her out automobiling three or four times a week. I ask that judgment of my conduct and character be suspended until after I have had an opportunity to have the court pass upon the whole matter."

PEERESS PUT SPELL ON SIR JOHN SCOTT

Witnesses Tell of Lady Sackville's "Magnetic Power" and of His Subservience.

RELATIVES ADMIT GIFTS

Substantial Sums to Sisters and Brothers Named—Peeress Wanted to Make Mischief, Says One.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—Public interest in the Sir John Murray Scott will case increased rather than diminished to-day. The court was crowded, chiefly with society people and the friends of the families connected.

A curious account of Lady Sackville's relations with Sir John was given by witnesses. Alicia Scott, Sir John's elder sister, asserted that Lady Sackville exercised over him a "kind of spell" and a "mesmeric" power. He was "subservient" to her and "afraid of her temper." He "seemed exactly like a slave." He was, Miss Scott said, "a weak man, easily influenced."

It appeared from the statements of counsel for the plaintiff that the two Misses Scott had already realized $420,000 by the sale of effects left them by Sir John.

Mary Scott, the younger of Sir John's sisters, alleged that Sir John was "always cringing" to Lady Sackville and that his demeanor to her was "obsequious." She acted in Sir John's house, said this witness, as though she were the mistress. Sir John's mother, noting this, told him "you will soon not be able to call your soul your own."

A very remarkable story was told by Walter Scott, the youngest of Sir John's brothers. He asserted that while out for a walk with Lady Sackville she said to him that she never had seen anybody fall in love so quickly. He promptly answered her that she had made a great mistake, whereupon she said: "The only thing is platonic friendship. I cannot break my marriage vows for you." His allegation was that she "ran after him to get rid of him" and to make mischief between Sir John and himself.

In cross-examination he agreed that he had received from Sir John during his life $285,000, and $50,000 with an annuity of $10,000 on Sir John's death.

Gen. Douglas Scott, another of Sir John's brothers, alleged that Lady Sackville flattered Sir John in a "gross" manner, and that Sir John behaved to her in a "subservient, obsequious, fidgety, excited, and frightened" way.

Both brothers asserted that they had made no suggestion as to the propriety of Sir John's and Lady Sackville's relations.

SURPRISES IN SCOTT SALE.

A Watteau Brings Highest Price of the Day, $32,550.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—The vagaries and inconsistencies of the sale room were well illustrated at Christie's to-day, when the Sir John Murray Scott pictures upset all calculations.

The best instances were two pictures by Boucher—one representing two lovers, the other a shepherdess conversing with a girl. They were evidently painted as companion pictures and were practically of the same size, though the figures were different in scale. The painting of the lovers, which was vastly superior, fetched $1,150, while the shepherdess sold for $8,400. Hodgkins was the purchaser.

Coypel's "Pet Parrot" went for $4,725, an unprecedented price for a Coypel in an English sale room. "A Fête in a Town," a very interesting work by L. Paret, a rare Spanish master of the late eighteenth century, best known for his architectural paintings and a series of designs for "Don, Quixote" plates that were never engraved, was sold to Hodgkins for $3,465.

"A Fête Champêtre," attributed to Pater, but much too heavy and solid for that artist—probably a contemporary copy of Watteau by one of that master's imitators—went to Agnew for $12,075.

"A Fête Champêtre," a superb and unquestionably authentic example of Watteau, brought $32,550, Agnew obtaining it after a spirited competition.

Three Nymphs with Cupids, by N. Diaz, was sold to Arnold Tripp for $5,880.

"Music," "Literature," and "War," a set of three pictures by C. Van Loo, went to Andrade for $4,200.

Nattier's "Portrait of Mme. Victoire" was bought by Wertheimer for $11,025.

The total of the day's sales was $185,185.

NEW MARCONI CONTRACT.

British Government to Make Fresh Deal for "All Red" Wireless.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, June 28.—The Times this morning says that it is understood that the Government has acquiesced in the Marconi Company's repudiation of the agreement which was negotiated last year, and will proceed to negotiate for a fresh contract with that company for the establishment of an "all-red" wireless system.

BERLIN, June 27.—William Marconi and Godfrey C. NEW DANISH WIRELESS PLAN

Poulsen Patents to be Used in Scandinavian-American Service.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, June 27.—A far-reaching scheme to make practical use of Valdemar Poulsen's invention is about to be brought to fulfillment by the establishment of the Danish Radio-Telegraph Company, with stations in Denmark, Greenland, and Canada. Stations will eventually be established along the Norway Coast, in the Danish West Indies, and in Panama.

A committee has bought from the Universal Radio Syndicate of London the patents for Denmark and the sole right of using this system between Scandinavia and America.

A capital of $550,000 will suffice for the present, and the route will be opened next Spring.

GERARD TELLS HIS PLANS.

Friends Overwhelm Him with Felicitations on Board the Imperator.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD SS. IMPERATOR, June 27, (via Camperdown, N. S.)—Justice James W. Gerard has been overwhelmed with congratulatory messages from members of the Cabinet, Senators, and other distinguished men. In the ballroom last night he held an informal levee, surrounded by his friends, expressing their good wishes. Justice Gerard said to-day:

"Until I am officially advised of my appointment it is unbecoming for me to make comment upon it. I realize that the post has great possibilities for public service. If appointed, I shall immediately return on the Imperator and resign my Judgeship. I had no intimation that the Berlin Embassy would be offered to me when I left New York to go to Paris to join Mrs. Gerard."

BERLIN, June 27.—The proposal of Justice James W. Gerard as American Ambassador to Germany was received by the German Foreign Office yesterday, and forwarded immediately to Emperor William, who is attending the Kiel regatta.

The nomination was very favorably received in official circles, and it is believed that the appointment will be accepted without any delay.

ROTHSCHILD DEAL DENIED BY PIERCE

All a Fabrication, Says Oil Man, Who Asserts Relations with Standard Are Still Cordial.

LONDON CREDITS REPORT

Wilson's Course Is Praised by Pierce, Who Hopes for Speedy Tariff and Currency Revision.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 27.—H. Clay Pierce asserted in no uncertain terms to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day that a bond still exists between the Waters-Pierce and Standard Oil Companies despite the reports that his concern had enlisted the financial aid of the Rothschilds to the amount of $10,000,000 for the purpose of fighting the Rockefeller interests.

Although he has been in Europe three times in the past year and is reported to have been conferring with various members of the Rothschild family, and is now, prior to sailing, going to the Continent for several weeks, on account of his "business interests," Mr. Pierce went on to say that no such combination as was rumored had ever even been thought of. He also stated that among the oil interests "everything is harmonious, and likely to remain so."

He then paid tribute to President Wilson's record, and also praised Secretary of State Bryan. He expressed the opinion that American finances were sound, despite European pessimism, adding his belief that America should own decent embassy buildings abroad and that the London weather was the worst in the world.

As contrasted with Mr. Pierce's statement, the opinion of local representatives of the Standard Oil Company is one of entire acceptance of the Rothschild report and belief that the projected combination is for the purpose of organizing opposition in the California fields.

All a Fabrication.

On this subject Mr. Pierce said:

"I have heard the rumor from America, and have also read the dispatch in The London Chronicle that the Rothschilds and myself are in combination. I would say that there is not a word of truth in it. It is all the fabrication of some troublemakers, for there has never been the slightest word passed between me and the Rothschilds on the subject.

"The Waters-Pierce people have no desire to oppose Standard Oil anywhere. We hope to continue as good friends as we always have been.

"Concerning the California fields I have nothing to say. I have passed the greater part of the year over here and am going home next month because my affairs demand it.

"I believe the unsettled conditions which have existed in the American market will soon be entirely dissipated. President Wilson is making a great success and is restoring the confidence of all men of affairs. We much prefer an Administration that gives an emphatic 'No' or 'Yes,' even when against us, rather than to have a qualified answer to every question submitted, as had been the case in the previous four years.

"I classify that period as an era of uncertainty, with the result that uneasiness prevailed everywhere, since there is no other factor in the world so calculated to bring about such a condition.

"Europe does not understand us, therefore it spreads alarmist reports. But we must understand that Europe, with wars and war scares, is always on the qui vive for trouble. Now that the Balkan troubles are about settled it is to be hoped that the markets will soon quiet down.

For Quick Action by Congress.

"From the reports I have received, while abroad, I quite agree that the big questions of tariff and currency revision should be immediately thrashed out by the Democratic Party. Also for the sake of our nation in the eyes of Europe I hope the Embassy bill will become a law.

"I quite agree with President Wilson in his stand toward the Chinese loans. I believe that when the proper time comes for commercial loans to China we will not be slow to take advantage of it. But Germany and France come first with the world's financiers; until their necessities are supplied there will be little interest elsewhere. Meanwhile, we with our good crops, vast resources, and splendid isolation do not need to worry.

"Again, let me say that there is nothing in that oil rumor. It is all a canard. I am sorry to have been compelled to remain in London so long. I am anxious to get to Paris, where the climate is so much more healthy, and shall be delighted to get back to New York business activity with more of a feeling of certainty than for a long time."

EX-NAVY CLERK ARRESTED.

London Police Have Mayer, Charged with Embezzling $140.

LONDON, June 27.—Charles Mayer, a former postal clerk on the United States battleship Alabama, was arrested in London to-day on the charge of embezzlement alleged to have been committed in the United States.

Mayer enlisted in the United States Navy in January, 1910. After serving as a yeoman he was commissioned a postal clerk on the Albama. Last January, while the battleship was at Philadelphia, Mayer disappeared, and an examination of his accounts, it is alleged by the naval authorities, showed a shortage of $140.

SLINGSBY CLAIM UP AGAIN.

Evidence May Be Taken Here in Suit for Huge Yorkshire Estates.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, June 27.—Further proceedings in the remarkable action in which Lieut. Charles Reynard Slingsby of San Francisco claims huge Yorkshire estates for his infant son came before the High Court of Justice to-day.

Lieut. Slingsby is the guardian of the infant whom it was alleged at the California State Board of Health inquiry he substituted as his own, when, in fact, the child was the natural son of Lillian Anderson, a Sonoma County high school girl. Slingsby's own child, it was alleged, died soon after birth at the Slingsby home in San Francisco.

Counsel for Lieut. Slingsby explained to the court to-day that his client had a suit pending here for a declaration of legitimacy. Lieut. Slingsby recently filed a petition to the court, but through a mistake it was not signed. The Lieutenant is now on his way back to New York, and counsel asked the court's indulgence until the petition could be sent by mail to Slingsby for his signature. The court granted this request.

Counsel further asked that a day be fixed for a hearing of the application to dispatch a commission to America to take the evidence of witnesses. Such evidence, it was said, was necessary to enable Lieut. Slingsby to establish his son's claim to the estates, which had an income of $50,000 a year. A day was fixed a fortnight hence on which arguments will be heard on the admissibility of the American evidence.

GERMANS REVOLT AT TAXES.

Government Flooded with Angry Protests Against Increased Imposts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—The Daily Chronicle's Berlin correspondent telegraphs that Germany's new increased taxes, necessitated by the extraordinary increased annual army expenditure, and now certain to become law, are arousing a great storm of protest all over the empire, especially those on the income of property and inheriance.

Enormous public meetings are being held everywhere. Opposition is daily growing, especially in the agrarian centres. Already no fewer than 118 petitions protesting against the imposts have been received by the Government from powerful associations of all kinds in every part of the country. Such a number of petitions on one subject has never before been known in Germany, and the agitation is only beginning.

NEW HOLBEIN IS FOUND.

Portrait, Sold for $1,700, Proves to be a Work of the Old Master.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 28.—In connection with the discovery of a new Holbein, The Times says this morning that Edward Huth's splendid Holbein portrait of Sir Thomas More, painted in 1547, was recently sold to an American collector at a very high price.

The newly-found Holbein, according to The Times, came from Rotterdam and was sold at a London auction in April for 340 guineas, ($1,700,) the purchaser being A. H. Buttery.

It was described as "a portrait of Mary, Queen of Scots." When cleaned, an unquestionably beautiful Tudor picture in the finest state of preservation was revealed.

The few experts who have seen it, including Dr. Friedlander of Berlin, Sir Walter Armstrong, and C. F. Bell of Oxford, have pronounced it a splendid example of Holbein, painted about 1527.

GRUESOME OBJECTS SOLD.

Actress Buys Indian's Head—Books Bound in Human Skins Bring $99.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—This was a gruesome day at the Hotel Drouot. In the rooms in which it is customary to dispose of valuable pictures, old furniture, and jewels, a petrified Patagonian, two volumes bound in the skin of women, and an Indian head came under the hammer. The sale attracted a large and fashionable crowd, and the bidding was keen.

For the Patagonian, six feet tall, who may be older than Abraham, for all the scientists know, a hard contest was waged between a French Count and a South American impresario. The latter finally acquired the treasure for $1,640.

Two books, one bound in the skin of a white woman, the other in that of a black woman, were sold for $99. A well-known actress, Mlle. Harley, was the purchaser of the Indian head at $264. The bones had been extracted from the head, which had shrunk to the size of a man's hand. Mlle. Harley will treat it as a mascot.

Vatican Condemns Father Coube's Anti-Semitic Book.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—A book written by a celebrated French preacher, Father Coube, has been placed on the Index Expurgatorius by the Vatican.

The book, which is entitled "Jewish Souls," sets forth "the origin of Jewish hatred for Christ and Christians, and also of the anti-eucharistic form which that hatred has often taken."

PARIS MODES BREAK RECORD FOR DARING

Nothing Approaching Their Frankness Seen for a Hundred Years.

DECOLLETES AT AUTEUIL

Bodices Reduced to Mere Fichus and Everything Diaphanous, Even the Hats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—The fashions of the Summer of 1913 will be long remembered as the most daring of the last hundred years. Not since the Directoire period have women dressed so scantily as did the thousands who were at Auteuil this afternoon. The Prix de Drags, which is recognized as the most elegant social function of the year, left no doubt regarding the trend of the present fashion—to wear as little as possible, and that little diaphanous.

The paddock presented the appearance of a ballroom rather than an outdoor afternoon function. Low necks and bare arms were de rigueur, while satin or gold slippers, and pearls, diamonds, and jewels of all sorts emphasized the illusion of a crowd of women dressed for an evening affair. White or cream was generally used owing to the fact that practically all the gowns were made up of lace. The variations, however, were happily devised of chiffon, mousséline de soie, and the thinnest tulle of the palest coloring, all of which were cleverly mingled and gave a charming ethereal appearance to the new models.

Except for the lace tunics, which were described last Sunday, there was no special set feature for all gowns, different designers and dressmakers creating different styles for each dress.

Among the novelties to-day were draped velvet kimono bodices, cut low in front and back; they were hardly more than fichus ending at the waist.

Little Old-Fashioned Capes.

Little capes of English embroidery, covering the neck only at the back and reaching just below the shoulders, were another new feature which appeared popular. They looked exactly like the old-fashioned capes one remembers in the pictures of one's great-grandmothers, and gave an old-world appearance to otherwise ultra-modern attire.

Natural flowers, chiefly crimson ramblers, were freely worn as trimmings of gowns, long chains of them circling the waist and descending on one side of the skirt and terminating in a bunch near the hem.

Apparently corsets are quite out of date. The majority of bodices to-day did not reach far above the waist—at least the opaque part of them. The rest was a mere fichu of tulle, in some cases lined partly with flesh-colored chiffon, but generally unlined, leaving the shoulders and arms quite unprotected.

Petticoats are also in little favor. Several women whose lace skirts were absolutely transparent adopted theatrical tights. These were the centre of interest of the smart crowd and were variously commented upon.

The tendency to imitate Directoire styles was quite plain also in the more conservative gowns, the waist line of which was considerably higher than earlier in the season. The sleeves were tight over the shoulder, terminating a few inches above the elbow.

One of the most admired dresses had a white charmeuse skirt, draped in soft folds from which hung bunches of crimson ramblers. The gown had no bodice in the strict sense of the word, but a wide, supple sash of the same material, heavily embroidered with silver, reaching a few inches above the waist. A lace and tulle fichu adorned the shoulders. The hat was also of white tulle, trimmed with ramblers, a wreath of which was pinned over the lace parasol with jeweled clasps. The skirt through a long slit revealed gold slippers secured with gold ribbon.

The extreme lightness of the general attire has given the fashion-makers a pretext for launching a new fad—the use of heavy red fox furs, as in Winter. Many women, however, had to leave them in the cloakroom after a courageous attempt at wearing them with the thermometer over 70.

Popularity of Tulle and Lace.

Tulle and lace have become so popular on account of their lightness that they have invaded millinery to the exclusion of almost all other materials. Hats are now large or of moderate size, hardly ever small. The tiny shapes of a month ago appear quite obsolete.

Manufacturers have lost no time in taking advantage of the vogue of lace. For the first time to-day were seen charming imitations of real lace, which, owing to the reduction in price, go far to make the new fashion very popular.

Contrary to the custom, the men by no means followed the women's lead in making Drags Day the most fashionable of the season. To-day many wore Summer flannels and soft hats, while only a few gray "toppers" were to be seen.

Some of the Costumes.

The attendance was heavy and the betting surpassed what is usual at this particular meeting, although there were fewer Americans present than formerly. Among them were:

Mrs. Perry Belmont, in black charmeuse, with a tulle hat trimmed with osprey plumes; Countess de la Rochefoucault, wearing white and black lace trimmed with natural flowers and a black hat with aigrettes; Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge, in black satin, with white lace tunic and black hat with paradise plumes; Princess de Polignac, in white charmeuse, pink tulle bodice, white hat, and paradise plumes; Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, in white lace, with white tulle hat and aigrettes; Countess de Pourtalès, in black liberty, with tulle hat, large roses and aigrettes; Mrs. W. E. Corey, in pale green soft taffeta, with Chantilly lace, green hat, and roses; Mrs. C. A. Spreckels of San Francisco, in white brocaded crêpe de chine and black velvet tulle hat with paradise plumes; Mrs. Edmund McCullough of Philadelphia, in black charmeuse, trimmed with black Chantilly ruffles, a corsage of white tulle, covered with black Chantilly, and a hat of black tulle and lace; Mrs. Colburn of Hopedale, Mass., in a black taffeta coat opening over a chemisette of white tulle, with a black turban, trimmed all around with aigrettes, and a parasol lined with valenciennes lace; Mrs. Coleman Lewis, in blue chiffon broché, with Cluny lace chemisette, white tulle girdle, Indian bead embroidery, and black tulle hat; Mrs. Spencer Eddy of Chicago, in white tulle and crêpe de chine frock, with a huge girdle of green taffeta and a hat of white straw with ostrich plumes; Mrs. Foster Thomas of Louisville, Ky., in black embroidered charmeuse, with a black hat with paradise plumes; Mrs. E. R. Larreta, wife of the Argentine Minister, in an embroidered crêpe de chine, draped high, with a short coat opening over a chemisette of white tulle and a hat of black velvet and tulle, with paradise plumes; Mrs. Spencer Biddle of Philadelphia, wearing pale blue charmeuse, embroidered in all shades of blue, and a black tulle hat with ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Wynne Sewell of Pittsburgh, in black charmeuse, with bodice of white tulle and gold lace, and a toque with large loops of tulle; Mrs. Laurence Benét of Washington, in a black satin three-quarters coat embroidered in gold, with a black tulle hat; Mrs. Hough, wife of the American Naval Attaché, in a blue charmeuse with white tulle bodice and a black tulle hat with aigrettes; Mrs. W. Haskell of Boston, wearing broadcloth with rivières cuffs of white Ottoman silk, and a black hat with huge white aigrettes; Mrs. W. Audenried of Philadelphia, in a taupe charmeuse with short coat of brocaded satin, with a black hat trimmed with Chantilly lace and aigrettes; Mrs. McClelland of Pittsburgh, in a mauve charmeuse, with white tulle chemisette embroidered in mauve and gold, and a tulle hat with tall white aigrettes; Mrs. Harry Kingsley of New York, wearing a white embroidered frock and a black hat trimmed with osprey plumes; Mrs. Walter Brant of Philadelphia, in black charmeuse with black and white embroidery, and a black hat trimmed with a lace butterfly, and Mrs. Van Rinkhousen, formerly Mrs. Robbins of New York, in black satin with tulle bodice, and a black picture hat with ostrich plumes.

WELCOMES OUR RIVALRY.

London Times Sees Consolation in America's Prowess in Sports.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 28.—The Times, in an editorial on American rivalry in sport, after reviewing the recent Anglo-American contests, says:

"Fired by our example, the world has learned to play games, until now we have on every hand not merely pupils, but competitors whom at our best we have to strain every effort to meet on equal terms; and it is appropriate that among them all, setting our own dominions aside, the people which matches up most evenly at the largest number of sports is the great English-speaking nation across the Atlantic which derives from us."

While expressing a gentle note of grief that English supremacy in some sports has passed for the moment to the United States, The Times finds consolation in the fact that, on the whole, honors are pretty evenly divided. "That they may long remain so must be the wish of all true lovers of sport in both countries, so that year after year, though we lose our golf championships and win back the polo cup, the games may be as close, as dependent upon an infinitesimal turn of luck, as they have been this year."

G. A. W. YOUNG DIVORCED.

English Court Grants a Decree to Wife of New York Stock Operator.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—A decree of divorce was entered here to-day against George Archibald W. Young, now a resident of New York. The court granted Mrs. Mary C. Young's petition on the grounds of cruelty and misconduct.

On the witness stand Mrs. Young said that her husband was a wealthy land owner in Yorkshire, where they were married in 1907. After the birth of their first child his manner changed. He used to abuse her, said their marriage was a mistake, and threatened to kill her. On one occasion in the stables he struck her on the head with a riding whip. In July of last year he left the country and went to America, and she was advised that he had been living in New York ever since.

Sir Samuel Evans asked what the respondent was doing in America. Mrs. Young replied that he was of independent means and was operating on the Stock Exchange.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

TOKIO, June 27.—Arthur Bailly-Blanchard, Chargé d'Affaires of the American Embassy, to-day gave a reception in honor of the baseball teams of the Keio University of Japan and the Leland Stanford, Jr., University of California. The members of the California team sail to-morrow on board the Nippon Maru for San Francisco.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 27.—Sixty Mongolian lamas are reported to have been burned to death in a pagoda at Kwei Hwacheng, in the Chinese Province of Shansi, on the border of Mongolia. According to the dispatch received here, they had barricaded themselves in the building against a number of Chinese pursuers.

BRANDS HUERTA AS AN ASSASSIN

Senator Fall Would Lift the Ban on Shipments of Arms to Mexico.

SAYS IT INSPIRES HATRED

Senator Smith Suggests Cession of Territory to Compensate Americans for Losses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—In a speech bitterly denouncing Provisional President Huerta of Mexico as a "traitorous and treacherous assassin," Senator Fall of New Mexico to-day argued for the repeal of the joint resolution permitting the President to forbid the shipment of arms and ammunition into that country. Senator Fall has large mining interests in Mexico, and is a member of the select committee headed by Senator William Alden Smith, appointed to investigate charges that American capitalists had financed both of the Mexican revolutions.

That committee has made no report, but Senator Fall said to-day that information received by the committee and from private sources which he dared not divulge had convinced him that no money had been sent from the United States to the revolutionists. The effect of the President's order preventing the shipment of arms, he said, had been to destroy the feeling of friendship for Americans that formerly prevailed.

That order, said Senator Fall, had always been in favor of one of the two contending factions. Mexicans realized, he said, that intervention was not contemplated, so that the feeling of animosity aroused by the restriction of shipments had been unrestrained by fear. American property, he said, had been ruthlessly destroyed, while the property of citizens of other countries had been scrupulously guarded.

Senator Fall said he believed the Madero revolt had been financed, in part at least, with $330,000 which Gustavo Madero had obtained by a bond issue, ostensibly to build the Mexico Central Railroad in Zacatecas.

By withholding exportations of arms to the revolutionists after Madero came into power, Mr. Fall said the United States had earned the enmity of 80 per cent. of the Mexican population, with the result that Americans there had been held for ransom and outraged.

Mr. Fall was interrupted by a suggestion from Senator Smith of Arizona. Mr. Smith said emphatically that depredations against Americans and the imperiling of American lives must cease. Admitting the inability of Mexico to pay pecuniary claims at this time, Mr. Smith suggested that all claims of Americans against Mexico be settled by the cession to the United States of some of Mexico's valuable mining lands along the northern frontier in the States of Coahuila, Nuevo Leon, and Tamaulipas.

At the request of Senator Bacon, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, the resolution was referred to that committee.

REBEL VICTORY AT ORTIZ.

Obregon Reports Capturing 39 Cannon and 30 Carloads of Ammunition.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 27.—Gen. Obregon, one of the rebel commanders at the battle of Ortiz, wired to the Constitutionalist junta to-day as follows:

"Battle ended at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning after seven days' fighting. Our forces captured 39 cannon and 5 machine guns from the Federals. We also captured 30 carloads of ammunition for field and machine guns. Several hundred Mauser rifles were thrown away by Ojeda's men in their flight. Ojeda's automobile was captured on the field, and we picked up the bodies of 200 Federals. We have a large number of wounded prisoners. Our losses are not yet known exactly."

TUCSON, Ariz., June 27.—In a wireless message sent from the United States cruiser Pittsburgh at Guaymas and relayed from San Diego, Francisco Garcia, the Federal Governor of Sonora, informed the Mexican Consul here that Gen. Ojeda had fallen back to Guaymas and was prepared to give the rebel State troops battle at that place.

MANY LEAVE VERA CRUZ.

Prominent Mexicans on Government Missions or Joining Rebels.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, June 27.—Great activity is being displayed by the Government these days, which apparently foresees a crisis in its fortunes. Each outgoing steamer carries many prominent persons, going either on Government missions or seeking affiliations with the rebels.

Gen. Mondragon, who left here on an American steamer, was subject to strict surveillance during his stay at this port. On the same boat departed Pedro Castillo, a cousin of the revolutionary Governor of Campeche. He went to Campeche to try to persuade his cousin to give up the fight.

Gen. Luis Torres, ex-Governor of the State of Sonora, sailed on a Spanish steamer this afternoon. He goes to Arizona, by way of Havana and Texas, to take charge of the Government forces near the American border.

DIAZ DENIES PLOTTING.

Huerta, Too, Says His Associate Has Not Conspired Against Him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—A sensational story representing Gen. Felix Diaz as being in a plot against Gen. Victoriano Huerta, Provisional President of the Mexican Republic, with whom he co-operated after the downfall of Francisco I. Madero, Jr., was condemned to-night as a complete fabrication.

Denial of the story was made not only by Gen. Diaz, but also by President Huerta. It was asserted that the absence of Gen. Mondragon precluded the possibility of such a plot.

MOORE AND McLEAN WIN.

Former Takes Three Firsts at Olympia Horse Show, Latter a Second.

LONDON, June 27.—More first prizes were captured to-day by Judge W. H. Moore of New York at the International Horse Show at Olympia.

In Class 29, for pairs of harness horses exceeding 16 hands, his Robin Hood and Wallenstein were the winners, while in Class 36, for four-in-hand teams over 14 and not exceeding 15.2 hands, his team of bays outclassed the other competitors and received Hatchett's Challenge Cup.

In the judging in the evening Edward B. McLean of Washington took second prize with Pride o' Prides and Oakwood and Judge Moore's Marcel and Burgomaster third in the event for pairs of harness horses over 15.2 hands and not exceeding 16 hands.

Judge Moore again took the blue ribbon when his Lady Seaton was adjudged the best animal in the class for selected single harness horses over 15 hands and not exceeding 15.2 hands.

POINCARE STARTS HOME.

King George and His Court at Station to See Him Off.

LONDON, June 27.—President Raymond Poincaré, after being the guest of King George and the British nation since Tuesday, left this morning for France amid a great display of cordial enthusiasm. King George, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, and his son, Prince Arthur of Connaught, together with a brilliant assemblage of Court dignitaries, Cabinet Ministers, military and naval officers, gathered at Victoria station to bid him farewell.

Great crowds lined the streets from York House to the station and loudly acclaimed the President as he passed, for during his short stay he had made himself extremely popular.

The royal train placed at his disposal by the King took him to Dover, where he embarked on a French warship amid deafening salutes from a fleet of twenty-six powerful British and French warships dressed in rainbow fashion, with the French and British colors intertwined. Several of the British battleships acted as an escort to the President across the Channel.

PLEASED BY EMBASSY PLAN.

King Alfonso Sees in It the Cementing of Spanish-American Amity.

MADRID, Spain, June 27.—"King Alfonso," said the Spanish Premier, Count Romanones in an interview to-day, "has received with much favor the proposal to raise the United States Legation at Madrid to the rank of an embassy. His Majesty wishes thus to cement the friendship existing between the two nations.

"Negotiations for the change in the diplomatic post which were started last Winter between the Marquis de la Vega Inclan, Spanish Commissioner to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and the then President of the United States, Mr. Taft, are now being continued with President Wilson, and Spain is taking a particular interest in seeing that the change is accomplished."

A bill raising the rank of the diplomatic post at Madrid to an embassy was passed by the United States Senate on June 18.

THE KEYNOTE

Referring to the magnificent structure, designed by Mr. Cass Gilbert, architect (Messrs. Garber & Woodward of Cincinnati, Associate Architects), and recently completed by us for the Union Central Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, The Cincinnati Enquirer says:

"System—organization, in fact—must be and is the keynote to an undertaking of this character, and when one remembers that as many as ten distinct buildings in many different cities were under construction at the same time as the Union Central Building was being erected, many of them almost as big and some greater still, one cannot help but applaud the nation and country whose wealth fosters such undertakings and requires an institution of such magnitude as The Thompson-Starrett Company."

It is true that system and organization enabled us to finish this building—the fifth largest in the world and the tallest in this country outside of New York—in contract time, just as it is system and organization which have made The Union Central Life Insurance Company, which is the Owner of this great enterprise, the seventh largest life insurance company on the American Continent.

CALLS FOR MELLEN IN WRECK INQUEST

Coroner Phelan Resolves to Learn Duties of New Haven Officials.

OTHER OFFICERS RETICENT

Decline to Help Fix Blame for Stamford Disaster—Effect on Westport Case Feared.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, June 27.—Because the man next in rank to President Mellen refused to answer questions about the management and control of the New Haven road to-day, Mr. Mellen was summoned by Coroner Phelan to attend the next session of the inquest into the cause of the wreck of the westbound Boston Express at Stamford on June 12, in which six persons were killed and a score injured. The President was ordered to produce the original of every contract the road had made in the last eighteen months for locomotives, brake shoes, cars, or other equipment, and any other document he might have which defined his duties and those of his immediate subordinates. The Coroner also summoned the President's secretary, and ordered him to produce the minutes of meetings of the Board of Directors and other papers in which authority might have been delegated to a subordinate.

No subpoena was issued for Mr. Mellen, but the invitation for him to attend was put practically in the form of a command. Benjamin I. Spock, the company's attorney, on whose advice all subordinate officials had refused to give information wanted by the Coroner, pleaded with Mr. Phelan not to issue a subpoena for the President. He was asked if he would see that Mr. Mellen appeared without a subpoena. He promised to tell the Coroner at once if Mr. Mellen should decline to do so, so a subpoena might issue before the next session of the inquest, which was set for 10 A. M. Tuesday.

Mr. Mellen said he would respond to a summons from the Coroner, and Mr. Phelan recalled that promise to Mr. Spock.

Feared Effect on Westport Case.

The conflict between the railroad lawyers and Coroner Phelan hinged on the almost hidden fact that there had been at the elbow of the Coroner at every session a representative of the State's Attorney. Six officials of the road, including President Mellen, will go to trial in September on indictments found for negligence in connection with the Westport wreck. It was on the report of Coroner Phelan that the indictments were found. The prosecution will be in charge of the office whose representative has sat with the Coroner through the present investigation. The railroad lawyers profess to see in the alliance between the Coroner and the State's Attorney a movement whereby the prosecutor would get data impossible to obtain from witnesses under the rules of court procedure—rules not binding on the Coroner. The burden on the State in the September trials will be to prove that certain officials were charged with certain duties. The questions which all witnesses refused to answer to-day had to do with the duties assigned to them.

Coroner Phelan asked J. F. Berry, company attorney, if he had influenced General Manager Bardo to answer questions. Mr. Spock replied he would ask all New Haven officials to refuse to answer questions about the authority they held.

"I think we have produced all the witnesses you have asked for," Mr. Spock continued, "and we have even brought here from without your jurisdiction the Vice President of the road, Mr. Whaley, and Mr. Fabian, who purchases our supplies. We produced them to be fair with you. There has been a suggestion that you have not been disposed to be fair to the company. Both you and I have tried to dispel that notion, and it would be unfortunate if you should press any question that would tend to make people think you were unfair.

"You don't have to point out individuals who you think may have been guilty of negligence. You will do your duty by merely finding the railroad, as a corporation, guilty of negligence, and then you can leave it to the State's Attorney to point out Mr. A and Mr. B as guilty."

Phelan Demands the Facts.

The Coroner replied that he considered he couldn't get along without learning who controlled the New Haven organization, because he might have to fix the responsibility for the wreck on the man who bought Engine 1,338 and the man who permitted the cars making up the train to leave a terminal.

Elbert R. Whaley, Vice President, was sworn. He refused to testify as to his duties. Coroner Phelan said the privilege to refuse to answer was extended to persons so they might decline to testify if they were fearful they would incriminate themselves.

"Are you afraid you might incriminate yourself?" asked the Coroner. Mr. Whaley looked disconcerted.

"No, I am not," he said, "but on advice of counsel I refuse to testify, for fear it might injure others now under indictment." Coroner Phelan then said he would call every official of the road before him and see if each of them was so fearful of incriminating himself that he would refuse to testify.

"And will you convey my compliments to President Mellen," the Coroner went on, turning to Mr. Spock, "and ask him if it will be convenient—and I hope it will be convenient—for him to come here next Tuesday? I prefer to point out the very individuals who may be guilty, rather than to point to the railroad corporation as guilty, if it should turn out that blame is to be fixed anywhere within the railroad organization."

Turning to Mr. Whaley, the Coroner asked what he thought, as a member of the public, of a car like the Skylark—whether he thought such a car belonged in the equipment of a modern express train. Mr. Whaley admitted he would rather ride in a steel car and that he considered the steel car the standard car of the future.

Harry A. Fabian of Boston, the road's purchasing agent, told how he came to buy engine 1,338. He said he received orders to buy engines of that type, but he would not tell who gave him the orders. He refused to tell whether any third person directed him as to his duties, but he worked in a comment that it was everybody's business to "roast" the purchasing agent, and that all did it.

Six inventors of automatic stop systems testified they never would undertake to stop a train in the space Charles J. Doherty, engineer of the fatal locomotive, had between the distance and home signals at Stamford. They insisted that to make their automatic systems effective they would have to move the distance signal back from 700 to 800 feet from the point where it stood—1,800 feet from the home signal.

COHALAN WILL TESTIFY.

Said to be Anxious to Answer Accusations Before Legislature.

A representative of the District Attorney's office of this county may attend the investigation at Albany into the charges brought by John Connolly against Justice Cohalan. Howard Townsend, Chairman of the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, called on District Attorney Whitman yesterday and suggested that it might be advisable for his office to be represented.

Justice Cohalan himself will take the stand, it was said yesterday by a close friend.

"The Justice," he said, "is not only willing but anxious to appear before the Legislative committee, and it was for that reason, following precedent, that he refused to submit to an examination before the Bar Association. He believes that organization has no standing in this matter at all, and insisted that the Governor ought to lay it before the Legislature, which under the State Constitution has ample powers to inquire into charges against the Supreme Court Justices.

"Justice Cohalan has nothing to hide, and he will go before the committee with all the evidence necessary for his complete vindication."

In addition to John B. Stanchfield and William Travers Jerome the Justice will be represented at Albany by John Quinn. Mr. Quinn sent out yesterday a statement denying that in accepting a retainer from the Justice he was in any way selected as being close to Charles F. Murphy.

"I shall be no more Mr. Murphy's representative or adviser," he said, "than William D. Guthrie will be the representative or adviser of John A. Connolly. Mr. Guthrie is counsel for the Bar Association."

CONFER ON COURT HOUSE.

Justices Will Consider Lowell Plan with Board of Estimate.

The members of the Court House Board conferred with the Justices on the Court House Committee of the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon and endeavored to persuade them that the circular design prepared by Guy Lowell should be accepted. The discussion lasted for more than an hour and it was agreed finally that the Justices and the Board of Estimate should each name a sub-committee of two members to go over the plan in an endeavor to settle the points in dispute.

Justices Dugro, Greenbaum, Amend, and Page were the members of the Supreme Court committee and they met these members of the Court House Board: L. Laflin Kellogg, Edward M. Grout, and E. Clifford Potter. Controller Prendergast attended the meeting to represent the Board of Estimate. Guy Lowell was present to defend his plan, with Walter S. Cook, consulting architect of the Court House Board, and Frank Miles Day of Philadelphia, a member of the jury of award which selected the plan.

Mr. Lowell, while advocating his original design, said that it could be altered in many details. He asserted that the circular form of the building, with its annular court as wide as some of the downtown streets, would provide all the ventilation and illumination needed.

The next conference between the Court House Board, the Justices, and the Board of Estimate's sub-committee will be held next week.

FOR AN OPEN-AIR SCHOOL.

Tuberculosis Preventorium Asks Contributions for New Building.

The authorities of the Tuberculosis Preventorium at Farmingdale, N. J., have decided to add an open-air school to its buildings, so that children taken from New York tenement houses in incipient stages of the disease may continue their school work.

They have found that $10,000 will be needed for the work. Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Felix M. Warburg, and others have subscribed $4,000, and Jacob H. Schiff has offered another $1,000 on condition that the entire amount is obtained in time. The Directors have appealed to the public for $5,000. Checks may be sent to Alexander S. Webb, Treasurer, care of the Academy of Medicine, at 17 West Forty-third Street.

BEGIN AN INQUIRY INTO NEW HAVEN

Committee of Stockholders Assured by Management of Getting All Information Desired.

BOOKS AT ITS DISPOSAL

Experts to be Employed and Facts and Figures Weighed — Conference with Directors.

The affairs of the New Haven Railroad, operating as well as financial, its physical condition, and the recent fatal accidents, are all to be thoroughly investigated by the Stockholders' Protective Committee, according to its Chairman, ex-Secretary of the Navy George von Lengerke Meyer. Mr. Meyer made his statement yesterday afternoon at the end of a conference between a sub-committee headed by himself and a sub-committee of the Directors at the Grand Central Station.

The conference was arranged at the request of Mr. Meyer with a view to ascertaining whether the railroad officials would place the facts and figures at the disposal of his committee. As a sub-committee the New Haven Directors named the members of the Executive Committee and Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Those who were present on behalf of the management were President Charles S. Mellen, J. P. Morgan, William Rockefeller, Samuel Rea, J. S. Hemingway, Edward Milligan, Charles F. Brooker, President of the American Brass Company; Sidney W. Winslow, President of the United Shoe Machinery Company, and Mr. Vail. Mr. Meyer's associates were Charles A. Stone of Stone & Webster, Eugene V. R. Thayer, President of the Merchants' National Bank of Boston; Eli W. Whitney of New Haven, and F. W. Matteson of Providence.

"I stated to the Directors' Committee," said Mr. Meyer afterward, "that we had been appointed to confer with them in order to ascertain if we should have put at our disposal all the information desired, figures and facts, and asked in what spirit our requests would be received. The President, representing the Executive Committee, stated that we should have placed at our disposal the books and accounts, and every opportunity would be granted us to gain information, whatever we might desire and without any restrictions. We shall report to our full committee at a meeting called for Monday next, in Boston, at 10 o'clock.

"The rest of our talk was all informal, because we were not prepared to make any criticism or recommendations until we have studied the situation intelligently, and have got certain facts and figures which will be put at our disposal. That may take some little time. It is not a simple proposition."

"Are those facts and figures as to the finances?"

"Everything," replied Mr. Meyer. "Everything is to be inquired into in connection with the management and the operation. In order to get at the physical condition of the road the accounts must be examined."

"Does that mean that you are going to put experts on the books?"

"It may mean so: That is for the full committee to decide when our report is made to it."

Asked whether the recent accidents were taken up at the conference, Mr. Meyer said:

"No, no details were taken up. They have given us all the opportunities which we have asked for, and so we will have to organize new and get to work. To get hold of all the information necessary is not a question of a few days; it may be weeks; it is a matter of some time.

"I feel that we are approaching this question with an open mind, not prejudiced for or against. We have asked for a sub-committee of the Executive Committee so that we could meet from time to time when desired without the whole Executive Committee coming together, which would be impossible in Summer, as it is composed of nine or ten members, and they have agreed to this."

Mr. Meyer said his proxies did not include those of J. P. Morgan & Co., or the Pennsylvania Railroad, adding that Mr. Morgan and President Rea of the Pennsylvania were members of the New Haven's Executive Committee. He said his committee had received proxies for between 250,000 and 300,000 shares or about 20 per cent. of the outstanding stock, and that proxies were coming in at the rate of 5,000 shares a day, although no supplemental call had been issued.

ALPHA DELTA PHI CUTS CITY COLLEGE

Finds It "Lacking in Fertility Because the Hebraic Element Is Greatly in Excess."

OVERRULES INVESTIGATORS

Leading Alumni Denounce the Action and Some Resign from the Alpha Delta Phi Club.

Alpha Delta Phi, one of the largest and oldest fraternities of the country and numbering among its members many well-known men, has withdrawn the charter from its Manhattan Chapter at the College of the City of New York on the ground that that college is lacking in "fertility as a field for Alpha Delta Phi" because at the College of the City of New York "the Hebraic element is greatly in excess." The chapter of the fraternity at the college is one of the oldest of the fraternity, having been in existence nearly fifty-nine years, and has included some of the most prominent members of the fraternity anywhere in the country. Many of them, angered at the discrimination against their chapter, have since resigned from the Alpha Delta Phi Club in this city.

The agitation leading to the suspension of the charter of the Manhattan Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi began about a year ago, it was learned yesterday, when an inquiry into conditions at the College of the City of New York was started by a committee consisting of the nine Associated Councillors of the fraternity, with a view to finding out if it was desirable to continue the charter of the chapter there.

Briefs were filed before this committee by counsel for the Manhattan Chapter, consisting of these members of the chapter: Nelson S. Spencer, '75; Everett P. Wheeler, '56; Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks, '79, and Talbot W. Sprague, '03, and on the other hand by George W. Schurman and Francis S. Hutchins as special investigators. As a result of the inquiry, the committee, in a report of 100 pages, voted 5 to 4 against the suspension of the charter. Notwithstanding the majority report of the committee, however, the Council of Alpha Delta Phi decided to submit the matter to the several chapters for settlement, and in May last the twenty-five chapters, by a four-fifths vote, suspended the Manhattan Chapter's charter, with the statements given above. The suspension of the charter, it was explained yesterday, is virtually an annulment, and no attempt will ever be made for reinstatement.

Many of the chapters that range up in opposition to the Manhattan Chapter were founded by that chapter in 1855, and owed their existence to its favor. The entire agitation, according to members of the Manhattan Chapter, seemed to emanate from graduates of recent years of chapters of the fraternity in other colleges.

Spirit of College the Same.

In answer to the charge that the College of the City of New York had ceased to be a "fertile field" for the fraternity, owing to the preponderance of Jewish students there, counsel for the Manhattan Chapter insisted that the spirit of the college had not changed on this account, nor the institution become a less desirable centre for a chapter of the fraternity.

"The character of the students at the College of the City of New York," said Nelson S. Spencer yesterday, "has always been the same, many of them being immigrants or the children of immigrants. Forty years ago there were many Irish and Germans there; now there are Russian and Italian immigrants, and others. The boys who went out from the College of the City of New York always represented either immediate immigrants or children of immigrants. There was always a large percentage of Jewish students there. In my time, thirty-eight years ago, there were about 40 per cent. To-day that percentage has grown to about 65 per cent. But the actual number of non-Jewish students there to-day is far larger than formerly."

Inquiry yesterday developed the rather odd circumstance that, whereas the Manhattan Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi had been suspended by the fraternity because of the large number of Jewish students at the College of the City of New York, that chapter itself contains only three Jewish members; that only three Jews were elected to membership in it in the last forty years, and none of them since 1878. These three Jewish members of the Manhattan Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi, it was said yesterday, were Prof. Adolph Werner, head of the German Department at the college; E. Yancey Cohen, and Charles I. Henry.

A brief presented by counsel for the chapter, and by Mr. Spencer yesterday, made this answer:

> There are 850 non-Jewish members of the student body at the college, from which eligible members of the chapter could be selected; and that is a larger number than ever before in the history of the college. Moreover, it is a larger number than the student body of most of the smaller colleges to-day.

Mr. Spencer explained that the failure of the Manhattan Chapter itself to elect more than three Jews to membership in the last forty years was due to the fact that the chapter recognized that there was a feeling in other chapters against the election of Jews, and the Manhattan Chapter deferred to this feeling. There was, he said, no definite rule against the admission of Jews to membership in the fraternity, but only a very small percenutage of Jews was elected in any of its chapters. Nevertheless, he said, while deferring to the accepted custom, the members of the Manhattan Chapter made no difference between Jews and other students in their friendships and associations.

New $16,000 House.

As proof that the Manhattan Chapter, far from being in a barren field for fraternity work, was in a most flourishing condition, it was pointed out that in the past three years its active membership, now nineteen, exceeded that of former years, and, owing to its healthy growth, a chapter house was bought and furnished for its members at a cost of $16,000 at 417 West 143d Street in 1911. This was done through the Manhattan Society, and through the same society and alumni members of the chapter, it was said yesterday, the organization at the College of the City of New York will be continued, despite the withdrawal of its Alpha Delta Phi chapter. In the words of Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks, an alumnus of the chapter, "the organization will be continued in some form or other with the purpose and ideals we conceived to be those of the original Alpha Delta Phi fraternity."

In discussing City College as a proper place for a fraternity of the highest ideals, Everett P. Wheeler said:

"I feel that I am in a position to speak with considerable authority as to the high rank of City College and its suitability for a chapter of a fraternity. There is no better place anywhere for a group of real Americans to do great work and achieve fine results. Dr. Gilman of Johns Hopkins was my father-in-law, Dean Griffin my cousin. My father was a Dartmouth man and Dartmouth has given me a degree. I have been associated with many other colleges. So I feel in a position to judge City College. Its spirit is as zealous and the students and the Faculty are as much in earnest as any in the country. The West Point men who preceded Dr. Finley in the administration provided the college with a broad foundation. He has broadened it. Dr. Finley himself is a great man and a fine administrator."

"Boyish," Says Finley.

President John H. Finley, who is not a fraternity man, said:

"I am disappointed not because of the withdrawal of the chapter from the college, (have not the slightest objection to that in itself,) but because of the spirit shown by those who are responsible for this action. They do not appreciate what they are doing. I know the heroic struggles of the young men here, the fine idealism which prevails among them, the unmatched intellectual eagerness; and I am disposed to believe that the action taken reflects rather upon the present standards of the fraternity, which has such a splendid past, than upon the college. It would certainly be unfortunate for our country if any considerable body of young men were going out into its citizenship from our colleges with such a spirit and attitude as this action intimates. Men of other colleges have written to me or spoken to me deploring what has been done even more than I. For the whole thing is boyish, and I cannot take it very seriously. When these same boys come to enter upon the obligations of maturity alongside those from whom their conventions now separate them I am sure they will show a finer spirit."

It was said yesterday that nearly six-sevenths of the seventy alumni members of the Manhattan chapter of Alpha Delta Phi have, since the withdrawal of its charter, resigned from the Alpha Delta Phi Club at 136 West Forty-fourth Street. A list of these could not be obtained there yesterday, but included in the number were said to be Nelson .. Spencer, Everett P. Wheeler, Supreme Court Justice Bartow S. Weeks and Prof. Adolph Werner, who was one of the charter members. The course of these alumni members was explained by one of them who said:

"If the fraternity does not care to have my chapter associate with its members, I do not care to associate with them either."

ARCH DRUID DISEMBARKS.

Head of Welsh Arts Comes Here to Attend Pittsburgh Eistedfod.

Arch Druid Dyfed of Wales arrived yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania to preside over the Eistedfod at Pittsburgh, which will begin on July 2 and last for a week. Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was to have come on the Mauretania with the Arch Druid, but had to cancel the engagement on account of the pressure of public affairs in London. Capt. E. J. Roberts, Marine Superintendent of the Cunard Line, who was at the gangway with several members of the St. David's Society, to greet him, said that the Arch Druid was elected on account of his knowledge of Welsh art, poetry, folk lore, and the ancient history of Wales, from the days of the Druids.

Neither Purser Graham, Chief Steward Jones, or Surgeon Jones of the Mauretania, knew that the head of Welsh religion, arts, and literature was a passenger, as he was on the first cabin list as E. F. Rees, his family name. He left for Pittsburgh last night.

THREE FIREMEN OVERCOME.

Fire in Basement of Fifth Avenue Jewelers' Establishment.

Three firemen were overcome by smoke and gas fumes last night at a fire that started from some unknown cause, and for a while gave some trouble in the basement of the building at Forty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue, occupied by Udal & Ballou, jewelers. The blaze was in a quantity of excelsior and packing boxes and burned briskly. Connections in the gas pipes were melted and escaping gas threatened further trouble. The gas was cut off, however, and the firemen succeeded in drowning the flames before they spread. The damage was slight.

The firemen overcome were Costello and Hauser of Truck 4 and Finnegan of Hook and Ladder 4. They were led groping blindly from the basement by Firemen McGrain and Gardiner of Engine Company 65 and revived soon after being taken into the fresh air.

The building in which the fire occurred is owned by R. M. Haan.

Tennessee to Pay Notes on July 1.

The Funding Board of the State of Tennessee announced yesterday that the principal and interest of $9,222,000 3 per cent. settlement bonds, which mature on July 1, would be paid at the National Park Bank in this city. Funds to provide for these bonds were obtained through the sale to a syndicate headed by Potter, Choate & Prentice and Harris, Forbes & Co. of one-year 5 per cent. notes.

SURROGATE REFUSES TO STOP STALLO CASE

Denies Motion to Sidetrack Application to End Metropolitan Administration.

COUNSEL CHARGES FRAUD

Cohalan Reserves Decision on Surrogate Court Issue, but Refuses to Wait for Supreme Court.

Ex-Judge Nash Rockwood of Saratoga County appeared before Surrogate Cohalan yesterday to prosecute a motion to remove the Metropolitan Trust Company as administrator of the estate of Alexander McDonald. Mr. Rockwood represented the Princess Michel Murat, who was Helena McDonald Stallo, and her sister, Laura McDonald Stallo.

John G. Milburn, representing the trust company, asked the Surrogate to hold up action on the application for removal, pending the trial of a proceeding for an accounting now on foot in the Supreme Court. Among the issues involved in the case were the liability of the trust company for the sale of Standard Oil stock below its sale value in the market on a note which Edmund K. Stallo, father of the two young women, said Gen. Brayton Ives had promised to renew, and the ownership of some 10,000 shares of stock in the reorganized New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago Railroad, for which the note had been given as security.

Mr. Milburn said that the only way to settle these questions was by a suit in some court of competent jurisdiction. Surrogate Cohalan said that he agreed with this view, but asserted his opinion that some disinterested party, as administrator, should have charge of the prosecution of the suit.

Surrogate Cohalan asked whether the trust company did not dispute the petitioner's contention about the alleged agreement to renew the $2,700,000 note. Mr. Milburn said it did.

"Then," observed the Surrogate, "the Metropolitan Company and Ives are trying to prove that the Metropolitan Company is against the interests of these Stallo young women. As the Surrogate, I don't see how the Metropolitan Company can continue to act as administrator under the circumstances. I am deciding this on your own statement, Mr. Milburn. I will deny the motion to defer this application pending the determination of the suit in the Supreme Court."

Surrogate Cohalan reserved decision on the main question of the company's removal as administrator.

Mr. Rockwood pleaded that the Surrogate should take quick action on the petition. He charged that some $2,000,000 had been taken from the funds belonging to the young women, and said:

"This is an action for conversion, for the illegal and fraudulent conspiracy of depriving these young women of their securities, and when this action comes to trial, it should be tried before a jury on the charge of fraud, conspiracy, and conversion. It is not the question of an accounting. We cannot agree to a single statement they make. We cannot agree that Ives was actuated by any bona fide intention. We cannot agree that he was ever doing anything but try to get all he could from these young girls."

Mr. Milburn said that Mr. Rockwood's language was unwarranted, and would be answered in affidavits to be filed later.

The Friendly Enemy

This dramatic story of slum life presents the inarticulate groping after better things and the active rebellion against things as they are. The story is full of tender interest. Its pathos is gripping, its humor irresistible. The emotional range is as astounding as that in Dickens' depictions of the poor, but the spirit with which the story is infused is more distinctly modern.

From widely scattered sources—travels, ethnography, folk-lore, studies in the evolution of the law, morals, etc., and personal observation—the author has collected evidence on such problems as the economic basis of family life, the position of the wife, promiscuity, group-marriage, divorce, sex taboos, procreation myths, the couvade; primitive, moral, and vocational instruction; initiations, puberty ceremonies, etc. The fact that much of primitive education was genuine social education is strongly emphasized.

The wisdom of the founders of the Republic is disputed and the political ideas which they repudiated are urged for approval."

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1913.

EVOLUTION OF RAILWAY RATE REGULATION.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to reconsider its refusal to allow railways to raise their rates marks the turn of the tide of opinion on this important subject. For a generation regulation has meant reduction of rates. The education of the Commission has now so far progressed that it expresses its open-mindedness toward the idea that it may be necessary sometimes to regulate rates upward. It will come to many as a novel thought to be expressed by the Commission, although perhaps familiar enough from the railways. It is an even greater novelty to find that the idea has found entrance into the minds of shippers. On the same day that the Commission's decision was published Mr. J. OGDEN ARMOUR of Chicago said: "All "rates on railroads should be increased, "and at once." Mr. CLAFLIN has expressed the same opinion on behalf of New York and Mr. SIMMONS on behalf of St. Louis. Each represents a different line of trade, and there are many like minded with them.

There are difficulties, of course. The Commission itself is divided, five to two. The dissentients find no warrant for the Commission's expression of moot opinions on a matter over which it has no lawful authority and which is not before the Commission. The shippers must have notice of any specific rate change, and notice of a general advance is no notice at all. If these obstacles were out of the way the Commission could not order any rate to be raised. The view prevailed that the conditions called for sweeping technicalities aside and considering the subject as a whole and fundamentally. The door thus seems to be opened for considering more than the law on the subject, and in the light of reason. The idea that regulation and reduction were the same thing has heretofore possessed the minds of both the Courts and the Commission, with the result that there is a series of decisions upon where the line must be drawn against rates which are unreasonable because confiscatory or discriminatory. The prevention of confiscation or discrimination is not a declaration of law for the regulation of profits in the railway business, and especially not for the regulation of railway profits in relation to profits in other businesses. This is the phase of the subject which now is opened.

It may be objected that Courts and Commissions cannot go into the regulation of the relation of profits. Not for that reason will the relation of profits go unregulated. It is now under process of regulation of a strenuous sort, and with effect upon the transportation business which cannot escape attention. The Railway Supply Association has published figures showing that in 1912 the issue of railway securities was the lowest since 1903, or 19 per cent. of all securities issued, against 62 per cent. of all in 1909. Non-railway securities issued in 1912 reached the largest total within the same period, or four times the amount of railway securities issued in that year. Here is a diversion of investment which is regulating the development of railways irrespective of what Courts or Commissions may decide about the rates. If this movement of capital away from railways is not checked the supply of railway facilities will be insufficient, and shippers who cannot get their business moved will lose in profits more than they ever lost by any rates that ever were charged, and incomparably more than the difference between the rates they pay and the rates the railways need. The effect of making regulation spell reduction has been to serve notice that the supply of railways was excessive. The willingness of the Commission to make regulation spell increase serves notice that more money must be had if the railways are going to move the country's business.

That the country's business should not be moved would be an incredible calamity. It happened in 1906 and preceded the events of 1907, to which it was related. A check to railway exchanges is comparable to a check to bank exchanges. Either can cause the other, and both customarily occur together. These considerations are suggested because they are at the bottom of the business, and can be appreciated by many who are lost in the mazes of the law. And the law, after all, is not the last word on commercial affairs. It is at least as necessary to consider the finances and the economics of the railway rate question as the law, however the Courts and the Commissions may confine themselves to the law, and make a pretty mess of it. The law may be muddled, but finance and economics are crystal clear, and without the aid of Judges or Sheriffs enforce themselves upon all concerned.

THE AMBASSADOR AT BERLIN.

It was a pleasing coincidence that the Hon. JAMES W. GERARD received the announcement of his appointment to be Ambassador at Berlin while he was crossing the Atlantic on the Imperator, a German steamship, bound for Germany. The Marconi wireless has performed no more delicate and agreeable service. Judge GERARD will be persona grata at the Kaiser's Court. He has the qualities best appreciated in an American Ambassador these days, social distinction, suavity of manner, knowledge of the world. His long legal training, also, should be of service. While he may not see fit to live quite up to the traditions established by some of his predecessors, socially speaking, the appointment will certainly be satisfactory to the large number of Americans who believe that our representatives in foreign capitals should be pecuniarily able to entertain in the manner of the diplomats of European countries.

Whatever international complications may arise, we may feel sure that the interests of the United States will be well looked after in Berlin while Judge GERARD is Ambassador. He is a man of tact, and particularly one accustomed to discretion in speech. There has been ample proof, since the appointment was announced, that he has a host of friends to whom the announcement has been gratifying.

DARKENING COUNSEL.

Dissenting from the opinion expressed by THE TIMES that the new Banking and Currency bill in some respects takes us back to the dark ages, and that it establishes political control over the banking business of the country in a manner of which no example can be found in other great commercial nations, our neighbor The World makes the following observations:

> We are indebted to Mr. ALDRICH himself for reminding the American people:
>
> 1. That the Bank of France is directed by a Governor and Deputy Governors appointed by the President of the republic, and that the representatives of the owners have "functions of limited importance."
> 2. That the Bank of Germany is directed by officers appointed by the Emperor, and that the associated committee elected by stockholders has only "limited advisory powers."
> 3. That neither the Governor nor any of the Directors of the Bank of England is a banker in the technical sense of the word.

In order that its readers might not be left in the black midnight of ignorance concerning these matters, our neighbor should have added that the special control which the French Government and the German Government may or do exercise over the Bank of France and the Imperial Bank of Germany is limited to those institutions and does not extend to the other great banking institutions of the French Republic and the German Empire, respectively. But it is intended that our Federal Reserve Board shall have the full power of control over all the banks of the country, since it is in contemplation that not only national banks but State banks and trust companies will enter the system. The great discount banks of France are competitors of the Bank of France; their affairs are managed by bankers, representatives of the owners of the banks; and their daily operations are independent of Government meddling. This is equally true of the great German credit banks, and the few and not very important banks that still retain the privilege of note issue are subject to special control only in regard to that function. Moreover, most of the great provincial banks throughout Germany are associated in a sort of group system with some one of the great Berlin joint-stock banks, establishing a sort of community of interest and greatly increasing their banking power by this kind of co-operation. In this country these groups would be called the head, body, and members of the Money Trust.

It is further to be noted, and the point is an important one, that the men who direct the affairs of the Imperial German Bank are not named on the recommendation of a Senator having a political friend who has been serviceable to him. The Chancellor of the Empire is at the head of the management, but the President, Vice President, and the members of the Directorate are appointed for life by the Emperor upon the nomination of the Bundesrath. So far from being politicians, these men have become and are of necessity bankers, and nothing but bankers. The part taken by the shareholders in the management of the bank is, it is true, limited, but the Central Committee of fifteen members representing the shareholders meets each month and scrutinizes the reports of the business laid before it by the Government Directors; the expert opinion of this committee is consulted by the Directors as to the fixing of the discount rate and the limiting of loans upon collateral; and the amount of securities that may be purchased for the account of the bank is fixed with the consent of this Central Committee; three of its members attend all sittings of the Directorate, where they exercise advisory powers, and their consent must be given to certain transactions with the Treasurer of the Empire and the Federal States. Thus it will be seen that the shareholders of the bank have a great deal to say about its management. But the Government-appointed Directorate of the Imperial Bank is no more political than our Supreme Court is political.

It is the custom of the General Court of Proprietors of the Bank of England, as was pointed out by Mr. BAGEHOT forty years ago, not to choose Directors "from the ranks of the other bankers." It is also true that these Directors are generally taken from merchant firms and from houses engaged in the acceptance business, so that they have qualifying knowledge for their duties. They are not chosen for political or party reasons. The boards of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, and the Imperial Bank of Germany are not subject to change with every election. Under the plan now under consideration at Washington the control of the banking business of the country will be one of the prizes to be fought for in each Presidential election; the old board will go out, a new board will be appointed, and banking policy would change as the policy of the Administration changed. We adhere to the opinion that this is going back to the dark ages.

THE WRONG COURSE AND THE RIGHT.

In prohibiting a course of lectures on sex hygiene in the public schools the Chicago Board of Education is only obeying the mandate of a large majority of the citizens who pay the school taxes. The advocates of the proposed new policy argue that as children are not properly instructed as to important facts of human life at home, the free schools should repair the deficiency. The citizens who have been overwhelming the Board of Education with protests by mail and telephone evidently think that the introduction of such subjects in the schools would make a bad matter worse. We believe the citizens are right. Lectures in the schools cannot take the place of home training in this matter. Obviously, Chicago citizens are now awake to the importance of the subject, however, and we may hope that more of them will realize their duty to their children hereafter. The neglect of duty in regard to the moral and hygienic training of children is one of the disheartening phenomena of American civilization. The blame does not wholly rest with the present generation or its immediate predecessors; false modesty, inexcusable reticence in regard to physical matters, distinguished our forefathers. But in the old days there was strict religious training to offset the ignorance and indifference in homes.

No worse plan could be devised, however, to set the rising generation on the right path than to make the facts of sex hygiene subjects of common talk among schoolboys and schoolgirls. The recent widely published revelations touching the traffic in vice has already had a demoralizing effect which helps to counteract any good results accomplished. Officious meddlers of both sexes have continued to get a great deal of self-advertisement as moral leaders. The barriers of polite reticence have been broken down and old-fashioned folks, whose early education was not defective, are frequently shocked by the turns of dinner table conversation. A sort of publicity has been given to evil subjects and inherited disease, which, while it assuredly lowers the tone of social intercourse, quite as surely will not tend to improve morals or the public health. Society at large needs a new Chrysostom to correct its latest vagaries.

The citizens of Chicago have done well to prevent lectures by an "advanced" woman to boys and girls on subjects which ought not to be talked of to children assembled in public. But they will do ill if they do not take the matter in their own hands, put their houses in order, and start their children on life's journey properly equipped to meet its perils. This applies to all American parents.

AMERICA AND PEACE.

Secretary BRYAN announces that eighteen Governments have now accepted in principle the proposal of the United States to submit all differences to a commission of inquiry before pronouncing them incapable of peaceful settlement, the latest assenting Government being the Spanish. No Government has, however, as yet offered to open negotiations. Meanwhile the United States Department of State has formed its tentative plan for the composition of the commissions of inquiry. Each party to a treaty of this sort is to name two of its own citizens and two Commissioners selected from other nationalities, and the fifth member of the commission is to be chosen jointly by the two Governments. It is the hope of Mr. BRYAN that each commission thus formed will be a continuing body prepared to take cognizance of whatever matters may arise for its study.

The element of continuity is an important one. The work of inquiry would undoubtedly gain in efficiency with the experience of the Commissioners engaged in it; these would naturally develop guiding principles in each inquiry that might be of use in subsequent ones, and as the results of their labors would have added weight with each successful effort, there would tend to arise a body of precedents and of doctrine that would define and strengthen international law in general. It would be desirable, and would not be impracticable, that the various commissions acting for the United States with the different Powers should establish some degree of communication and conference. It might even be found practicable that the same Commissioners named by this country should act in different cases. In that event it is probable that they would gradually acquire some of the prestige of a permanent court. It is not, of course, intended that the commissions shall make decisions. Their prime function will be that of inquiry. But they would necessarily consider the facts in any case submitted to them in the light of the obligations and the rights established by international law as they understand it. Their reports would embody their interpretation of that law, and so far as they should influence the action of the Governments concerned, this interpretation would tend to shape the accepted provisions of that law.

It will be remembered that the avowed aim of the treaties with Great Britain and France negotiated by President TAFT was to promote the establishment of an international tribunal which ultimately would have jurisdiction over all disputes arising between the parties to the treaties. And it was the expectation of Mr. TAFT, should the treaties with these two Powers work well, that other Powers would accede to the same plan and gradually the general tribunal would be evolved. It was an essential part of Mr. TAFT's plan that there should be the commissions of inquiry which Mr. WILSON's plan also provides for. Mr. TAFT had an opportunity, after his proposed treaties were modified, to secure these commissions—and much more—but for reasons that have never been explained he did not avail himself of it. Now that there is a fair probability that Mr. WILSON will be able to attain this measure, it is extremely desirable that it shall be made to contribute as much as possible to the accomplishment of the broader design.

If it should come about that the two Commissioners who are citizens of this country and the two selected by our Government from other nationalities, in the first case arising between the United States and, say, Great Britain, should be retained for service in questions arising between the United States and other countries with whom differences should occur, it is plain that with each successive case the labors of the commissions in which they took part would tend to become more effective, to shape international usage, which is the basis of international law, and to educate public opinion as well as to influence the action of Governments. There would be the beginning of something like judicial adjustment of international differences. From that beginning subsequent steps in advance would be progressively easy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Loss Is Not a Fatal Blow.

Whether any secret fraternity has measurable value for any educational institution is so questionable, in the minds of most people who have given thought to the subject, that there is no reason for much excitement over the loss of its charter by the Alpha Delta Phi Chapter in our City College. There be those, indeed, who think, or think they think, that both undergraduates and alumni derive certain advantages from membership in these organizations. When it comes to telling what the advantages are, however, even their most enthusiastic friends are considerably more eloquent than definite, and such details as they do give—when firmly pinned down—are curiously irrelevant to the purposes and objects of education.

That in itself, of course, does not condemn the fraternities, for there is more to going to college than the study of books and the hearing of lectures. The more cautious friends of these student groupings are content to call them harmless. Criticism, on the other hand, ranges from ridicule of their silly mysteries to denunciation of their snobbish violation of democratic principles. Probably there is something of exaggeration in both the ridicule and the denunciation. Colleges get along quite well without secret societies while others survive their presence far from ill—a phenomenon that should make for calm in discussion of their merits.

As for the episode at City College, it gains a sort of importance because of the fact that the avowed reason for abolishing the chapter is the Jewish lineage of a considerable number of its members. That gives it a sort of importance, racial prejudices being so much oftener felt than openly confessed. It is true that there are a good many Jews in this college; it is also true that the student body as a whole is described by President FINLEY—not an incompetent judge—as at least equal in ability, high aspiration, and effective Americanism to that of any other college in the country. If he be not mistaken, it would seem that these young men deserve whatever benefits, if any, the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity can bestow upon them. They do, that is, if the society's effort and aim are to sustain and elevate those of our youth who are appreciative of educational opportunities. If its desires are to isolate and segregate the several strains in our wildly heterogeneous population, to create classes and foster prejudices, of course that is another matter, and Alpha Delta Phi is then justified, from its own point of view, in abandoning a college where lessons that must be obnoxious to it are systematically and successfully taught.

Interpreting Some Statistics.

From Chicago, where they evidently have an industrious Bureau of Vital Statistics, there come in one day two pieces of news that possibly are related. One is to the effect that on Thursday 3,870 marriage licenses were issued, a number that broke the city record by thirteen. The other relates to the relative longevity, in Chicago, of the married and the single.

The death rate of bachelors there, it seems, is 19.8 per 1,000, that of married men only 15.3—a difference of 29.5 per cent. In the other sex the respective figures are 14.3 and 10.3—a difference of 40 per cent. This showing may account for the violent rushing into matrimony that occurred, a supposition that is made the more probable by the presumable subsidence of June's well-known incitement toward the great plunge.

But are the longevity figures as favorable to marriage as they look—in other words, is the greater age at death of the married an incident or an effect of their state?

Before answering that question, one must remember that, as a rule, though with all too many exceptions, the people who marry are what an insurance man would call "selected risks." Those desperately or even seriously ill, if single, usually remain so at least until recovery, while either men or women who are in any way abnormal encounter difficulties, if not insuperable obstacles, even if they feel the mating impulse, and abnormality is not long-lived. The chances are, therefore, that it would be unsafe to draw from the above statistics the conclusion that marriage deserves all the credit the figures seemingly gave it.

Doubtless marriage and length of days tend to go together, but probably they are both the effects of several causes rather than one the cause of the other. Hazardous occupations and adventures appeal more to celibates than to the married, but it is unlikely that anybody ever married to escape risks of the sort directly menacing to life. That marriage often gives new realization of danger and a new fear of it has illustration in Mr. KIPLING's great story of the cavalry officer who became afraid to ride in front of his troop after he had a wife and child—and fortune.

A Reform Hard to Enforce.

Orders just issued by the Lehigh Valley Railway management are to the effect that whenever trains are delayed for any cause, conductors are to inform the people in them as soon as possible just what the trouble is and how long it is likely to last. The same sort of information is to be given by ticket sellers or station masters to people who are waiting to take or meet trains.

This is a most excellent idea, and few things would do more to create good-will for a railway than the successful carrying out of the plan. Several other roads, however, have announced the adoption of the same wise policy, but their patrons, though they have usually seen for a while some difference in the treatment of their questions about delay by the official possessors of knowledge, have also usually seen a gradual falling back into the old reticence.

The veterans of the railway service can probably never be taught that the road's affairs, especially when things are going wrong, are not its private affairs, and they are instinctively resentful of interrogation. There is excuse, or at least explanation, for this feeling in the fact that when trouble comes they are doing their best to remedy it, and this work is not advanced by answering the eager inquiries of two or three hundred passengers, most of whom would not understand the railway language, anyway. Hence the replies are apt to be snappy, if not snarly, and only the more persistent and callous inquirer gets his thirst for knowledge satisfied, even on the roads that theoretically enforce such orders as the Lehigh Valley has promulgated.

THE BODY'S RESURRECTION.

If Doctrine Is True, We May Predict the Last Day.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Various scientists have at times professed to tell the weight of the earth, and this is a good starting point for some peculiar calculations as to the end of things mundane.

When a sufficient number of persons shall have lived so that the weight of the earth divided by the average weight of their bodies shows that no more substance remains from which to form bodies, it is not bad logic to expect Gabriel's trumpet to sound. This assumes the truth of the doctrine of the resurrection of the body, in which all Christian denominations agree, and in which I think most other religions also agree. Scientists should be able to figure out quite closely just when the event should take place, at least as accurately as they have figured the age of the Piltdown skull or the Neanderthal man, which only vary from a minimum of 5,000 years to a maximum of 10,000,000. Let them calculate with the same liberal margin of "personal equation," and all will be certain enough for practical purposes on this large problem.

Science tells us that our bodies are renewed every seven years, so that we have no claim to any particular shovelful of sand, clay, ashes, or what-not for reconstruction purposes. It is as with the air, ours while it is in our lungs, our neighbors' when they breathe it in; in short, both air and solid materials are merely loaned to us, as it were, for a longer or shorter time. When enough persons shall have lived for the earth to afford material for a new body for each one out of the total mass available, things must come to a sudden stop. Statisticians should figure it out.

The Richest Language.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When I was in Turkey my Turkish teacher told me that his language was the richest in vocabulary. When in Germany my German teacher asserted that my first teacher was wrong, that German was the only language to be considered in that matter. Now that I am in America my English teacher tells me that both of my other teachers did not know what they were talking about, and that, in point of vocabulary, the English language is the one that has no competitor.

Which one is right?

THE RUSSIAN JEW'S STATUS.

His Ill-Treatment Ascribed to Prejudice and Jealousy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to contradict the statements made by Mme. de Carriere in THE TIMES concerning the condition of the Jews in Russia.

She says that the Jews are barred from living only in St. Petersburg, Moscow, and Kief, or "other northern capitals." By the way, Kief is a "southern capital." Her statement is absolutely untrue, as the whole world knows about the existence of the pale, or the Jewish Ghetto, which is a very small area consisting of a few southwestern provinces. Outside of this they are not allowed to live, and even within this pale they are strictly forbidden to reside or do business in villages, but must restrict their activities to towns. The Jews are entirely excluded from the whole of Siberia, Caucasia, and Crimea.

She finds landowning the only thing the Jew is not allowed in Russia. This, again, is not true. The Jew is not allowed even to rent or cultivate land. He is barred from most of the professional occupations. He cannot practice law or engineering, he cannot be a teacher in a public or a high school or a professor in a college or university even within the pale; he is not allowed to do private tutoring in Christian houses. Only a certain small percentage of Jewish children are admitted to public or high schools or universities even within the pale. In the army the Jew is not allowed to stand in the front row and is denied the rank of even a non-commissioned officer. In fact, it would be easier to state what the Jew is allowed than what he is not allowed to do.

If it is true that the attitude of the Government is that of retrenchment and not of persecution and of religious intolerance, how is it that the "superior business ability" of the Jew is feared more than that of the Western European or of the American, who are allowed freely to exploit as much of Russia as they like? And why is it that merchants of the first guild, who can pay a large tax for the privilege and who must be rich to be able to do it, are allowed to live anywhere outside of the pale, even in the "northern capitals," without the fear of their "superior business abilities"? Is there not more danger to be expected in this respect from a rich Jew than from a poor one?

It is impossible to enumerate all the special laws against the Jew in Russia. These fill a large volume. It is to be hoped that those who are not familiar with the true condition of the Jew in Russia will not attach too much importance to Mme. de Carriere's statements.

D. SERBER.
New York, June 26, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As shown in Mme. de Carriere's statement, the Jews in Russia are persecuted not because of their inferiority but, on the contrary, for superiority to the Russians. In other words, he is expelled, maltreated, and persecuted because of his ability to tie both ends of the commercial world in a knot, so to speak, and bring his country to the front of the business field.

As a former Russian subject and student, I know that the Russian farmer, manufacturer, woodsman, and those in all other mercantile branches look to the Jews to market their products where they are most needed, no matter in what corner of the earth. The Russian farmer or producer knows it, and is not against the Jew, not only because he is not competing with him in the production of the goods, but also because the Jew is instrumental in getting for him the best price the world offers for his product. The country could not prosper without this middleman.

It is the Russian nobility, not the peasants or people, who persecute the Jews in Russia, as expressed by Mme. de Carriere. This class is engaged in the same kind of trading as the Jews, and it is they who feel the keen Jewish competition, not the general population. Were it not for the keen competition felt by these few but powerful nobles, they could make the farmer or manufacturer give up his products for what they might choose to offer, thereby enslaving not only the heads of the industries but all those dependent upon them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Jews in America are allowed all freedom in competition, education, and the general pursuit of happiness; but is it a fact that because of this freedom their competitors are not as successful as they? Or that they do not permit others to get ahead of them? Perhaps if Russia gave them the freedom that is accorded them here it would serve to put the Russians on their mettle, and they would become a more commercialized nation, and undoubtedly a wealthier nation.

A CRIME TO GROW WEEDS.

River Forest Will Charge $10 for Each Offense.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An ordinance passed by the village of River Forest, a small town in Cook County, just outside of the City of Chicago, makes it unlawful to allow weeds to grow on any lot of said village, describing in Section 12 a penalty of $10 as a fine for each offense. I suppose this could be construed to mean each weed, as there is nothing to the contrary in the wording of the ordinance.

This is the first time that I have ever known it to be in the power of the "Village Fathers" to prescribe what an owner could grow on his own property. It would seem to me that they have as much right to prohibit an owner from growing potatoes, corn, or any kind of vegetable as they have to prohibit him from growing weeds, and the ordinance, as a matter of fact, is such an unusual illustration of what extreme measures the "Village Fathers" will resort to when vested with a little brief authority that I am curious to know if such an arbitrary edict of this kind is at all legal.

As to why the "Village Fathers" should be so opposed to the subject matter of this ordinance I am unable to state, unless they are looking toward the beautifying of their village, not to mention making a little unnecessary trouble for the unfortunate owners of property therein.

A Political Banking System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Owen-Glass Currency bill presents one feature which has met with general criticism throughout the country—the dominating political control of the central governing body. That this body should consist of three Federal officers, to whom are added four nominees of the President, only one of whom is to be a banker, sufficiently corroborates this statement.

The banking community is as surely entitled to the confidence of the country as are those who claim to be guardians of public prosperity, but whose experiences have been limited to answering the call of the "shackled" and fettered commercial aspirant. By what theory is the stamp of superiority placed upon a board subject to the changes of political warfare, as against men whose energy and purpose in life have been confined to the elucidation of problems of which now the solution is sought?

Assuming, therefore, the existence of the powerful and pernicious influence of the moneyed interests, what will prevent them from indirectly influencing this political board and thus escaping the responsibilities indisputably attached to their own official action?

Out-of-Town Check Collections.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why is it that when depositing an out-of-town check, instead of taking the usual two or three days' time to collect it, the banks don't pay out until a week later?

I deposited a check in one of our large New York banks on the morning of June 19, drawn on a Scranton (Penn.) bank. On the 25th I wanted to draw money on said check, but I could not get it. I was told the check would not be collected before the 27th. Does it really take that long to collect a check where the distance is so small? Or do the banks delay purposely in order to make use of the money in the meantime?

THE CORNING WRECK.

Unions Swayed Jury to Exonerate Schroeder, Attorney Says.

City of Corning, N. Y.,
Office of the City Attorney,
June 26, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A locomotive attached to an express train on July 4 last crashed into the rear end of a passenger train standing on the tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company, and forty-one passengers were killed and many injured. The locomotive that killed and injured the passengers was being operated by William H. Schroeder, for many years a trusted locomotive engineer employed by that company.

The company was not in the slightest respect to blame for the accident. The locomotive was of the latest type and in the best of working order. The track was in perfect condition. The signal system was the best in practical use. The rules of the company governing its employes and the operation of its trains were those only that by experience had been found to be most effective in protecting and safeguarding passengers.

The whole blame for the loss of life and the injury to the passengers must forever remain where it rightfully belongs, with Schroeder. He alone was at fault. He, at sixty miles an hour, ran past the signal placed at "caution" nearly a mile; the flagman waving a flag and a burning fusee, nearly half a mile, and the signal placed at "danger," 250 feet from the rear end of the passenger train. He did not see or heed the signals, the flagman, nor the burning fusee. The only reasonable explanation of his conduct is that he was asleep. Yet, for all that, he has been tried in the County Court of the County of Steuben, and he has been acquitted of the crime of manslaughter by a jury of his peers. And now, from various sources, there arises the hysterical and unwarranted cry that that acquittal has transferred all the blame from his shoulders and placed it upon that of the management of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company. The verdict will tend to create false impressions, but it cannot change the undisputed facts.

The verdict represents one more failure of justice. It was not the outcome of the careful or deliberate consideration of the proof, but mainly the result of:

1. Sympathy for Schroeder, and,
2. The efforts of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and other unions of railroad employes to secure his acquittal.
3. The dismissal of the first indictment and the long delay necessary to bring him to trial upon a second indictment; the recent death of his wife; the long service with the company, and the testimony of six influential citizens of Elmira as to his good character also aided him.

But the principal thing that brought about the farcical verdict was the tremendous and overpowering influence of the railroad employes' unions. The members of these unions were omnipresent in Hornell. They were everywhere. They crowded the Court House; they filled the lobbies of the hotels; they were everywhere upon the streets. They were talking, urging, pleading, and threatening. They worked day and night. They created such a sentiment in Schroeder's behalf that no one could expect that jurors left to roam at will and associate and be with them could withstand the pressure brought to bear upon them. With such influences surrounding the jury no one could expect a conviction.

No substantial defense was established. Had it been a civil action, the court would, upon the evidence, have been compelled to direct a verdict. It being a criminal action, the court was compelled to leave it to a jury.

NEW CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL

Well-Equipped Structure to be Built in Eighty-fifth Street.

A new Catholic high school, called the Regis, is to be erected in Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth Streets, between Park and Madison Avenues. The work of construction will be under the direction of the Rev. David W. Hearn of the Jesuits, who is Principal of Loyola School and pastor of the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola.

This new building will be for the graduates of the parochial schools of this city. The frontage in Eighty-fourth Street will be some 125 feet, and that in Eighty-fifth Street a little more. There will be a quadrangle in the centre of the building so as to afford good light to all the rooms.

The student capacity will be some 1,500 pupils. The basement will be used for playrooms and for boiler and coal rooms. There will be a large gymnasium and baths. The main entrance will be in Eighty-fourth Street. On the second floor will be the library and teachers' room. On each of the third, fourth, and fifth floors will be a large lecture room. The Eighty-fifth Street end of the fifth floor will be devoted to science. There will be a roof garden covering the entire building area. The structure will be fireproof, and the exterior will be constructed almost wholly of limestone.

It is expected that the school will be ready for occupancy by September, 1914. There will be no tuition fee. The school will be under the patronage of St. John Francis Regis of the Society of Jesus.

THE COLD SPOT.

What's the matter with the country?
Well, there isn't very much,
Despite would-be panicmakers
And the pessimists and such.
But the wheels go on a-turning
And the crops are growing still,
And there isn't much complaining—
Only Wall Street has a chill.

There are some who use their eyesight
Just to watch the ticker tape,
Spend their time in speculating,
Nerves on edge and mouths agape;
Never view the great, broad country,
Where the people win who will,
Who are prosperous and happy—
Only Wall Street feels a chill.

No, the air it isn't frosty;
It is Summerlike instead.
All the railroad people tell us
That they see good times ahead,
That the country it is booming,
Cash a-pouring in the till.
'Tis a level-headed nation—

BOARD AGAIN VOTES FOR DIAGONAL PLAN

MEETS IN EUSTIS'S HOUSE

Believed That Objections as to Cost of Easements Will Be Overcome—Central Wants to Build.

The Public Service Commission voted yesterday once more in favor of making the connection between the Lexington Avenue subway and the present line at Grand Central Station on a diagonal running from Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue under the old hospital site, on which the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company is about to construct a hotel, and the Grand Union Hotel to Park Avenue and Forty-first Street. It is this connection, which has the hearty support of the Forty-second Street Subway Association and other adjacent property owners, and is also favored by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company as affording the most workmanlike connection.

The vote on the proposal was taken in the home of Commissioner Eustis at 1,858 Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx. Commissioner Eustis was operated upon two or three weeks ago for appendicitis, and although he is able to get about his house he is not yet strong enough to come to the office, so his colleagues went to see him. The vote for the diagonal connection was 3 for to 1 against. Chairman McCall and Commissioners Eustis and Williams voted in favor of it, and Commissioner Cram against it. Commissioner Maltbie was not present, but would have voted against the proposal.

It is understood that his objections are founded upon the probable cost of obtaining easements at this particular point under the property of the New York Central and the Grand Union Hotel, and the difficulty there would be, once the diagonal station was built, of ever continuing south the Lexington Avenue line. Some of the residents in Lexington Avenue, who have been represented by ex-Borough President Jacob A. Cantor, have also been urging the continuation of the Lexington Avenue road at least as far as Thirty-third Street, and Commissioner Cram has gone on record as wishing it run down as far as Fourteenth Street.

As a matter of fact, the cost of the easements, which the diagonal station will need, has not yet been fixed. Action was taken by the commission because the Board of Estimate is about to adjourn for the Summer, and the imperative need of getting the Grand Central connection settled at the earliest possible moment determined the commission to try to obtain the approval of the board to the diagonal plan at once. Then, if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the railroad company and the Grand Union Hotel as to the cost of easements, work can be begun on the connection at once.

It is understood that the New York Central is anxious to have the diagonal station, if possible, for it will be to the advantage of its army of commuters to have the subway station as near the trunk line station as possible. Passengers coming from the Brooklyn Bridge on the east side line to the Grand Central would alight on a mezzanine, which would bring them into the eastern end of the Grand Central Station with hardly any more walking than they have now from the present Subway platforms.

The New York Central, however, wishes to obtain the right to construct the diagonal station for itself in connection with its own work at the Grand Central. It believes that it can do it more cheaply than ordinary contractors, considering it would be only an addition to other similar work, and the railroad company could then be sure that all its plans for the accommodation of passengers would be carried out in the best way possible. It is not unlikely that the Public Service Commission will try to meet the wishes of the railroad company, and it may make the diagonal station a special small section, on which the New York Central might bid.

A compromise may be reached between the commission and the railroad company on these lines, and then there will remain only the negotiations concerning the price of easements to be concluded with the owners of the Grand Union Hotel. The Board of Estimate has once refused its sanction to the diagonal station because it considered the probable cost of the easements too high, but it is believed now that this obstacle will be overcome and that the Board of Estimate can approve.

21,091 PUPILS GRADUATED.

Which Is 94 Per Cent. of Grammar Schools Class—Queens Record Best.

The grammar schools graduated 21,091 pupils yesterday in the five boroughs. There were enrolled in the graduating classes 22,264, the graduating percentage of the entire city being 94. Last year the percentage was 94.2, and 20,102 pupils were graduated out of an enrollment of 21,325.

The Borough of Queens leads this year in the graduation percentages. Of the 1,943 pupils enrolled in its graduation classes, 1,855 received cards admitting them to high schools in the Fall. The borough percentage was 95.5. The Borough of Manhattan is second, with a percentage of 95.1, 8,087 pupils graduating out of a total enrollment of 8,501.

In Brooklyn the percentage was 94.8. Of the 8,325 pupils enrolled, 7,891 were graduated. Richmond comes fourth, with a percentage of 94.7, 505 pupils graduating out of a total enrollment of 533. In the Borough of the Bronx the percentage was lowest, being 92.9. Of the 2,962 pupils enrolled in that borough, 2,753 received diplomas.

STRAUS DEFENDS JAPANESE.

One Part of the Country Shouldn't Be Able to Involve Nation, He Says.

Oscar S. Straus, speaking yesterday afternoon at a luncheon in honor of Dr. David Starr Jordan, given by the International Peace Forum at the Railroad Club, said that Secretary of State Knox had demonstrated "that he was not of international calibre" by his action in recalling Charles R. Crane of Chicago as Ambassador to China. Mr. Straus presided at the luncheon. Before calling upon Mr. Crane to speak, he referred to the Japanese situation in California, and aroused the enthusiasm of his hearers when he said:

"There is need in this country for the enactment of a law that will make the national law supreme over State law in cases of this kind. We cannot afford to have one section of the country plunge the entire nation into a dispute simply because the people of that section do not like the Japanese because they save their money and work hard. The unerring judgment of the American people rights all wrongs and solves all difficult matters, and it will be so in this case."

Dr. Jordan also expressed belief that California would right the wrong, and would soon come to see her mistake. The mention of war, he said, must be kept off the front pages of the newspapers, and the silly editors who are striving for war should be educated.

Mr. Crane in his address merely narrated a story of a Chinese village to illustrate the settlement of a judicial question. He refused to comment on what Mr. Straus had said.

Dr. Henry Allen Tupper, who has made three trips to Mexico, representing the Forum as Peace Commissioner in an endeavor to bring about peace between the waring factions, said that conditions in Mexico were continually becoming worse, and he added that he believed a committee of members of the International Peace Forum or of any non-partisan committee could bring the people together in Mexico and restore the Government and peace.

AMERICAN RAGTIME SWEEPING EUROPE

Lee Shubert Heard Our Songs in All the Capitals, but Credit Was Not Given.

TO COPYRIGHT HEREAFTER

Manager Obtains Some New Plays and Players—Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott to Tour.

Lee Shubert, who returned yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania from his annual trip to Europe to obtain plays and players for the coming theatrical season, said that he did not realize that he was abroad because wherever he went in London, Paris, Berlin, and Vienna there were only American ragtime songs, and music and scenes from the revues of New York.

"Of course," said Mr. Shubert, "it was our fault for not having our productions, songs, and music copyrighted over there. The managers admitted that they had now to look to America for their successes, but they did not credit us with it on their bills or programmes. The Empire and Alhambra revues have a number of songs and musical numbers from the Winter Garden, and the revue 'Come Over Here,' at the London Opera House, which is a great success, was taken bodily from the 'Passing Show of 1912' and the 'Honeymoon Express.'

"It will not happen again," Mr. Shubert went on to say, "as we shall protect ourselves in the future. This is the first time that the European managers have had to come to America for their revues and vaudeville attractions in such a large way, and as the public have taken such a liking to American plays and songs, they will have to continue to comply with the demand. The successes in London at the theatres were nearly all American plays. The reason of that is the demand for good plays and acts of all kinds, as well as songs and music, is far greater here than in Europe, and the composers know that this is the best market in the world to-day. American managers pay more money for productions, and pay better salaries than in Europe, so they get the pick of the supply. My trip has convinced me that in the future American managers must depend mainly on American authors and American artists for their productions."

Mr. Shubert said he had arranged for the production at the Manhattan Opera House here of the play, "Dreadnought," which has been a success at the Drury Lane Theatre, and a spectacle play, "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," at another house. "Oh, I say," a farce that has been very successful at the London Criterion, will be produced.

Forbes-Robertson and Gertrude Elliott were engaged by Mr. Shubert for a tour here, and arrangements were made to produce at the Royalty Theatre in London Edward Sheldon's play, "Romance."

Other players booked by Mr. Shubert for America the coming season include Mlle. Lydia Kyasht, a Russian danseuse, who has, for the last four years, been the principal attraction at the Empire in London. She will bring to America her own corps de ballet, scenery and music. For appearance at the Winter Garden, Mr. Shubert engaged Sylvester Schaffer, a musical entertainer. For the Princess Theatre he obtained "The Surprises of Hell," by C. B. Fernald, and "Simon Street, No. 10." For the opening of the Hippodrome, a number of new acts were engaged for initial appearance in this country.

Mr. Shubert has also acquired the rights of "Panthea," by Monckton Hoffe, a drama which has been running all season at the Ambassadors' Theatre. He has the rights for England for the Viennese operetta, "The Gypsy Leader," which will be produced at one of the London theatres next season. At a conference with Granville Barker, in London, Mr. Shubert arranged for another Bernard Shaw play, to be produced in New York next October.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Harry Mestayer has been engaged by John Cort for one of the principal parts in "The Elixir of Youth," a farce, by Zellah Covington and Jules Simonson, which will be produced at the Cort Theatre, Chicago, on Aug. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Milton Royle will give this afternoon a garden party at their home in Darien, Conn., at which final arrangements for the Darien Pageant will be made.

The Antinious Juvenile Military Band of Brooklyn will give a concert at the Manhattan Beach Bathing Pavilion this afternoon.

Alfred Holy of Vienna has been engaged as harpist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for next season.

The Directors of the First International Exhibition of the Moving-Picture Art have arranged for a children's moving-picture theatre at the new Grand Central Palace during the week of July 7 in connection with the exhibition. The programme will include stories and pictures of an educational nature.

MISS VAN ALEN TO WED.

Reported Engagement to Griswold Thompson Confirmed by Her Letter.

The engagement of Miss May Van Alen, elder daughter of James J. Van Alen, and Griswold A. Thompson of this city, has been confirmed by a letter from Miss Van Alen, who is now in Surrey, England, to a friend.

The engagement has been rumored for some days, but as Mr. Van Alen is fishing in the Canadian wilds and Miss Van Alen is in England, and as Mr. Thompson declined to admit it or to deny it, nothing could be definitely stated until Miss Van Alen's letter confirmed the rumors. It will be remembered that reports of Miss Van Alen's being engaged have been current from time to time for some years.

It is also rumored that the wedding will take place in September, either in Newport or here in New York, but as Mr. Thompson could not be reached yesterday or last night no confirmation of the date could be obtained.

Miss Van Alen is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Astor, and a sister of Mrs. Robert J. Collier, niece of Mrs. M. Orme Wilson and Mrs. Ogilvy Haig, and a cousin of Vincent Astor, R. Thornton Wilson, and Orme Wilson, Jr., and of Mrs. William Phillips, Henry Coleman Drayton, and William Astor Drayton. She has for some years spent most of her time in England, and when in Newport has presided over her father's villa, Wakehurst.

Mr. Thompson came to New York some years ago, and is now a bond broker at 500 Fifth Avenue, and lives at 16 East Sixtieth Street. He has two married sisters, Mrs. Harold Severance and Mrs. Frank Tasker. He lived in England at one time, and during the past two or three years has spent part of the season at Newport.

HERE TO WED MME. RAPPOLD

Rudolph Berger, Tenor of Vienna Royal Opera, Arrives.

Rudolph Berger, tenor of the Royal Opera of Vienna, arrived here yesterday on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria to marry Mme. Marie Rappold of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mme. Rappold met him at the pier and was embraced affectionately. They then went to the Hendrik Hudson Annex Apartments, 601 West 110th Street, where she makes her home.

It was reported at the pier that the couple intended to be married at Long Branch, N. J., last night. Roy Becker, a nephew of Mme. Rappold, when seen at her apartments yesterday, said:

"Mme. Rappold and Mr. Berger will be married some time within the next few days. They have not had time to procure a license yet, and have not had time to make their plans for the wedding, but it will probably be celebrated in New Jersey with only a few of their intimate friends present."

He added that the couple had met for the first time eight years ago, when at the Berlin Royal Opera Mme. Rappold sang Elsa to his Lohengrin.

Mme. Rappold returned recently from a long Western concert tour, during which she obtained a divorce on May 13 from Dr. Julius C. Rappold of 750 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Berger will make his début as a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in the Fall.

MOTHERHOOD HELD AS A CIVIC SERVICE

On This Ground League of Women Will Insist on Mrs. Edgell's Rights in School.

AGITATION TO BE KEPT UP

Board of Education to be Stormed Until It Recognizes Married Women Teachers.

The League for the Civic Service of Women held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Liberal Club, 132 East Nineteenth Street, as a protest against the action of the Board of Education in the case of Mrs. Katherine C. Edgell, a teacher of the Erasmus Hall High School, who was refused a year's leave of absence to bear and rear a child. An active campaign to arouse public sentiment was discussed. From now until Fall every effort will be made to force the Board of Education to amend its by-laws. Drawing room meetings will be held in Manhattan and Brooklyn in October and November, and then, if Mrs. Edgell is not reinstated, a mass meeting will be held at Cooper Union. There was even talk yesterday of carrying the matter to the Legislature if the Board of Education remained firm. A letter of appreciation was sent to Dr. Ira S. Wile, the only member of the board's committee who supported the cause of Mrs. Edgell.

There were about twenty present at the meeting, including three men. Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale presided, and Henrietta Rodman, a teacher, who secretly married Herman de Fremery and didn't tell the Board of Education anything about it for several months, acted as Secretary. Mrs. de Fremery, or, as she was called at the meeting, Miss Rodman, read the report. In her audience were several teachers who, it was said, "had been wronged shamefully" by the board, but who did not want to make their names known because it might injure them.

The great object which the league had in view, said Miss Rodman, was to make the Board of Education and every one else in the city and State realize that bearing a child was civic service and that discrimination by the Board of Education or any other employer of women was wrong. The first and most important by-law which the league seeks to have amended deals with granting leave of absence to a teacher. At present leave of absence is granted for the purposes of restoration of health, study, or travel. The league will ask the board to add the words "or for civic service," a phrase which, Miss Rodman explained, would, according to eminent counsel, cover the bearing and rearing of a child. The lawyer, it developed, had told Miss Rodman that he believed woman's place was at home. "But he assured me that the phrase was legally sound," she added with a smile.

Another by-law makes it mandatory for women teachers who marry to tell the Board of Education about it. The league believes that this by-law should be repealed, or the provision added that men who marry must also inform the Board of Education.

Miss Rodman explained that she had kept her marriage secret because she was eligible for promotion. Had she told the Board of Education, she would have been declared ineligible for promotion.

Another point brought up was that women whose husbands deserted them or were incapacitated were not discriminated against.

"We are going to try and obtain from educators and other prominent men," said Miss Rodman, "an explanation why a woman whose husband is ill or has deserted her is better fitted to teach children than a woman whose husband hasn't deserted her or isn't ill."

The league is going to start right out to obtain members and seek the indorsement of various organizations throughout the State. It was announced yesterday that the City Mothers' Club had indorsed the movement. Mrs. James Leeds Laidlaw was elevated as Chairman of the Membership Committee which is being organized. Another committee, of which Edwin E. Slosson of The Independent is Chairman, will prepare the literature which is to be distributed.

The league was started on Feb. 7, when the Committee on Civic Service of Women was organized. It was decided to change the name yesterday. The membership is now about 150, and includes men and women prominent in different professions and in club life. A committee composed of Mrs. Frank H. Cothren, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Nellie Van Slingerland, and Miss Kate Turner are to arrange for meetings in September and October. It was said at the meeting yesterday that the case of Mrs. Edgell was considered a perfect one on which to base the fight that is to be made, and it was intimated that an action might be begun in the courts if other means to have the teacher reinstated failed.

The tea service, which is in eleven pieces, bears the inscription:

TO SIFT HEMET AFFAIR.

Bryan Says He Will Investigate Expulsion of Korean Laborers.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Just a small incident in itself, but very disturbing nevertheless, was the preliminary official estimate of the affair at Hemet, Cal., yesterday, involving the forcible expulsion of a band of Korean fruit pickers.

It is expected that the incident will be the subject of future representations by the Japanese Amabassador as soon as he has been advised of all the facts.

Secretary Bryan said to-day that the State Department would make an immediate investigation of the incident.

HEMET, Cal., June 27.—Ranchers associated with several organizations of fruit growers announced to-day they were in favor of a "white man's valley," and would make no further efforts to procure Asiatic laborers. The town was much excited when it was reported that an agent of the State Department was on the way here to investigate the expulsion of the Koreans.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—"A prank of overgrown schoolboys," was the expression used to-day by K. Kumazaki, First Vice Consul at the Japanese Consulate here, regarding the Hemet, Cal., affair of yesterday, when a party of Korean laborers were expelled by townspeople. The Vice Consul refused to consider the matter as a basis of possible diplomatic representations.

U. P. UNDER WILSON'S EYE.

President Confers with McReynolds on Dissolution Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The terms of the plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railway interests were discussed by the Cabinet to-day, and later in the day the President and Attorney General McReynolds devoted an hour to the subject. Cabinet officers declined to furnish any information as to the attitude of the President on the dissolution plan.

The Attorney General has accepted the proposal to exchange $38,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock owned by the Union Pacific for an equal value of Baltimore & Ohio shares owned by the Pennsylvania System. Mr. McReynolds worked late to-night to complete the draft of the decree for the dissolution. The plan embodied in the decree must be presented to the United States Circuit Court at St. Paul next Tuesday. While there is no official basis for the statement, it was said here to-day that President Wilson abandoned his week-end trip to New Hampshire in order to have a final conference on the Union Pacific matter.

Brothers and Sisters Get Property of Official Fosdick Criticised.

Charles B. Page, who as Secretary of the New York Board of Elections was criticised in the report of Commissioner Fosdick for negligence in making out the minutes of the board's meetings, left property valued on the day of his death, Aug. 18, at $152,594, according to the appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. At the time when the report of Commissioner Fosdick was made public Mr. Page, who was an up-State politician, acknowledged that the only work he did in connection with his office was to sign the minutes after they had been made out by a stenographer.

The larger part of Mr. Page's estate was in lumber companies, these being represented by 455 shares in the Cottoneva Lumber Company, $45,500, and 200 shares in the Lagoon Lumber Company, $62,000. Deductions from the estate for debts and administration expenses left a net value of $106,555. This property he divided under his will among eight brothers and sisters, his nearest relatives.

Actress's Charges Against Max Steuer Sent to Appellate Division by Justice Goff.

REFUSES TO DROP THEM

Lawyer Offers Affidavits of Others Who Say They Believed Her Story When Told to Them.

Supreme Court Justice Goff granted a new trial yesterday in the suit of Edith St. Clair against the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger for breach of an alleged contract whereby she was to receive $2,500 annually for ten years. Ex-District Attorney William Travers Jerome, representing the theatrical firm, made the motion for a new trial and submitted to the court three affidavits of Miss St. Clair, in which she says that she won the suit for $22,500 in the trial of last December by perjured testimony, ordered by her counsel, Max D. Steuer.

Mr. Steuer appeared in court to defend himself against the accusations contained in the affidavits. As counsel in the former suit of Miss St. Clair he raised no objection to the motion for a new trial. He did ask that the affidavit in which Miss St. Clair accused him of directing her to give false testimony be stricken from the court record on the ground that the other two documents were sufficient in themselves to gain a new trial. In these two affidavits Miss St. Clair says that after due reflection she has come to the conclusion that part of her testimony was untrue.

Justice Goff refused to grant Mr. Steuer's request in regard to the affidavit, but advised him to make a motion that all the documents be submitted to the Appellate Division for investigation. Mr. Steuer made the motion, and the Justice granted the order. It is understood that the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association and also the Grand Jury are investigating the charges against Steuer.

In his defense Mr. Steuer submitted to the court certain affidavits which Justice Goff admitted to the court record. In one of these he says that the motion for a new trial was made simply to blast his reputation as a member of the bar; that he first learned of Miss St. Clair's charges when newspaper men showed him her affidavits, and that Miss St. Clair was brought to him as a client by the firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus, to whom she had submitted her case for consideration. Members of this firm made affidavits to the effect that the actress had related her story to them and that they believed her suit for breach of contract was a meritorious action.

Attorney Mooney, also of counsel for Miss St. Clair in the first trial, said in affidavit form that he had been forced to prepare the case with little assistance from Steuer, as the latter was at that time engaged in the case of ex-City Chamberlain Hyde. He said that the story of her case as told to him by the client and as afterward sworn to by her on the witness stand appeared to him to be the truth and not the result of an attorney's coaching. John V. Bouvier, Jr., who was the trial lawyer in the first hearing on the suit of Miss St. Clair, in which a juror was withdrawn by Justice Page, made an affidavit similar to that of Attorney Mooney.

HEAT TO CONTINUE.

"However," Says the Forecaster, "It Won't Be Worse Than Yesterday."

Both humidity and the temperature combined yesterday to make an oppressive and uncomfortable day. The temperature went 14 degrees higher than the day before, while the humidity held steadily 10 per cent. higher. The maximum temperature was 84 degrees at 4 P. M., where it remained until 5 P. M., when it gradually dropped a degree each hour until 10 P. M., when the thermometer registered 78. The humidity, starting at 8 A. M. at 86 per cent., or 1 per cent. less than the day before, went higher by 10 per cent., and did not fall below 74 per cent. up to 8 o'clock last night. At the same hour the night before it was 64 per cent.

According to the Weather Bureau the present hot weather will continue for a few days, although the promise accompanies the prediction that it will not be warmer than yesterday during the remainder of the week. The local conditions indicate clear and fair weather for the next two or three days.

Three heat prostrations were reported in Manhattan yesterday, a street cleaner, a motorman, and a laborer, all of whom will recover.

SIEGEL DEAD IN RESTAURANT

Gamblers and Gunmen, Becker and Rose, Met in His Place.

Joseph Siegel, a well-known east side character, died yesterday at the age of 52 at the coffee room he owned with his wife at 80 Second Avenue, known as the Kurlander Café. He had not attracted much attention in the last few months, but before that time he had a similar establishment at 76 Second Avenue, which was known far and wide as an unofficial clubroom for the east side gamblers.

All the figures that came into notice in the Rosenthal murder, as well as the victim himself, had been patrons there, and it is said that it was known Becker and Jack Rose had often met there. He was raided several times early last Spring for indulging in gambling himself, and finally closed up his place at 76 Second Avenue. His death yesterday drew general attention to the fact that he was once more in business.

YELLS "SULZER!" AS RUSE.

Row on Capitol Hill and Shouts for Police Cause Excitement.

ALBANY, June 27.—"Police! police! catch him! he was after Gov. Sulzer!"

These exclamations from one of two men running down State Street Hill from the Capitol to-night threw downtown Albany into excitement.

It developed that the two men had engaged in a quarrel which ended in the flight and pursuit. The police say that when the pursuer realized a crowd was congregating he raised the cry, "He was after the Governor," as a ruse. Both men were arrested.

Hits at Vaccine Exploitation.

LONDON, Ontario, June 27.—Talking to the Canadian Medical Association here to-day, Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago said there was too much reckless experimenting with various kinds of vaccine and too much exploitation of alleged vaccine cures in the United States.

RESCUE BY FLYING BOAT.

McCormick Craft Tows Stranded Motor a Mile on Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONDSPORT, June 27.—Harold McCormick's big flying boat to-day rescued a broken-down launch and its two occupants from the probable discomfort of a night on the lake. Glenn Curtiss and C. C. Wilmer were flying in the McCormick boat and were running for home ahead of a threatening thundershower when they noticed a motor boat a mile from shore.

Curtiss brought his craft to the water and stopped near the motor boat. The men in it said their motor was broken and they wanted some one sent out to tow them ashore. Wilmer crawled out on the tail of the flying boat and took a rope from the motor boat which he held, while Curtiss drove the flying boat at a slow pace a mile or more to the shore. There the motor boat was made safe for the night and taking the shipwrecked mariners aboard the McCormick craft, Curtiss flew back to Hammondsport.

WON'T GIVE UP THE FLAG.

Toledo Museum Sticks to Perry's Banner and Its Motto.

TOLEDO, June 27.—Ensign Lowry came here to-day with an order from the Secretary of the Navy to get the Commodore Perry flag bearing the inscription, "Don't give up the ship," but the officials of the Toledo Museum of Art refused to give it up.

Several weeks ago Secretary Daniels lent the flag to the City of Toledo for three months. It was to be the central figure in an art and historic display in connection with the Perry victory centennial celebration. The display will open to-morrow.

Ensign Lowry bore an order countermanding the loan of the flag and instructing him to proceed with it to Erie, Penn., and place it aboard the Perry flagship Niagara.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Ensign Lowry was instructed to-day to notify the Toledo authorities that the Navy Department would return the Perry flag to the Toledo Museum for a time after the Erie celebration. The Museum gave it up without further ado.

WORKING HOURS FOR WOMEN

Industrial Board Lengthens Week in Canning Factories.

UTICA, June 27.—The Industrial Board of the State Labor Commission, after a conference with representatives of seventy-five canning factories, to-day adopted resolutions advancing the maximum number of hours a week that women may work under certain conditions.

Under the new rule "women 18 years of age and over may be employed in canning factories between June 25 and Aug. 5, 1913, in excess of ten hours in any one day, or sixty hours in one week, but not in excess of twelve hours in any one day or sixty-six hours in any one week or six days in any one week."

The rule provides that the women must not be required to stand continuously, nor must they be employed at labeling or packing cans.

POOR BOYS BARRED FROM ANNAPOLIS

From West Point, Too, Congressmen Charge in House Debate on Requirements.

ONLY "PREP" STUDENTS IN Either Favoritism or Examinations Are Too Hard, Says Mondell—Too Much Cramming, Mann Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Severe strictures upon the curriculum at the Naval Academy and upon the methods by which cadets and midshipmen are admitted into that institution and West Point were made in a long debate to-day in the House by Representatives Mann of Illinois, Humphrey of Washington, Mondell of Wyoming, and Platt of New York.

It was asserted that it was practically impossible for a poor boy from the country to enter the Naval Academy and emerge from that institution as a graduate. Mr. Mann insisted, though his statement was challenged by Chairman Padgett of the House Naval Committee, that unless a youth entered some of the naval preparatory schools he could not enter at Annapolis and graduate. Mr. Mondell of Wyoming hinted at favoritism in the selection of cadets in both institutions. The question of the social prestige of candidates for admission was also brought up.

The subject arose in connection with the passage of the Tillman bill, which had already passed the Senate, providing for the extension for six years of the existing law, which allows each Senator, Representative, and delegate in Congress to appoint two midshipmen to the Naval Academy annually. This law would expire next Monday unless the legislation contemplated in the bill were enacted, which the House later did.

"I have so many applicants for admission to West Point and Annapolis," said Mr. Platt of New York, "that I have decided to put into effect what are known as the Rhodes scholarship tests on my boys, so that their development, courage, character, and manliness will count toward appointment. I am going to make the physical requirements count fully one-half."

"If the examinations are so difficult, how does anybody get through?" asked Mr. Pou of North Carolina. "Schley, Dewey, and others got through."

"The difficulty is that the physical examination made by local physicians is not always efficient," said Mr. Mondell of Wyoming.

"In ten years," said Mr. Humphrey of Washington, "I have never been able to have a boy pass an examination unless he went to the expense of going to one of the preparatory schools. The result has been, I have found it almost impossible to appoint a poor boy to one of these places.

"At West Point I found it even worse. In practically eleven years I have been unable to have a boy graduated at West Point. All but one of them failed on account of some physical defect found after they entered West Point."

"I have been appointing cadets to Annapolis and West Point," said Mr. Mann, "for over sixteen years. Ten or twelve years ago I determined I would appoint no one who was not prepared to say he would come to a preparatory school in Washington or close to one of the academies. On a few occasions I waived that requirement. My recollection is that no one of my appointees has ever been admitted unless he went to one of the preparatory schools. The navy has too many men in it with superficial knowledge; too few with complete knowledge of some one subject."

The umbrellas of the other paraders will advertise the open-air mass meeting which will take place near the Municipal Baths from 3 to 6 o'clock.

The speakers at this meeting will be Major W. D. Fairbairns of the Salvation Army, Miss Anna Constable, Miss M. T. Burritt, Miss Alberta Hill, Miss Beatrice Brown, Miss Sarah Stevenson, and Miss Winslow. All the speeches will be made from soap boxes.

The caravan wagon recently given to the State Suffrage Association will be accepted formally at the headquarters, 180 Madison Avenue, at 2 o'clock next Tuesday. Miss Harriet May Mills, the State President, will receive it.

REJECTS RECLUSE'S WILL.

Probate Refused for Testament Giving Woman's Estate to a Barber.

Surrogate Ketcham of Brooklyn refused to admit to probate yesterday the will of Mrs. Octavia Friedrich, an aged recluse, who was burned to death in her home, in Hoyt, near Fulton Street, on Nov. 28. By her will Mrs. Friedrich gave all her property to Antonio Oreckinto, a barber, who had a shop in the building in which she lived. For some time Oreckinto was confidential agent for Mrs. Friedrich, and the will was witnessed by a bootblack, who had a stand in the neighborhood, and by a barber employed by Oreckinto.

Mrs. Friedrich was asleep in a chair before a cook stove when a coal fell from the grate and set fire to her clothing. Her estate was small.

GIANTS AND BROOKLYN WIN---TWO DEFEATS FOR YANKEES---TURF---GOLF---TENNIS---BOXING

DOYLE GETS TESREAU OUT OF TROUBLE

Fast Double Play in the Eighth Inning Spoils Prospect of a Boston Rally.

The margin separating the Giants from first place in the National League pennant hunt was reduced another full game yesterday when the McGrawites made it three straight against the Boston Braves at the Polo Grounds while Bill Dahlen's Superbas were obliging with a similar feat over the league leaders at Philadelphia. As a result the faltering Phils are now backed against the wall with their once impressive lead reduced to the slim figure of one and one-half games. The score of the latest Boston conquest was 3 to 1.

For the third time in the five games that the Braves have played in the present series here the visitors forced the McGrawites to travel at top speed all the way. A fancy double play, engineered by Larry Doyle in the eighth inning, pulled Jeff Tesreau out of a troublesome situation, just as another two-ply killing had rescued the big bear hunter earlier in the game. The Boston setting in the eighth inning made it look as if McGraw might have to call on his reserves to check the Braves' advance, but Doyle stepped into the breach and saved the day.

Cy Seymour, one-time Giant, put the Boston rally in operation when he took up the cudgel for Whaling at the beginning of the eighth inning. Cy punched a little Texas Leaguer just behind second base and the Boston players, from the dugout, began to chant the swan song for Tesreau. Collins took up the running duties for Cy, who is somewhat of a Tom Needham on the base paths, and he was quickly smothered on a force play when Bill James grounded to Merkle. Rabbit Maranville followed with a safe hit to left centre and Hap Myers filled the corners with a tabasco grounder off Shafer's glove. This paved the way for the appearance of Three-bagger Connolly, whose batting has been one of the big features of the present series. Connolly wasted no time at the plate. He crashed into one of Tesreau's fast ones and the ball hopped along the carpet at no uncertain gait toward Larry Doyle. Lawrence made a clean pickup, jabbed the ball against one of Hap Myers's ribs as he hurried by, and then shot it to Merkle in time for a double play on Connolly. James was already over the plate and Maranville was pulling up at third when the double play was completed. All of which leads to the general belief that this particular play relieved Tesreau and the Giant cause from considerable trouble.

Some weird pegs on which college ball players are supposed to hold the copyright made up for the shortage of New York hits and practically decided the game. The Braves pulled off three bad throws in a row in the fourth inning, and only the cement walls kept the ball from going out of the park. The first was by Smith when Doyle grounded to second, but it caused no damage, as Larry was out of position when he stopped running to start on another dash for second. Merkle followed with a single to right, and John Titus promptly made a peg in the general direction of Coogan's Bluff when he tried to halt Doyle at third base. Larry scored on the throw and Bill James, who had recovered the ball behind third, immediately threw the ball to the outfield in an attempt to check Merkle. The later followed Doyle home.

After the damage had been done James gave a masterly exhibition of pitching. Fifteen batsmen faced him during the remainder of the game, and the only Giant to reach first base was Burns, who profited by Maranville's fumble in the eighth inning, only to be thrown out stealing. New York's first run had been picked up in the opening inning when Burns singled, stole second, went to third on Shafer's infield out, and counted on Fletcher's single to centre. Outside of the first and fourth innings the Giants went out in order.

The Braves missed some fine opportunities in the early innings as well as the big chance in the eighth. Tesreau fanned Smith in the first inning with Maranville on third after his infield hit, Myers's sacrifice, and Connolly's infield out. In the second the Braves filled the bases with none out on Titus's double, McDonald's bunt, and a pass to Mann. Titus scored on Whaling's foul fly, which Doyle caught near the right field wall, but McDonald was doubled at third on Fletcher's relay to Shafer. In the third inning McDonald singled and stole with two out, but Mann could not hit the ball out of the infield.

The game was halted after Titus had batted in Boston's half of the eighth inning, owing to a shower. Play was resumed after a delay of ten minutes. The attendance was the smallest of the present series, only 6,000 fans being in the stands. The score:

Solves Sunday Baseball Problem.

GIRARD, Kan., June 27.—Girard has found a happy solution of the problem of Sunday ball by setting apart one day in the week when everybody suspends business operations and goes to the game. The arrangement came through the suggestion of Rev. M. L. Morrison, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, after considerable wrangling early in the Summer between people who wanted ball games on Sunday and those who did not. Under the arrangement tried yesterday, all merchants closed their stores during the ball game.

LONG HITS FOR SUPERBAS.

Eight Two-Baggers Among Their 18 Hits Off Philadelphia Pitchers.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—Brooklyn made a specialty of two baggers here this afternoon and easily defeated the home team by 6 to 1. Of the visitors' eighteen hits eight were doubles. Their first six hits were two-baggers, four of these being made in the first inning and netting three runs. Brennan took Mayer's place in the third inning and did good work until the eighth, when four singles and a double netted three more runs. Stack held his opponents down to two doubles and a single, Smith, with two doubles and two singles, led the visitors at bat. The score:

YANKEES ROUTED BY BOSTON BATS

Ray Keating a Target in Opening Game and Fisher and McConnell Lose in Second.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 27.—The Red Sox dented the Yankees twice this afternoon, pounding Ray Keating, the pride of the ex-Hilltoppers, so hard in one inning during the first game that he did not continue on the job after seven runs had been piled up, and getting to Fisher and McConnell in one inning of the second contest for four runs.

The victories, which were by the scores of 10 to 3 and 6 to 4, gave the champions an opportunity to tread closely on that much-coveted third position in the League race.

Leonard did the twirling for the Red Sox in the opening game and he went along just like the best twirler in the business, allowing the Yankees only four hits, striking out six of them, and refusing to violate the free transportation law. He made a bad throw to Engle during the eighth inning following Wolter's bunt, and this allowed Daniels to cross the plate with New York's third run of the contest. Excepting this error Leonard's work was brilliant. Keating was surely off form. The champions got to him for hits at opportune moments before the grand display of fireworks in the fifth inning. Caldwell went to work in the sixth inning and held Boston to two singles.

Fisher and Bedient had a battle royal up to the eighth inning of the second grapple and the score was 2 to 2 when McConnell was sent in to work, hoping to stave off a very promising outlook for a batting rally. George did not have the goods to deliver, either, as he passed the first Bostonian he pitched to, filling the bases with one out. Two singles and a double steal followed, which gave Boston four runs and the game. Bedient was high-class in all except two innings. Not a hit was made off him until the fifth inning.

The story of the defeat of the Yankees is thus told in one chapter, the fifth. Speaker singled to second as a starter, Lewis hit to left and Gardner bunted safely. A single to centre by Engle sent Speaker and Lewis home and put Gardner on third. Ball drew a pass, filling the bases. Carrigan rapped a hit to centre, sending in Gardner and Engle. He took second on a vain throw to third to get Ball. Leonard whipped a hot one to centre for a base, bringing Ball home. Hooper filed to Daniels and Yerkes forced Leonard at second. Speaker came up for the second time and smashed a triple to centre, scoring Carrigan and Yerkes. Lewis rang the curtain down with a fly to Wolter.

Daniels was safe on Gardner's error in the first inning. He stole and continued to third on Carrigan's bad heave. Wolter's fly was muffed by Lewis, Daniels scoring. Doubles by Daniels and Cree in the fifth, with Wolter's sacrifice in between, gave New York a second run. Daniels doubled again in the eighth and scored when Leonard threw Wolter's grounder into right field. The score:

REFEREE STOPS BOUT.

Gunboat Smith Has Rodel Nearly Knocked Out in Third Round.

The heavyweight bout between Gunboat Smith of California and George Rodel of the Transvaal, at Madison Square Garden last night, was stopped by Referee Joh in the third round, after Smith had twice sent the Boer to the floor with right swings to the jaw. Rodel was not technically knocked out, but at the rate he was dropping under Smith's haphazard swings he was on his way to oblivion.

The two slimmy giants were slow, and for a while Rodel was able to keep out of the path of Gunboat's rampant right fist. Rodel kept moving around in the first round, and Smith didn't land on him squarely once. As long as Rodel kept walking he was safe, but just as soon as he gave Smith the opportunity to set himself he flirted with trouble.

In the second round Smith caught Rodel on the jaw with a right swing and sent him down for nine seconds, but the Boer got up and recuperated before the bell. Early in the third round Smith waved his right wildly over his head and the blow terminated on Rodel's jaw, and again he went dizzily to the canvas for the count. He was up again, and Smith rushed him to the ropes and smashed his right to the face, but with no damaging effect. The Boer was up prancing around, when the Gunboat rushed at him and Rodel keeled over. Referee Joh called Smith to his corner and stopped the bout. Rodel was up on his feet in a few seconds loudly protesting against not being allowed to take his nine-second sojourn on the floor. He said he was ready to proceed.

Sheriff Harburger was present with Mike Donovan, who has just been appointed chief adviser to the official in affairs fistic. The Sheriff was pleased that the bout was stopped. Smith weighed 180¾ pounds and Rodel scaled 185¼ pounds. Both are still unschooled in the ways of boxing. If Rodel had kept up his walking around the ring, he would not be the disappointed man he is to-day. Rodel landed a left jab on Smith's face occasionally, but Smith didn't mind it.

George Kirkwood of St. Louis and Walter Brooks of this city pounded each other's face generously in the ten-round semi-final, the faces of both boxers being badly cut. The advantage shifted from one to the other, and the honors in the end were about even. Kirkwood apparently suffered more from the clash than his opponent.

Benedict-Jeannette Bout Stopped.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 27.—Al Benedict of Brooklyn was saved from a knockout at the hands of Joe Jeannette here to-night when the referee stopped the fight in the third round. It was to have gone fifteen rounds. A right hook to the jaw sent Benedict down for the count of nine in the third round and another blow floored him a few seconds after he arose. He came up so groggy that the referee waved Jeannette from him. Benedict bled profusely from the first round as the result of a blow to the mouth.

Police Save Referee in Paris.

PARIS, June 27.—The referee in a twenty-round fight here to-night between Frank Madole, an American lightweight, and Albert Badoud, a Swiss, was mobbed in the ring by the spectators when he declared the bout a draw. The crowd considered that the American was entitled to the decision on points. The police had to be called in to clear the hall.

PASSING OF LAJOIE.

Second Baseman, Incapacitated by Injuries, to be Used as Pinch Hitter.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Manager Birmingham of the Cleveland Americans admitted to-day that he probably will retire Napoleon Lajoie as regular second baseman of the team. He said, however, that no such decision had been made and that for a time Lajoie probably would continue to hold his old place. Turner is slated to succeed him as second baseman, but there is no intention, Birmingham said, of letting Lajoie get away from the team, as he is hitting in his old-time form and is still a good fielder.

The benching of Lajoie would remove from active service one of the oldest stars of baseball. He has been slowed up by injuries which kept him out of the game several weeks after he had apparently started on another successful season. This was Lajoie's seventeenth season in major league baseball. From 1897 to 1901 he played in Philadelphia. Since then he has been with Cleveland, part of the time as manager. By many he is rated as the greatest batter that ever lived. Starting with 1897 his yearly averages have been: .363, .328, .379, .346, .422, .369, .355, .381, .328, .355, .299, .289, .324, .384, .365, .368, .323. He is 38 years old.

St. Louis Wins Polo Consolation Cup

LAKE FOREST, Ill., June 27.—The St. Louis Country Club defeated the Kansas City Club, 8½ to 7½, for the Consolation Cup of the mid-Western polo handicap, the St. Louis handicap of 1 giving it the winning goal. Kansas City, as in its game with Cincinnati on Tuesday, came up from behind in the last period, but was unable to overcome the lead St. Louis established in the early periods.

ROCK ABBEY FIRST IN DINNER STAKES

Races at Belmont Terminal Marred by Scratches and Falls in 'Chases.

Numerous scratches marred the card yesterday at the concluding session of the two days' race meet at Belmont Park Terminal, held under the auspices of the United Hunts Racing Association, and which attracted its usual number of devotees. The prospective feature event on the programme of six races, the Sportsmen's Steeplechase Dinner Stakes, showed seven defections when the event was called, with J. E. Davis's O'Bear and Charles Pfizer's Rock Abbey the only ones to sport silks.

The latter, it was said, was only put in to save a walk-over, as Donohue, the Pfizer trainer, noting the almost never-ending scratching for the race, stated that while he did not think his charge could win, he was anxious to help make a semblance of a contest. The event was purely a sporting proposition, as no prize went to any other than the winning horse.

As a result the unexpected happened when O'Bear, a 1 to 2 shot, bolted through the wing of the first jump, which was taken successfully by Rock Abbey. O'Bear, with Fred Alpers up, was compelled to retrace his steps and again take the jump, which he cleared. By this time Tommy Wright was a hundred yards in front, with Rock Abbey, and, although the race was over the three-mile distance, with a dozen jumps intervening, he did nothing more than let his mount rate along at a gallop.

The result was Rock Abbey won by a hundred lengths, and at the remunerative price of 8 to 5. Try as he would, Alpers could make no impression with the favorite, which was rushed at every jump in a vain endeavor to overtake the ultimate winner.

The choices in the first race, the Green Steeplechase, at two miles, were Maltbie and Allan Pinkerton's Windrow, which were quoted at 9 to 10 and even money respectively. The other starters, Ben Cabell and Native Maid, were listed at 20 to 1 each, and ran as their prices indicated until the favorites both fell at the last jump, when Maltbie was a length to the good. This opened the way for the long shots, which finished as if they had been regular contenders throughout, with the result that Corbett, the only professional rider in the race, managed to get Harry Page's Ben Cabell home by hard riding at the end, with Native Maid second, and Windrow, which was remounted, third.

R. T. Wilson's Flying Yankee was unruly at the post in the second race, in which there was a delay of fifteen minutes before a start was effected. Trouble was also caused by Einar, on which Eddie Tucker tried to anticipate the flag, and which on one of his breaks ran off into an adjoining cornfield. When the starter finally got the field away Deduction, with Tommy Wright up, was off winging, and Wright never let his mount down, finally winning by eight lengths from Philip Stevenson's Plutocrat, a 20 to 1 shot, which beat Einar a half length for the place.

The Members' Handicap Plate, at three-quarters of a mile, attracted five starters, chief of which at the finish, were Eadbald, Peter G. Gerry's gelding, which was made an even-money favorite, and A. Ludlow Kramer's Culvert, quoted at 2 to 1. The further Eadbald ran, after the start, the longer the gap he opened between himself and Culvert, which was always second, and eventually beaten by four lengths, while Fred Essen, a 15 to 1 shot, was third, ten lengths off. The summary:

FIRST RACE.—The Green Steeplechase, about two miles. Won by H. S. Page's b. f. Ben Cabell, (Corbet,) 159 pounds, 20 to 1 and 2 to 1; James Park's b. f. Abbott of Brooklawn and H. T. Topping of Greenwich, veterans of the game, will play to-morrow in the finals for the State title. Abbott beat N. Metropolitan Open Golf Aug. 13, 14.

Aug. 13 and 14 are the dates selected by the Metropolitan Golf Association for its annual open championship tournament. The scene will be the Salisbury links at Garden City. Several weeks ago the association sent letters to various clubs in this district and received responses from twenty or more, offering the privileges of the courses. Many favored Englewood, but Salisbury seems to have come out ahead.

The association also has formally accepted the offer of the Upper Montclair Country Club to present a trophy to the association to replace the Chauncey plaque, recently won permanently by Jerome D. Travers. A committee has been appointed by the association to confer with the officials of the club regarding the name of the trophy and other similar details.

Fine Cricket in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27. — Remarkable fielding and bowling kept the score of both sides down in the opening of what was to have been a three days' match between the Australian cricketers and the Gentlemen of Philadelphia to-day at Haverford, and an inning and a half were completed before stumps were drawn for the day. The local players were all out for 115 runs in the first inning, while the Australians made only 105. In the second inning the Philadelphians were all out for 57 runs. The match will be concluded to-morrow, when the Australians take their second inning. It was decided to-night to begin another match between the same players immediately upon the conclusion of their present match.

Church, the Princeton intercollegiate champion, won the final round to-day in the singles of the tennis tournament at the Wilmington Country Club for the Delaware State championship. He defeated Alexander D. Thayer, Philadelphia Cricket Club, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5. Church will play Dean Mathey of Philadelphia, the present champion, for the title to-morrow.

Church and A. W. Kidder will to-morrow meet Inman and Holmes, the present Delaware champions, in doubles, in a match for this title.

Durborow to Try for Swim Record.

Undaunted by his failure to reach the Battery from Sandy Hook last Sunday, Charles Durborow of Philadelphia, national amateur long-distance swimming champion, will set out on an endurance test to-morrow morning. He will start with the first of the flood tide from the Battery at 3:07 A. M. and head for Sandy Hook. Should the tide swing him back before he reaches the Hook, Durborow will turn about and head back for the Battery. Even though he reach the Hook he probably will start back in an endeavor to set a world's record for distance and endurance.

THREE AMERICANS LOSE AT TENNIS

McLoughlin Only Player from This Country Left in English Championships.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27.—Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, tennis champion of the United States, is the sole survivor of the American quartet in the English lawn tennis championships. Wallace F. Johnson and Craig Biddle were defeated to-day by British players and R. Norris Williams, who was drawn against McLoughlin, retired when the score stood 2 sets to 1 in favor of the young American champion. The American representatives suffered a further reverse when Craig Biddle and Harold H. Hackett were eliminated in the doubles.

The defeat of Biddle and Johnson, while not entirely unexpected, in view of the calibre of the players left in the tournament, furnished somewhat of a surprise owing to the comparatively easy victories of their opponents. Both American players were defeated by 3 sets to one, and in each match they totally failed against the Britishers. McLoughlin is expected to play through the tournament, and, if he does so, he will be required to play against the title holder. A great gathering was present to watch the playing of the Americans.

The first break in the ranks of the victorious American players occurred when Biddle went down before W. Ingram, one of the younger representatives of the British talent. The victory was an easy one, the score being 6—3, 6—2, 1—6, 6—1. Ingram was a model of steadiness in placing, while the American's strokes lacked their wonted power.

Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia quickly followed his compatriot into retirement, being beaten by the English player, R. Watson, by three sets to one, the score being 2—6, 8—6, 6—1, 7—5.

Later in the afternoon R. Norris Williams, after playing three sets against Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco, retired in favor of his colleague on the United States Davis Cup team. The American champion is thus left alone of the United States representatives to try to fight his way to the final round. McLoughlin won the first two sets, 6—4, 6—4, while Williams took the third set at 6—3.

It was obvious from the first that the match between Williams and McLoughlin was merely for warming up purposes, and that Williams was going to leave the champion to defend American interests in the remaining stages of the tournament. McLoughlin contented himself with staying on the back line and practicing drives, while Williams provided rich fare in the way of spectacular shots to test his compatriot's alertness.

The American contingent suffered a further reverse this time in the doubles in which Craig Biddle and Harold H. Hackett of the United States Davis Cup team were beaten by two Englishmen, W. Ingram and Bentley, by three sets to two, the score being 5—7, 6—3, 9—7, 1—6, 6—4.

In the next singles match Hope Crisp, Captain of the Cambridge University team, beat R. B. Powell, Captain of the Canadian Davis Cup team, by three straight sets, 6—4, 7—5, 6—3.

Oscar Kreutzer, one of the crack players of the German Davis Cup team, beat A. W. Gore, former English champion, by three sets to one, the score being 3—6, 7—5, 6—2, 6—0.

The Captain of the Canadian Davis Cup team, Powell, totally failed against Crisp, a student of Cambridge, but Kreutzer, who is a very strong German player, was successful over the veteran Englishman and former champion, Gore. Stanley N. Doust, Captain of the Australasian Davis Cup team, beat Larsen of Denmark three sets to two. The score was 4—6, 2—6, 6—1, 6—0, 6—4.

Kenneth Powell, formerly Captain of the Cambridge University lawn tennis team, beat C. P. Dixon, the English Davis Cup player, by three sets to two, 6—3, 3—6, 3—6, 6—3, 11—9.

TOUCHARD WINS AT NET.

Heat Affects Players in the Middle States Tennis Tourney.

Gustave F. Touchard scored an easy victory over W. M. Washburn yesterday in the semi-final round of the Middle States men's singles tennis championship. The contest was a disappointing one, Touchard winning in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3. In view of the previous good racquet work of the pair, a big gallery surrounded the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club at Mountain, N. J., in anticipation of a close match. The excessive heat apparently affected the play of both men, as neither played in anything like form. Touchard was good and bad at times, his fore-hand work being only fair, while his back-hand strokes left much to be desired. Hall was badly off in his service and netted a number of balls. Touchard secured the lead at the start of the first set and held it to the end.

The defeat of Walter M. Hall and C. M. Bull, Jr., in the third round of the doubles came as a surprise. Touchard, who was paired with his former opponent, Washburn, made a much better showing than in the singles, and was well supported by Washburn. The pair showed good team work and outplayed their opponents. Touchard and Washburn took the first game at love, Hall and Bull being unable to do anything with the swift returns of their opponents. The Crescent Athletic Club player scored several aces, but Hall appeared to be unable to reach the ball. The second set was interesting for the first six games, when the score was 3—all. Touchard and Washburn then rallied and, sweeping their opponents off their feet, captured the next three games in quick succession, and with them the set and match. In the lower half of this round Holcomb Ward, the former national champion, and G. Miles easily defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum and G. A. L. Dionne of the West Side Tennis Club in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

In the semi-final round of the women's singles Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas defeated Miss Ruth Cheeseman after two grueling sets and qualified to play Miss Edith Rotch of the Longwood Cricket Club, and the winner of this match will engage in the championship round with Mrs. C. N. Beard, the title holder.

In the mixed doubles Mrs. Touchard and W. F. Burden defeated Miss Marjorie Pierson and R. R. Boorasem in the first round, but failed to maintain their form against Miss Margaret Seymour and E. A. Clark in the second round, and lost a hard three-set match. Owing to Dean Mathey, who is bracketed with Touchard in the men's final, being compelled to defend his title to-day at Wilmington, Del., the championship round in men's singles will be played Monday. The summary:

Middle States Championship, Men's Singles, Semi-Final Round.—Gustave F. Touchard defeated W. M. Washburn, 6—1, 6—3.

Women's Singles, Semi-Final Round.—Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas defeated Miss Ruth Cheeseman, 7—5, 6—2.

Men's Doubles, Second Round.—Bennett and Magown defeated Doubleday and Pate by default; Washburn and Touchard defeated Ogden and Woodbury by default; Hall and Bull defeated Miller and Seabury, 7—5, 6—2.

Third Round.—Ward and Miles defeated Rosenbaum and Dionne, 6—4, 6—3; Touchard and Washburn defeated Hall and Bull, 6—0, 6—4.

Men's Consolation Singles, Preliminary Round.—G. S. Groesbeck defeated Theodore Corwin, 6—0, 6—4.

Mixed Doubles, First Round.—Mrs. Gustave F. Touchard and Williams F. Burden defeated Miss Marjorie Pierson and R. R. Boorsem, 6—0, 6—2.

Second Round.—Miss Margaret Seymour and E. A. Clark defeated Mrs. Gustave F. Touchard and Williams F. Burden, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Man Beats Grant at Tennis.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 27.—By defeating Wylie C. Grant of the West Side Tennis Club of New York to-day in the finals of the New England tennis tournament on the courts of the Hartford Golf Club, A. P. Man, Jr., of Yale, earned the right to play F. H. Harris of Brattleboro, Vt., in the challenge round to-morrow for the New England championship. Man won from Grant in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3. He played a heady game and was effective in his service and net play, clearly outclassing his veteran opponent. C. E. Bacon and J. A. Richards of Wesleyan, intercollegiate doubles champions, defeated Grant and R. H. Cole of Hartford in the finals of the championship doubles, 9—7, 6—4, 7—5.

SETS OFF BY CANOE FOR SAN FRANCISCO

Mr. Sullivan, Starting Up the Hudson, Expects to Go Through Panama Canal.

THEN ON TO CALIFORNIA

He Is Not Afraid of Open Water, for He Says He Lived with the Siwash Indians.

John H. Sullivan, Jr., left New York yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in an open canoe with the intention of reaching San Francisco in this craft via the Panama Canal. His starting point was the Hudson River Yacht Club, at the foot of Ninety-first Street and the North River. The club fired a salute when he left.

Mr. Sullivan was sure of success. As proof of this he offered the evidence of having come in the canoe from the northern end of Lake Hopatcong by canal to the yacht club in four days. He expected to reach Alpine, N. J., last night.

"From there," said Mr. Sullivan, "I will continue up the Hudson to Albany, then through the Erie Canal to Buffalo, thence to Toledo, Ohio, and down the southern shore of Lake Erie. Through the Maumee River and canals I will reach Cincinnati, and there I will get into the Ohio River and go to Cairo, Ill.; there I reach the Mississippi River and will go down to New Orleans.

This will take two months from the day I leave Toledo, for I plan to travel at the rate of twenty-five miles a day. I expect a dull trip from New York to New Orleans, but after that the excitement of the journey will begin.

Will Hunt Leper Swamps.

"There are said to be leper swamps south of New Orleans, that is colonies, which New Orleans naturally wishes to keep concealed. I believe these swamps exist, and I shall try to find them, and also shall try to keep away from them when found.

"From this vicinity I shall cut through the canebrake, cypress swamps, and sea marshes until in the neighborhood of Lake Charles, La., when I shall strike the open coast and the Gulf of Mexico, then proceeding to Galveston, Texas, and Brownsville, Texas. At Brownsville I shall have reached my last American city. From there I shall be in Mexican territory for a time. I shall pass the town of Tampico, and down the Mexican coast to the coast of Central America, thus reaching the City of Colon, Panama. Then actually through the Panama Canal, the first American canoe ever to go through it.

"By the time I reach this point it will be January or February, 1914. From the City of Panama I work north again along the Pacific Coast until opposite the extreme southern end of Lower California. This will be the most hazardous part of the trip, for here I will face 200 miles of open ocean to California. No one has ever tried this stretch of water in a canoe, but I know I can do it. I shall go on to San Francisco, to the Mayor of which I carry greetings from Mayor Gaynor.

Knowledge of Siwash Will Help.

"I know I can make this trip successfully. I lived with the Siwash Indians, who are the fisher people of Vancouver, and I have made eight and ten day trips with them on the open ocean.

"A light canoe will survive where a rowboat or small craft of another kind never can get through. A canoe has the reputation of being a still-water craft, but the French Canadians of the Hudson Bay Company go out in them on the roughest waters in the world. I intend to prove that the old adage about a 'small craft for small waters' is wrong. I can repair a canoe as long as there is even half of it left to work on. This one of mine is sixteen feet long and is built of red cedar. I have one extra paddle and my pack, which weighs 300 pounds. This pack includes two revolvers and one gun and a trumpet to hail any one if in need of help.

"My canoe is the one in which I saved thirty lives in the recent flood at Peru, Ind. Also, I made a trip in this boat from Chicago to New Orleans.

"My adventures began when I was 10 years old, when I left home and walked 200 miles south, thinking I was going to Chicago. Some kindly person told me to go north, and I walked the 200 miles back again.

"This love of adventure is inherited from my father, who was Col. John H. Sullivan, known to many as 'Broncho John.' He was especially decorated with a gold medal by President Arthur for his marvelous scout work at the time of the Indian uprisings.

"I am an expert swimmer. I can swim as easily as I can walk. In smooth water I can swim all day; in rough water or surf seven miles without tiring, so I have nothing to fear from the water," concluded Mr. Sullivan.

BAN ON FIREMEN'S SOCIETY.

Recruits Forbidden to Join Benevolent Association.

Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson startled some 349 new firemen yesterday when he announced that no member of the Fire Department appointed yesterday or thereafter would be permitted to join the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, of which James Clifford, a dismissed fire Captain, is head.

The Commissioner a few months ago issued a statement setting forth facts he had learned regarding the association, and asserting that he had been unable to ascertain the condition of its finances.

The Commissioner's announcement yesterday, which was in the form of a general order, did not affect the old members of the department who had paid money into the association. In his order the Commissioner said:

> No fireman appointed after this hour and date will be permitted to be a member of the Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association, the head of which is not a member of the uniformed force, having been dismissed from the department for acts subversive of its discipline.

In a statement supplementing the order Commissioner Johnson said that in his opinion the "money and influence of the association" was used to lobby for the passage of the proposed two-platoon bill, which was vetoed by Mayor Gaynor. When asked how he could prevent the new men from joining the Benevolent Association Commissioner Johnson said:

"They would be disobeying orders. They would be advocating a two-platoon system the same as Clifford, who was dismissed from the department. The highest courts upheld the department on that decision. If the new men disobeyed orders I should have them tried and dismissed."

IT IS NOW "TURNER, R. N. R."

Mauretania's Commander Arrives with His Honorary Rank.

The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived yesterday from Liverpool with 348 first, 326 second, and 1,058 third class passengers and mails, having made the passage of 2,908 miles from Daunts Rock to the Ambrose Channel Lightship in 4 days 23 hours and 49 minutes, at an average of 24.27 knots.

Capt. W. T. Turner's name appeared on the list with the letters R. N. R. after it, as King George conferred the honorary rank of commander in the Royal Naval Reserve on him before the ship left Liverpool. According to the arrangements made and printed on board, King George and Queen Mary will board the Mauretania at 3:35 P. M. on July 11, when she is anchored in the River Mersey at the head of two lines of ships five miles long. The new Cunarder Andania, for the London-Canadian service, will be at the head of the left column at the opening ceremony of the Gladstone Docks, which have cost about $25,000,000.

Capt. Turner and Staff Capt. F. G. Brown, R. N. R., with the officers and crew, will meet the King and Queen at the gangway when they board the ship from the harbor tender Galatea. Capt. Turner will escort King George about the ship and Capt. Brown will guide Queen Mary.

King George will inspect the Conway cadets on the Mauretania and also the boys from the training ship Indefatigable. The royal standard will fly from the main truck of the liner while the King is on board.

BULL MOOSE FOR WHITMAN.

Friends Say Bird Is Only Leader Holding Off Now.

Friends of District Attorney Whitman, particularly those in the Progressive Party, who want to see him nominated for Mayor denied yesterday that large numbers of Progressives were deserting him and that his campaign had thereby received a setback. The outlook for his nomination by the Fusionists, they said, was never better, and when the Fusion Sub-Committee on Candidates reports next week to the Executive Committee they expect that it will be to recommend that the District Attorney head their ticket.

A delegation of east side bankers and merchants, representing the East Side Business and Professional Men's League, which was formed on Thursday, called on the District Attorney in his office in the Criminal Court Building yesterday and pledged their support in the campaign. Arnold Korn, Emil Kiss, and M. Jarmulowsky headed the delegation.

BIG VERDICT FOR MINER.

Gets $37,500 for Explosion Which Destroyed His Sight.

In the Federal Court in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon Stanislaw Yensavage, a miner, obtained $37,500 in damages in a suit for personal injuries brought against the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. Yensavage was employed as a laborer in a mine at Shenandoah, Penn. In June, 1911, he asserted, an unprotected torch in his hat set fire to blasting caps and an explosion followed.

Yensavage's sight was destroyed and his right arm and the thumb and index finger of his left hand were blown off. He found that in Pennsylvania he would have to sue the certified miner who employed him, so he brought an action in the Federal court here.

DOGS GIFTS OF KAISER.

Two Arrive at Waldorf, but Have to Lodge in the Trunk Room.

While many dogs of aristocratic lineage have been seen in shows at the Waldorf-Astoria, or have been brought to the hotel by their mistresses, all records for caninies of notes which have graced the hotel with their presence have been broken during the last few days, it was learned yesterday. After the arrival of the Oceanic the other day, Mrs. A. S. Clarke brought to the hotel her Pekingese dog, which had been presented to her by J. Pierpont Morgan shortly before his death, and yesterday came to the establishment two canines which formerly belonged to the German Emperor. Yet, strange to say, neither of the latter was a dachshund.

Coming over on the Oceanic, Mrs. Clarke's dog had a stateroom to itself, according to one of the officers of the steamship. A maid looked after the animal and the head steward had orders to serve doggie's meals a la carte. The favorite breakfast of this distinguished traveler was minced chicken and poached eggs. The two dogs which arrived yesterday belong to the Baroness Ursula von Kalinowski of Wiesbaden, who with her brother, Baron von Kalinowski, was a passenger on Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. According to a report, the Baroness has come over to marry a railroad man in St. Louis, but both she and her brother declined to discuss the rumor. The two dogs she brought with her are a Spitz and a black-and-tan. The Baroness seemed a bit disturbed when informed that her pets exceeded the upstairs limit and that they would have to be put in the trunk room.

"You must take the very best care of them," she told the man who led them away. "They were presents from the German Emperor."

ARRESTS POLICEMAN'S SON.

Magistrate Catches Dulfer After Woman's Purse Is Stolen.

Arthur Dulfer, a son of Police Captain John Dulfer of the Richmond Hill Precinct, in Queens, was in the Flatbush Police Court, in Brooklyn, yesterday morning, charged with having snatched a purse containing $50 from Miss Agnes Anderson at the Prospect Park Plaza. A charge of vagrancy was lodged against him, and Magistrate Marsh held him in $500 bail for examination to-day. Magistrate Louis H. Reynolds saw the alleged robbery as he passed the entrance to Prospect Park in his automobile.

The Magistrate heard Miss Anderson scream and saw a man run away from her and jump over the stone wall of the park and hide among the trees. Magistrate Reynolds followed the man in his auto and caught him near the Memorial Arch. The Magistrate jumped out if his auto and seized Dulfer by the collar. The young man broke away from his captor, and there was another chase. Magistrate Reynolds called Policeman Donnelly of the Bergen Street Station and started with him in pursuit of the fugitive. In a building at Eighth Avenue and President Street Dulfer was caught a second time. He was taken to the Bergen Street Station, where Miss Anderson made a complaint against him.

Soon after Dulfer's arrest his father gave bail for him. Yesterday morning, in court, the bail was continued. Capt. Dulfer refused to comment on the arrest of his son. Young Dulfer said he was employed at one time as an insurance agent, but that he was out of work at present. Miss Anderson was not in court yesterday.

Famous Wrecker Started Life Here with 25 Cents as Capital.

Capt. Isreal J. Merritt, who died at his home in Whitestone several months ago, left a net estate of $681,813 according to the report filed yesterday with Philip Frank, Transfer Tax Appraiser of Queens. Capt. Merritt started life in New York City with a capital of 25 cents. He obtained a vessel and began dredging in New York Harbor for lost anchors. Those that he recovered he sold and thus got his first capital. With it he started in wrecking ventures. His first big task was the raising of a vessel sunk in the Buttermilk Channel.

Included in his estate are thirty improved parcels of real estate in the Flushing Ward of Queens, valued at $202,602. His home on the shore of Long Island Sound at Whitestone is valued at $35,000. In the Merritt & Chapman Company he had $45,000 of preferred stock and $210,000 of common stock. He also held $85,000 of the stock of the Merritt Wrecking Organization, a co-partnership. The property is divided equally between his widow and his four children.

Bond Issue Time Extended.

The New York and North Shore Traction Company received yesterday from the Public Service Commission an extension of time for the issue of stock and bonds from June 30 to Dec. 31, 1913. The issue authorized is $800,000 in bonds and $907,000 in stocks. Similar extension was granted yesterday to the Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company for its authorized issue of $2,000,000 common stock and $4,000,000 bonds, the period during which they must be put out being extended from June 30 next to June 30, 1914.

URGE PLAYGROUND REFORM.

Faults in Present System Pointed Out to Officials.

A number of unofficial workers in public recreation sent yesterday to the special Committee on Recreation of the Board of Estimate a memorandum calling attention to certain phases of the city's recreation system as it exists today and pointing out the necessity of certain reforms. It is signed by Luther H. Gulick, Robert S. Binkerd, Frederick C. Howe, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Lee F. Hanmer, John Collier, Seymour Barnard, Mrs. Charles H. Israels, Orrin G. Cocks, and Edward M. Barrows.

Some of the conclusions arrived at are that public recreation is now too expensive for it to be hoped that it can be expanded to meet all the needs of the people; that its expensive character is due to too much supervision, to the fact that none of it is made self-supporting by charging admission, and because neighborhood initiative is not requested. The memorandum further states that 40 per cent. of the public school plant now lies idle, representing a waste of interest and sinking fund of $2,700,000 a year, and it recommends that increased expenditures shall be for the development of these existing properties and not for the acquisition of new parks, playgrounds, &c.

It also states that the social-centre method is applicable not only to schools, but to playgrounds, parks, and armories, and urges that this policy be adopted by the Board of Estimate.

ELEVATOR KILLS POSTMAN.

John Maule Caught Between Floor and Roof of Cage.

John Maule, 53 years old, a postman of 4,817 Eleventh Avenue, Brooklyn, was killed instantly yesterday afternoon when he was caught between the fifth floor and the roof of the elevator cage at 113 Fourth Avenue. Maule was taking mail to a firm on the fifth floor of the building and had ascended in the elevator. The car stopped at the fifth floor and Maule was stepping out, when, in some unknown manner, the cage shot downward.

The postman's right leg caught, and he was dragged down, the roof of the cage crushing his head against the floor. The cage then stuck and would go neither up nor down.

Morris Lewis, a tenant, heard the cries of those in the elevator and ran to the street, after unsuccessfully attempting to extricate Maule, to call a policeman. Finding no officer, Lewis ran to Thirteenth Street and notified the Fire Captain in charge of Hook and Ladder 3. Firemen hurried to the building, and by chopping through the floor and roof of the car, managed to release Maule after an hour's work. A doctor, called from Bellevue Hospital, pronounced the man dead.

George Maule, eldest son of the postman, arrived shortly before his father's body was taken from the shaft, and said that his father had been in the postal service for twenty-eight years.

DRY GOODS IN DEMAND.

Country Stocks Depleted and Mill Orders Slow.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Marshall Field & Co.'s review of the dry goods trade says:

"The dry goods trade has kept up well during the week, the warmer weather and timely rainfall in sections where moisture was most needed being a factor in bringing this result.

"Re-orders through the mails indicate low stocks on retail shelves. Merchants have operated conservatively during the last six months, and, although the selling seasons were somewhat backward, indications are that the inventories, which will be closed within a few days, will show a very satisfactory business for the first half of the year.

"Manufactured stocks in all lines are low, and merchandise most in demand at the present time is hard to get from the mills.

"More future business was booked than during the corresponding week a year ago, and current shipments for the month show an increase over those of June last year.

"Collections are about normal."

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Regarding the present condition of trade Dun's Review says:

There has been some slackening in retail trade, the usual Summer dullness being reported at many points, but wholesale distribution continues in fair volume. As for some time past, buyers confine their operations mainly to actual needs, the fast-approaching completion of the new tariff naturally resulting in a wholesome concervatism in this respect. Crops, now entering upon their most critical period, have passed another week with no serious loss from their previous satisfactory condition, although reports indicate some deterioration in Spring wheat. An improved sentiment was manifest in the securities market abroad, largely on the prospect of a satisfactory conclusion of the important financial settlements at London and Berlin. Consumers of iron and steel have not ceased to urge deliveries, but premiums have almost entirely disappeared, and price concessions are made in some finished material departments. Railroad gross earnings for the first three weeks of June showed an increase of 8.1 per cent. as compared with the corresponding period a year ago. The net surplus of idle cars for the fortnight ended June 14, however, increased by 13,019, and amounted in all to 63,927, as compared with 67,718 at the same date in 1912.

Bradstreet's says:

Business holds up remarkably well, notwithstanding that the midsummer season for inventorying is approaching. Crop returns, as a whole, are favorable, especially as regards Winter wheat, cotton, and corn; consumption of merchandise is heavy, stocks are light, business on current account is larger than seasonably normal, and trade in pig iron has improved, thanks to very low prices. In the surplus grain-producing sections the illuminating fact is that merchants, undeterred by tariff matters, are going ahead with their Fall purchases, retail trade has been given a fillip by seasonable weather plus clearance sales, and, moreover, it appears to be easier to get money on commercial paper. Collections continue fair to slow, and though a few points report improvement, they are the exceptions to the rule. Coal is very firm, bituminous grades are in light supply, and the West Virginia fields are again beset by labor troubles, actual or prospective. Traffic on Western railways is very heavy, and gross earnings are large, but operating expenses show expansion, owing to charges for betterments being set up against cost of operation. The railroads would buy more were it not that money commands such high rates.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The New York office of the New England Cord and Webbing Company, 239 Fourth Avenue, will be closed on Saturday, July 5.

The Jay Company, resident buyer, has not obtained the account of Hillman's, Chicago, as reported. The report rose from the fact that I. M. Mayer, local representative of Hillman's, had rented space in the uptown office of the Jay Company.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

To Study Department Stores.

It was announced yesterday by the National Retail Dry Goods Association that an investigation of the relations of department store owners to their employes would be begun on July 7 under the auspices of that body. The investigation will be conducted by Elizabeth Gannon, a magazine writer. It is planned to devote a year to the investigation, and to study store conditions in every State of the Union. The truth regarding conditions and effects is wanted by the association. General interest is manifested in the movement by the members, and, according to Secretary Pinkham, some merchants, who are not members of the association, have contributed to the investigation fund. Miss Gannon will investigate matters involving wages and hours of employes, environment, profit-sharing schemes for store workers, and sales efficiency. The investigation will be undertaken to enable department store owners, through its findings, better to handle their employes in the interest of greater efficiency and their own welfare. The first work will be done in Buffalo, where the cause and effect of the recent strike of department store employes will be studied. The investigation will be the first of its kind undertaken in this country.

Exposition Date Changed.

The buyers' exhibition of foreign and domestic merchandise that had been planned for Aug. 14-23 in the Grand Central Palace, will open on July 24. Buyers are coming into this market early this year, and this fact is responsible for the change of date. The exhibition will be different from others that have been given along this line, and that have not been successful. The men back of the movement will buy enough merchandise themselves to make the exhibition of real value to department store buyers, from a viewpoint of style. Manufacturers of the lines to be shown may take space if they desire, but it is said that they will not be urged to do so. It will be a strictly trade show, and buyers will be admitted without charge on presentation of credentials. W. W. Nugent is managing the project.

"Newlywed Sale" to Aid Business.

A "newlywed sale" was the method adopted by a Southern merchant to enliven trade during a dull period, according to a trade bulletin of Butler Brothers. The sale applied to articles in the home goods department. A library table was put up as a prize for the couple that bought the most kitchen hardware and other home goods in the time specified. The only stipulation was that the couples entering the contest must not have been married for more than two years. The table was put in a prominent show window, and eligible couples were invited to inspect it. Names and wedding dates of the people who intended to try for the table were registered at the store. The sale was so successful that the cost of the table represented only a small part of the profits derived.

Laces Will Be Popular.

Laces will be popular for dress garniture in the Spring of 1914, according to Sol U. Bloch of the Nottingham Lace Works, 17 West Seventeenth Street. Mr. Bloch returned yesterday on the Mauretania from an extended trip to the European lace markets. Commenting on the outlook, he said:

"A great many lace flounces in eighteen and twenty-seven-inch widths were worn at the Ascot and Chantilly races. Most of them were on fancy grounds. Craquelle and web effects were prominent. It seems to be understood among style authorities that all kinds of laces that can be pleated, or draped, will be popular. Beading effects in lace flounces are well thought of for Summer and Fall. These permit the insertion of ribbon up to one and one-half inches in width, and give a stunning effect when worn under chiffon or some similar material. Allovers will sell well, especially in eighteen and forty-five-inch widths. Very light Venises in Paraguay effects should arouse a good demand. The latest novelty laces are those made up in cubist effects. They are shown in all the principal foreign markets, and they should take very well in this country.

Newark Fighting Leather Law.

Mayor Haussling of Newark has sent a letter to Gov. Fielder of New Jersey requesting him to call a special session of the Legislature in order to protect the leather industry of Newark from losses through the enactment of a law in Massachusetts requiring a certification of the measurements of all leather shipped into that State.

After investigation the Newark city authorities and leather manufacturers concluded that legislation by the State was the only way by which the Newark leather industry could be protected. It had been suggested that the Newark Common Council pass an ordinance giving the city Sealer of Weights and Measures power to swear in measurers at each factory. The trade of Newark with Massachusetts in leather of the kind covered by the statutes is between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 a year.

Closed Saturdays During Summer.

James A. Hearn & Son of West Fourteenth Street, according to custom, beginning on Saturday, July 5, will close their establishment all day on Saturdays during July and August. When the store closes at 6 P. M. on Thursday, July 3, it will not be reopened until Monday, July 7.

State to Tax Coal Production.

HARRISBURG, Penn., June 27.—Gov. Tener to-day signed the Anthracite Coal Tax bill, which fixed a 2½ per cent. ad valorem tax on all anthracite, 50 per cent. to be returned to the county where the coal is mined. It will produce about $4,500,000 annual revenue.

COMPLAIN OF INCOME TAX.

Real Estate Interests Have Made a Wide Campaign for Modification.

Edward F. Clark, formerly President of the Guardian Trust Company and a member of the Law Committee of the Allied Real Estate Interests, made a statement yesterday in regard to what the Allied Real Estate Interests had been trying to do throughout the country in uniting realty interests against those parts of the Income Tax bill which the real estate men regard as discriminatory against real estate.

He said it had been brought to the attention of the Senate Finance Committee that in each case the Government was selecting the less responsible person to look to for the tax and was, in fact, compelling a tenant and a mortgageor to withhold 1 per cent. of the full amount of rent or interest from the person entitled to it for a full six months subsequent to the close of the calendar year. The provisions relating to deductions from gross income were unjust and illogical and bound to result in inequality in taxation.

The proposed bill puts a premium upon overcapitalization, he said, and it was conceded overcapitalization has been an important factor in bringing about our present economic troubles.

He said that instances could be shown where corporations would be obliged to pay an income tax, although as a matter of fact their year's operations might have resulted in a loss. This, he said, was caused by the provisions of the bill preventing them from deducting from their gross rents all of the interest which they pay in determining their net incomes.

Mr. Clark said that he had appeared before the sub-committee of the Senate Finance Committee and had submitted to it a proposed amendment permitting the deduction from gross income of all interest paid during the year by a corporation on indebtedness secured by mortgages on real estate, filing with it a memorandum calling attention to the "injustice which would be worked upon small corporations engaged in all lines of business, and particularly all those organized for the purpose of holding or dealing in real estate by the operation of the provisions in the pending bill."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that champagne does not lose its character as champagne even if no effervescence is apparent when a bottle of the wine is opened. E. L. Parker of Buffalo imported the champagne, which was returned by the customs officials at the rates provided under the Tariff act of 1909 for sparkling wine. The importer contended that, as the samples of the wine failed to effervesce when opened, the product should enter at lower duty as still wine. The testimony was to the effect that a sparkling wine may lose, and, in fact, frequently does lose, its effervescence if bottled more than five months. Judge Somerville, in his decision for the board, held that from the character of the corking and wiring of the bottles, it was apparent that the containers were for sparkling wines. The protest was accordingly overruled.

The Continental Paper Bag Company of Boston failed to get lower duty on goods returned by the appraiser as imitation parchment paper and taxed 2 cents a pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 411 of the present law. The importers asked a rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem as wrapping paper, under Paragraph 415 of the act.

The Farbenfabriken of Elberfeld Company was unsuccessful in a contention that circulars for advertising purposes were free of duty as samples of no commercial value. Duty was affirmed at 25 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 416, as printed matter.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

THE HENNEBIQUE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.—The Hennebique Construction Company of 1,170 Broadway is endeavoring to put through a composition with creditors in bankruptcy by giving creditors preferred stock of the company for 70 per cent. of the amounts of their claims. It is proposed to amend the incorporation so as to issue $100,000 of preferred stock. Nine creditors have filed specifications of objections to the composition, namely, the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, West Jersey & Seashore Railroad Company, Pennsylvania Oil Works, H. W. Johns-Manville Company, C. T. Willard Company, George Tocht's Sons, John C. Orr Company, Adrian T. Kiernan, and Caroline M. Johnston. The main objections are that creditors are obliged to take preferred stock in a bankrupt company, are not allowed any cash, have no promise or assurance that new capital will be provided to carry on the business, would be liable for future debts of the company, and have no voice in the control of the company, which is left in the hands of those who hold common stock and have been unable to successfully manage the company in the past.

The John C. Orr Company alleges that the sole purpose is to capitalize the indebtedness without the introduction of any new assets or property, and would, therefore, increase the capitalization without a corresponding increase of assets. The capital stock now is $50,000, has been entirely impaired, and is of no value. The composition proposed consists of an offer to pay the debts of the company with worthless stock, the acceptance of which will impose a heavy personal liability on the present creditors who receive the stock.

Adrian T. Kiernan opposes the composition as unfair and inequitable, as it proposes to cancel 30 per cent. of the debts and to permit the present stockholders to capitalize the balance of the debts and use such capitalization to carry on the business. Creditors are thus compelled to cancel 30 per cent. of debt and then ultimately to accept stock in the company for the remaining 70 per cent., thus placing their debt at the risk of business, and who also might become liable for thousands of dollars for claims of laborers should the business not be successful. The liabilities of the company are $256,829 and the assets $183,495.

THE AMERICAN SILK GARMENT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against James Grand, trading as the American Silk Garment Company, manufacturer of kimonos and dresses, at 104 Fifth Avenue, by these creditors: Debany Brothers, $285; Kassar Brothers, $378, and W. H. Hassett, $150. It was alleged that he was insolvent and made preferential payments, $500. He began business on April 1, 1911. Liabilities are $5,000, and assets $1,000.

JOHN LEONE, SR.—John Leone, Sr., of 129 East 106th Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $2,200, and assets, consisting of moving picture chattels in possession of Robert J. Mahoney, covered by a chattel mortgage of $800, value unknown.

JOHN LEONE.—John Leone of 2,337 Tiebout Avenue, Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $740, and nominal assets, $700, a claim against Joseph Leone, Sr., on accommodation indorsement.

THEODORE A. COOK.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed here against Theodore A. Cook of Callicoon, Sullivan County, by these local creditors: Martin Hermann, $192; Fred H. Stark, $352, and Fred Hesenpfluh, $151. It was alleged that he was insolvent and on May 20 transferred all his property to his brother, W. L. Cook without consideration. Theodore A. Cook was in bankruptcy once before on a voluntary petition, filed on May 9, 1899, and he received a discharge on July 26, 1899.

THE ST. DENIS HOTEL COMPANY.—Judge Hand has signed an order authorizing Arthur F. Gotthold, receiver of the St. Denis Hotel Company, at Eleventh Street and Broadway, to continue business for twenty days, to engage help and pay them, replenish stock and purchase merchandise whenever necessary, pay all bills incurred in the continuance of the business, may do everything necessary in the proper conduct of the business, and may in his discretion, if he deems it for the best interest of creditors, discontinue running the business before the expiration of twenty days. It was said that it was necessary to keep the business going, as steps will shortly be taken to rehabilitate the company and make a settlement with creditors. The only assets in sight are the furnishings, current supplies, accounts, and good will, if any.

MARCO MARKOWITZ.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Marco Markowitz, manufacturer of neckwear at 467 Broadway, show liabilities of $15,150 and assets of $5,640, consisting of stock, $4,500; accounts, $1,100, and cash in bank, $40. Among the creditors are M. Schulman & Co., $4,000, secured, and M. Rude & Co., $1,800, secured.

BROWN BROTHERS & SIMON.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Brown Brothers & Simon, as the Brown Waist Company, at 200 Greene Street, show liabilities of $6,056 and assets of $2,903, consisting of accounts, $1,903, and fire insurance money in the hands of adjusters, $1,000.

THE D. MURPHY TRUCKING AND RIGGING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the D. Murphy Trucking and Rigging Company of 35 Warren Street show liabilities of $6,297 and assets of $4,753, consisting of stock, $4,545; accounts, $200, and cash, $8.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 260 business failures in the United States in the week, against 235 for the previous week and 239, 227, 197, and 218 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 68, New England 30, Southern 58, Western 61, Northwestern 10, and Far Western 33. Canada had 18, against 24 for the preceding week. Some 85 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, 8 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Further Small Reaction in Stocks—The Market for Government Bonds.

The signs of the times show plainly in the continued large inflow of cash from the interior. Estimates of the week's currency movements indicated yesterday a further gain of upward of $6,000,000 in the cash holdings of the banks. It was uncertain how far the gain from the interior would offset the large payments made to the Sub-Treasury since the last bank statement was compiled, but if the lowest of the estimates of the actual net gain is borne out, the banks will have added enough to their cash holdings to bring the gain during the last three weeks up to the large figure of $23,000,000. This inflow is due in part to a normal release of cash from trade uses in the interior and in part to the effect of the conservatism which lenders of money have been showing.

How all this is affecting the local money market is shown very clearly in the fact that yesterday, on the eve of the last day for preparation for the very large July disbursements, call money did not rise above 2 per cent. The great ease in call loans is the direct result of the conditions which are causing high time money rates. There can be little doubt that the loan accounts of the New York banks are in unusually liquid condition, and what is true at this centre seems to be becoming to a larger extent true at many other points. July 1 is a time of heavy demands upon the money centres of the world, and most of the markets seem to have unusually well prepared for these demands. Germany supplies a case in point. Berlin has been drawing gold freely from other markets, principally from London, and has so fortified itself against the needs of the half-yearly settlement that money is already being pressed for use in that market following the turn of the month. Forward discount rates have gone below the 5 per cent. named a few days ago. In our own market the response which is being made to the offerings of notes of varying maturities which are being placed by bankers suggests more willingness than has lately prevailed to accept the unusually high return which is offered by short term securities of undoubted standing.

While the financial community continues with keen interest to discuss the probable fate of the Currency bill and its effects should it become law, one department of the bond market has within the last couple of days reflected in practical fashion the influence of some features of the new currency plan. United States 2 per cent. bonds have again sold back to par after having shown firmness prior to the reinstatement in the Currency bill of the sections providing for the retirement of outstanding national bank circulation and for the refunding of the 2 per cent. bonds into 3 per cents. The reason for the weakening of the market for these bonds is found of course in the fact that the proposal to increase the interest rate to 3 per cent. is not regarded by bankers as sufficient protection for the bonds in the event of the retirement of the circulation which is now outstanding against them. It is not felt that in any such investment market as now exists these 3 per cent. bonds would be worth par on a purely investment basis. Hence the unwillingness of dealers to purchase Government 2's at this time. And yet apparently so little are the real facts of the investment situation understood at Washington that at the recent conference over the Currency bill at the White House some members of the Senate committee opposed the proposal to refund the 2 per cent. bonds into 3 per cents. on the ground that the country would hardly tolerate an arrangement so profitable to the banks. That, perhaps, would be a fair ground of objection if the prices at which our Government issues have been selling had been based on purely investment considerations. The fact is, of course, that the market for our Government bonds has been artificially sustained by the system of national bank-bond secured circulation and by Treasury practice regarding the securing of public deposits in the National banks. It is difficult to see how the banks, so far from making any profit by the conversion which is proposed in the Currency bill, could avoid a loss on their Government-bond holdings in the event of the retirement of the present national bank circulation. That, of course, would not be sufficient reason for failing to do away with a form of currency which is undesirable from more points of view than one, but on the other hand the real facts in this matter should be clearly borne in mind.

What stock market there was yesterday was in part influenced by the sharp declines in the stocks of the National Railways of Mexico, which was brought about by a report officially denied before the day was over, that the railways had been placed in receivership in Mexico. No basis appeared for this report, and it seemed clear from the beginning that it could not in any way be related to the financial position of the railways inasmuch as a note issue to provide for the company's requirements was very recently placed with bankers here and abroad. Trading dropped to less than one-half of the total of three days ago and the market was pretty nearly lifeless. The net change in the general level of prices was again a decline, but the loss was slight.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Frisco Stock List.

Stock lists of corporations are proverbially unreliable as a guide to the real ownership of the corporation's shares. The stock list of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad published yesterday is a case in point. Therein the Central Trust Company appears as the largest holder of record. The fact, it appears, is that the Central Trust Company does not now own and never has owned any stock of the Frisco. For a time a large block of stock stood in its name in a transaction in which it acted for others and apparently it was never thought worth while by the real owners of the stock to transfer it to their names. It would have been different if the stock had been paying a dividend. The trust company never having owned the stock, of course, suffered no loss through its depreciation.

⁂

A Hundred Share Market.

Just 100 shares of National Railways of Mexico first preferred were sold yesterday, and on that one sale a loss of 7 points was recorded. The Stock Exchange heard that this 100-share lot was bought on an arbitrage transaction between this market and London and by a house which on another arbitrage transaction had been the seller of the last 100 shares sold on the Exchange here. It is not surprising in a market so narrow that it had been found difficult to borrow the stock to make delivery against the arbitrage sale of last week, which was offset by yesterday's purchase.

Year's Low Record in Dealings.

Fewer stocks changed hands in yesterday's session of the market than on any other full day of the year. Not only was the aggregate turnover more than 10,000 shares below the previous low record of 1913 established on May 16, but it was substantially smaller than any Saturday of the present month. Transactions yesterday amounted to 135,521 shares against 280,449 last Saturday, 241,385 on the preceding Saturday, and 188,618 shares on the Saturday before that. If a precedent set in the near past can be held of value the meager market of yesterday ought to foretell another marked contraction in dealings to-day, but the course of business has been sufficiently erratic lately to annul observance of precedents. The day after the last previous low record for business in the year was marked up only 83,212 shares were dealt in.

⁂

Brokers of Uncertain Mind.

Poor business yesterday, coupled with the extreme heat, left brokers in a spiritless state. A large number announced when they left the Street that they certainly would not be down to-day, and a great many more would have said the same thing if they could have been surer of the market. They feared that a sudden spurt of activity might develop, as was the case last Saturday, and they would miss it by staying away. A broker who does a fair amount of "two-dollar" business on the floor outlined the situation, in so far as he was affected, in this fashion: "I don't know what to do about Saturday. In spite of the dead trading today I made more money than I did last Friday. I made $6 against $4. I stayed away last Saturday, and when they razzle-dazzled Union I lost $25 by not being here. So there you are."

⁂

Fertilizer Dividend Passed.

Directors of the International Agricultural Corporation did not act on the preferred stock dividend for the half-year when they met yesterday. The passing of the semi-annual payment had been expected as the company announced over two months ago that profits for the year ended on June 30 would probably be less than dividend requirements. Stocks of the company have been selling for weeks on a basis which reflected small earnings. The last sale of the common was at 5 and the preferred at 35 on June 6.

⁂

Another Suspicious Story.

When it was finally proved late yesterday afternoon that a story published yesterday morning giving in detail the circumstances of the alleged failure of the National Railways of Mexico was false, it was suggested by a Director that another newspaper had been deceived by someone desirous of hurting a railroad's credit for his own profit. With the disclosures of the Union Pacific blackmailing attempt so freshly in mind it is not thought strange that some people connected the sudden drop in National Railways and the injury to its credit with the desires of the persons who started the rumor. A manipulator would be reasonably safe in acting on stories floated from Mexico City. Ordinarily, it takes twenty-four hours to get a reply by wire and cable from there, and urgent messages do not usually bring replies under twelve hours. There is so little activity in National Railways shares that a motive other than stock manipulative purposes would have to be found to justify the starting of such a malicious story.

⁂

Reading's Big Month.

The May earnings of the Reading Coal & Iron Company stand out sharply in contrast to the results achieved a year ago, when the effects of a strike were being felt. Gross receipts last month were $3,294,000, an increase of $2,538,000, while the net earnings were about $40,000, as against a deficit of $308,000 last year. The railway's gross revenues jumped from $3,224,000 to $4,369,000, while the surplus from all companies was $892,000 for the month, as against a deficit of $277,000 last year. In the first eleven months the company's surplus of $14,672,000 is almost exactly twice the surplus for the corresponding period of last year.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

More Cheerfulness in London—Paris Prices Steady—Berlin Weaker.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 28.—The Times in its City article to-day says:

"The demand for money continued in excess of the supply in the market, and the Bank of England did a large business in loans, besides taking a few short maturities. Discount rates were hardly altered, few bills being offered or asked for.

"The outstanding feature of the stock markets was the heavy fall, followed by a partial recovery, in National Railways of Mexico stocks. Elsewhere the tone of the markets was not unsatisfactory, consols and home railway stocks showing further advances. Business generally was very quiet, even after making allowance for the fact that it was pay day. As generally anticipated, the settlement passed off smoothly. The abovementioned weakness of the National Railways of Mexico stocks adversely affected the rest of the Amercan market, which closed dull. Otherwise where prices changed they generally showed small advances. At the close shipping stocks again showed strength."

PARIS, June 27.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 83 francs 97½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, June 27.—Prices were weaker on the Bourse to-day on declines in steel exports and unfavorable New York advices.

$750,000 FRISCO LOAN.

Receivers Authorized to Borrow This Sum for Road's Needs.

ST. PAUL, June 27.—Judge W. H. Sanborn said to-day that he would sign an order directing the receivers of the Frisco Railroad to pay salaries and other expenses of the road; the interest on the 4 per cent. refunding bonds and receivers' notes; interest on the underlying bonds; claims of shippers and similar obligations not exceeding $200,000, and "car trust certificates" as far as possible.

To make these payments possible the court authorized the receivers to borrow $750,000. This, with the $1,250,000 cash on hand, will enable the road to meet obligations due on July 1. The surplus net earnings, it is said, will provide enough to pay the temporary loan on Aug. 15.

B. L. Winchell, one of the receivers, and other representatives of the road attended the conference in Judge Sanborn's court to-day.

BASELESS MEXICO YARN.

Report of Railway Receivership Without Facts to Back It.

Something approaching consternation was caused in the offices of the National Railways of Mexico and in a number of prominent banking houses associated with the company yesterday by the publication in a morning paper of what purported to be a dispatch from Mexico City announcing the appointment of a receiver for the company. The Railways had only recently finished negotiations with Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Speyer & Co., and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., European bankers, for the sale of close to $27,000,000 of two-year 6 per cent. notes. The proceeds provided for the payment of $13,000,000 notes which matured June 1, and $10,000,000 notes, which fall due Nov. 15.

The newspaper dispatch named J. M. Galbraith, manager at Mexico City of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, as receiver, and said that the bankruptcy had been ordered by the Mexican High Court.

Vice President Bennett, in charge of the New York office, at once wired for a report, while the bankers tried to get in touch with their correspondents in Mexico City. In view of the fact that the year's maturities had been taken care of, the bankers would not admit that there could be any truth in the Mexican story.

While a number of inquirers were being told by Mr. Bennett last evening that he had not yet heard anything from headquarters, a message from President Brown was received. "There is nothing whatever in the rumor, and I cannot understand how it originated," it read.

Regarding the reported intention of President E. N. Brown to resign, Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. made this announcement:

"President Huerta of Mexico has just telegraphed the bankers of the National Railways of Mexico that Mr. Brown is now and will continue in the Presidency of the National Railways of Mexico.

"No information has been received by the bankers or at the local offices of the company tending in any way to verify the rumors printed this morning in regard to the National Railways of Mexico.

"The National Railways of Mexico states definitely that the financial requirements of the company for July 1 are fully in hand, and that the officers of the company here have received communications from Mexico this morning relative to company operations."

Prices of the National Railways' shares were badly affected by the story. The first preferred closed at 36, with a loss of 7 points for the day, and of 21 points on the last two sales, the previous transaction having occurred a week ago. The second preferred closed at 12, with a loss of two points.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—President Brown of the Mexican National Railways denied positively to-night that, following his resignation, the system had been put in the hands of a receiver. He said no application for a receivership had been made. No record of any such action was found in the courts.

Mr. Brown added that the Board of Directors of the National Railways had taken no action on his resignation.

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—The failure of the Directors of the National Railways of Mexico to accept the resignation of E. N. Brown, President, at their regular meeting to-day leaves the identity of the new head of the system undetermined. Mr. Brown has requested that he be relieved by the 1st of next month. The Directors, however, are anxious to retain Mr. Brown, and it is believed the Mexican Government will yet make possible his stay by promising less official interference with the operation of the railways.

Of this the total of American cotton is 2,060,011 bales, against 2,198,086 last week and 2,359,717 last year.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

While some of the leading stocks showed a rallying tendency in the closing dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, the market as a whole remained heavy. Such buying as showed appeared to reflect short covering operations. The opening at 9:30 o'clock had been firm, but later the tone turned heavy, with prices gradually working lower. Special weakness displayed by New York Central in the early dealings exerted an adverse influence elsewhere in the list.

Receiver for Trust Company.

NOWICH, Conn., June 27.—Charles F. Thayer, a former Mayor, was appointed permanent receiver of the Thames Loan & Trust Company to-day under a bond of $50,000. The company closed its doors on April 14, when the First National Bank was unable to meet its financial obligations.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat final prices were ¼ to ⅝c net higher. Corn was active and closed 1½ to 1⅝c net higher. Oats closing prices were net advances of 1⅛ to 1⅝c. Cotton final prices showed a net loss of 9 to 13 points on old crop positions, while the new crop was 1 to 5 points net lower.

⁂

WHEAT.

A report by the Kansas Bureau of Agriculture placing the condition of the wheat crop in that State at only 83 per cent. and giving the abandoned acreage at 22 per cent. caused an active buying movement in wheat which continued throughout the greater part of the day. On the figures given it was estimated that Kansas would raise not over 72,000,000 bushels, whereas popular estimates placed the prospective crop in that State at from 85 to 90 million. Prices closed at a net advance of ¼@⅝c. The Modern Miller said that harvesting is progressing under favorable conditions; the yield is generally up to expectations, and indications are that farmers will market their wheat freely in July and August if prices do not get too low. The foreign news was again against values as the foreign crops are apparently progressing favorably, and foreign buyers were generally out of the market. The weather was generally clear and warm over the entire Winter wheat belt, and conditions were favorable for harvesting operations. Broomhall estimated world's exports exclusive of North America at 6,400,000 bushels, which with Bradstreet's American figures makes the total world's shipments of 10,601,000, against shipments last week of 12,448,000, and 12,816,000 last year. In the local spot market, new No. 2 red Winter wheat, was quoted at 97½c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, export basis, July shipments; No. 1, Northern Spring, 102¼, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

Trading in the corn market was very active and prices were strong and higher, closing near the top at a net advance of 1½@1⅝c. The Kansas State Bureau of Agriculture issued a report of condition as the figures were later given as 85.6, and the Secretary was quoted as saying that the crop prospects were favorable. In the local market export corn was quoted at 70c nominal, free on board, afloat.

PROVISIONS.

Trading was again quiet in the provision market, but after holding steady early the market developed a slightly easier tone under increased selling pressure, closing at about the low point of the day. Receipts of hogs were very liberal and prices in the hog market were barely maintained. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 19,000; estimated for Saturday, 11,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 10,000.

COTTON.

The feature in the cotton market yesterday was the circulation of July notices. Probably the notices issued fell somewhat short of general expectations, being estimated at not over 20,000 bales out of the total certificated stock here of 42,000. They were not taken up quite as promptly as had been anticipated, and their progress through the Street was accompanied by considerable scattering liquidation, which included further selling by houses with Liverpool and Continental connections. July broke quite sharply under this pressure, selling off to 11.91, comparing with 12.22, the high point of the week, and 12.05 at the close on Thursday night. This dip carried the near month 3 points under August, and the old crop lost several points of its premium over new crop deliveries. Similar developments attended the circulation of the first May notices, notwithstanding which a large part of the local stock was shipped out during May and June.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 3 points, and the market sold off to a net loss of 5 to 13 points during the early afternoon. The near month break, combined with favorable crop and weather news, inspired scattered offerings of new crop months, which were fairly well absorbed, however, and closing prices showed slight rallies from the lowest, with the final tone steady at an advance of 1 to 13 points, old crop positions being 9 to 13 points net lower, with the new crop showing a net loss of only 1 to 5 points. A Chicago authority makes the condition of the crop 80.9, against 78.1 last month.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and 10 points lower at 12.30 for middling upland; sales, 100 bales; delivered on contract, 1,100 bales.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COTTONSEED OIL.

Further new high records were made in the cottonseed oil market. The spot situation is very firm, and, while yesterday was the first notice day for July, no oil was tendered, showing that holders were not disposed to part with their supplies. The new crop positions came in for a little more activity, as it seemed to be the opinion that new crop months were selling at too great a discount under the near positions.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COFFEE.

The volume of trading was small, sales aggregating 45,760 bags, but a steadier feeling prevailed, and the close was at a net gain of from 13 to 15 points. Brazil held firm and during the week there were said to have been sales of about 30,000 bags of cost and freight coffee on a basis of 11½ to 11.60c for Santos 4s, while prices there have ranged above a parity with New York spot quotations. The European markets rallied after opening slightly lower. Havre closed at a net decline of ¼f, while Hamburg was unchanged to ½ pfennig higher. Brazilian receipts were slightly smaller and prices in Brazil were unchanged to 50 reis lower.

Spot coffee unchanged; 9⅞c for Rio 7s. Contract prices follow:

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

$400,000 Loft Deal in West 27th Street—Interesting 39th Street Residence Sale—Bronx-Manhattan Trade Involves $250,000—Good Demand for Suburban Property—Business Leases.

An important transaction in the midtown loft zone, involving about $400,000, was reported yesterday by the Charles F. Noyes Company, who sold for the St. John's Park Realty Company, composed of William D. Kilpatrick and James H. Cruikshank, the new eight-story and basement fireproof building 337 to 347 West Twenty-seventh Street, covering a plot 197 by 100 feet.

The Colonial Real Estate Association, of which George F. Slade is Treasurer and Alfred R. Kirkus Secretary, is the buyer. Recently the entire building was leased to the American Tobacco Company for a long term of years, at $28,000 a year.

An East 39th Street Deal.

A transaction of somewhat more than usual interest occurred in the sale of 119 East Thirty-ninth Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 98.9, for the estate of Fannie B. Harper, through the firm of N. Brigham Hall & William D. Bloodgood. The same brokers a year ago sold this house, in conjunction with the immediately adjoining dwellings on the east and west, making a plot 57 by 98.9.

The purchase at that time was for the purpose of erecting an apartment house on the plot, but because of restrictions it was found impossible to erect the type of building desired, and passing of title was abandoned.

Since the previous sale two of the houses of the plot, 117 East Thirty-ninth Street and 115 East Thirty-ninth Street, have been sold to persons who will occupy the houses for private purposes. It would appear, therefore, that this particular block between Park and Lexington Avenues is safe from the invasion of apartment house building for some time.

Business Invades West 86th Street.

Daniel B. Freedman has leased through Slawson & Hobbs to Mme. Schneider, a dressmaker, the four-story and basement brownstone dwelling 108 West Eighty-sixth Street, occupying a lot 20 by 100. This is the first property ever leased for business purposes on the street west of the park.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Sterling & Sterling have sold for Mrs. Jessie B. Mattocks the three-story residence, size 20 by 100, at 117 West 122d Street, to Josiah B. Knapp, auditor in the Custom House.

Pease & Elliman sold for Samuel A. Herzog 238 West Eighty-eighth Street, a four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 21 by 100.8. The buyer, Edward J. Joyce, will occupy.

A $250,000 Bronx-Manhattan Trade.

Lowenfeld & Prager sold to Bernhard Kolb 918 to 926 Morris Avenue, in the Borough of the Bronx, three five-story tenements on a plot 125 by 88 feet, for a consideration of $185,000. In exchange the buyer gave the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 142d Street, a six-story apartment house on lot 40 by 100, valued at $100,000, and 949 Second Avenue, a four-story single flat with store on lot 20 by 70, valued at $15,000. Emanuel Simon negotiated the transaction.

W. A. Rigoulot has sold for George Potts 888 New York Avenue and 89 Troy Avenue to clients for occupancy.

The three-story and basement dwelling 115 St. Marks Place has been sold by John Edwards to Dr. James Schael for occupancy.

M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has placed for Charles J. and Gustav Benisch a first mortgage of $25,000 on their property at Jamaica and Railroad Avenues, Cypress Hills.

$40,000 Sale at Garden City.

Gage E. Tarbell has sold to J. J. Welch of New York one of the largest residences in the new section of Garden City, east of the Garden City Hotel, located on a plot 150 feet on Stewart Avenue by 250 feet on Clinch Place. The house and garage are built of hollow tile and stucco, with tile roof, after plans by Richard A. Walker, architect. The place was held at $40,000.

Mr. Tarbell has also sold a plot 150 by 250 feet, on the southwest corner of Stewart Avenue and Devereux Place, to Thomas L. Waters; also a plot 60 by 100 feet on the east side of Roxbury Road, between Salisbury Avenue and South Avenue, to the Talmage Construction Corporation for improvement.

Long Island.

The Rickert-Finlay Realty Company has sold to Leon Noel a plot fronting on the south side of Arleigh Road, 320 feet east of East Drive, Kensington, Great Neck, upon which the buyer is now erecting a Dutch Colonial house from plans by Aymar Embury 2d.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company sold at Rosedale to W. Price a plot 40 by 107, to K. Dalton a plot 40 by 118; to P. A. Dahlgreen a plot 40 by 95, Ocean Avenue. The same company sold at Floral Park to J. Pendre a plot 40 by 100, Geranium Avenue; to J. Reilly a plot 40 by 100, Iris Avenue; to W. Morris and M. Plumeau a five-room steam heated semi-bungalow, with all modern improvements, on the east side of Ashby Avenue, 400 feet north of Horan Avenue, for $2,950, and to John Sullivan a similar cottage on the west side of Brinkmeyer Avenue, 230 feet south of Alquin Avenue, for $2,300.

Sales at New Rochelle.

O'Connor & McCann have sold the George W. Mahlstedt house, at Beechmont Park, New Rochelle, to a client. The property was held at $45,000. The same brokers also sold the residence of Louise L. Palmer, at Woodland Avenue, Residence Park, New Rochelle, to the Misses Rea of New York City.

NURSE SLAYS FRIEND AND THEN HERSELF

Two Women Figure in a Strange Tragedy at the Montefiore Home.

LOCKS VICTIM IN HER ROOM

Cooling Friendship of Kathryn Lacey for Rosalie Roque Leads Roque Woman to Commit Murder.

Special to The New York Times.

BEDFORD HILLS, N. Y., June 27.—Kathryn O. Lacey and Rosalie L. Roque, nurses attached to the staff of the Montefiore Home, which stands on the highlands overlooking Bedford Hills, were found dead this morning behind the locked door of Miss Lacey's room in the wing of the hospital set aside as a nurses' dormitory.

The two women had been the closest of friends for many years, but all the mute testimony of the room where their bodies were found gave direct evidence that after a violent struggle between them Miss Roque shot her friend through the heart and then turned the weapon on herself. Although the hospital authorities found it difficult to settle on any motive, and although the theory that Miss Roque had murdered Miss Lacey was received incredulously in the latter's home town, Oswego, N. Y., Coroner Mason and the local police could see no other explanation.

The double tragedy was a shock to the little colony of sick folk and their attendants in the Montefiore Home, but there had not been lack of earlier signs that trouble was brewing. Several of the hospital attaches had seen that Kathryn Lacey was worried almost to the point of terror by Miss Roque. Only last night the wife of Dr. Leopold Rosenberg, the Superintendent, had warned him that "Roque" was a "bad girl," and had wound up her warning by saying:

"She is persecuting that poor Miss Lacey."

Miss Roque's Baleful Influence.

The appreciation of the fact that for some unexplained reason, Miss Roque was exercising a baleful and frightening influence over her friend was so keen, that Dr. Rosenberg simply was waiting for a chance to send the disturber about her business when the end came.

Dr. Rosenberg's greatest surprise came this afternoon when he telegraphed to Mrs. William Lacey of Oswego that her daughter had died. The response was addressed not to him but to Miss Roque, directing her to bring the body home. Then it became necessary for him to wire that Miss Roque, too, had died and to ask for directions concerning the disposition of her body, and the answer from Mrs. Lacey provided the puzzle for it began: "Do not know Miss Roque."

Now Miss Lacey and Miss Roque had presented themselves at the Montefiore Home as cousins.

When all the attendants of the hospital had been questioned later in the day, and when the letters and papers in the girls' rooms had been thoroughly examined, there developed the theory that from this old friendship and mutual devotion Miss Lacey, for one reason or another, had attempted to draw away; that this growing indifference and possible fear on her part had provoked the deepest bitterness in Miss Roque, who had heaped threats upon reproaches, and finally gone to her friend's room, revolver in hand.

Miss Lacey, a young woman of about 27 years, came to the hospital on March 1 from the Irwin Agency, at 77 West Eleventh Street, and within a week or so Miss Roque, a slim, dark little French Canadian, of about 24 years, had followed. She was disappointed in being unable to get work, and had stayed for several days at the village inn to be near her friend. Finally, on April 1, Miss Lacey was made head nurse of the male division during the daytime, and her old post as night nurse among the women patients was left vacant. Dr. Rosenberg offered this place to Miss Roque, who had beseiged him with applications for employment. It seemed that the two nurses had always worked together, and for fear he would lose the services of Miss Lacey, he was glad to make room for Miss Roque.

Found Miss Roque a Mystery.

The hospital authorities found the little Canadian woman a deal of mystery. They found her sullen and uncommunicative. They saw that she and Miss Lacey were never far apart in their leisure hours; that they asked nothing more than each other's company, but they saw, too, that Miss Lacey was afraid of something; that she was hectored, and that she was becoming pale and nervous.

The first hint of anything peculiar came last evening, at 7 o'clock, when Nurse Jacob reported to Dr. Rosenberg that Miss Roque had not relieved her. She agreed to stay on duty until 10 o'clock, when she was relieved by Nurse Goldberg. Puzzled over Miss Roque's continued absence, Dr. Rosenberg went to the dormitory and tapped on the door. It was locked and there was no answer. He tried Miss Lacey's door. It, too, was locked, and there was no answer. Wondering if his two nurses had slipped away together, he went to his own quarters, and it was then that his wife warned him that trouble was in store and used the word "persecution."

In the night hours Nurse Goldberg thought again and again of Miss Roque's disappearance, and as soon as she was relieved, at 7 o'clock, she took the pass key from her girdle and started straight for the dormitory. She opened Miss Lacey's door and stepped in. A moment later and she was running down the corridor, screaming the alarm. The cry of "Murder!" was taken up from ward to ward and soon all the patients in the hospital were lifting it in chorus.

Dr. Harris of the house staff was the first to reach the room. He found the two women lying dead on the floor. They lay in opposite directions, with their feet almost touching. Both bodies were cold and it was obvious that they had been dead for many hours, probably since early last evening, though not before 7 o'clock, at which hour the two women had been seen dining together side by side and apparently at peace with each other.

Miss Lacey had been shot through the back, the bullet piercing the heart and lungs. Miss Roque had been shot in the right temple. There was every evidence of a struggle. Two bullets had gone wild, one plunging through the plaster into the corridor, the other imbedding itself in the wall above the bed close to the ceiling. From the position of the bodies it seemed probable that Miss Roque had entered the room and locked the door behind her; that she had drawn a revolver from the folds of her white apron.

Miss Lacey, the taller and more powerfully built, apparently, made a vain effort to escape. Twice she must have struck up the hand that held the pistol. Her fight was to reach the door, for the key to it lay on the floor not three inches from her hand. It is probable that the two women had seized each other when the last two shots were fired, and quite possible that Miss Roque held her wounded friend upright for the brief moment that it took her to point the pistol at her own head. This would account for the puzzling position of the weapon, a shiny new automatic pistol. It was not found until the bodies were moved by the Coroner. It lay on the floor beneath Miss Lacey, the one who must have been shot first.

Cartridges in Miss Roque's Trunk.

Chief of Police Fee of Bedford Hills no sooner saw this than he went to Miss Roque's trunk in her room on the other side of the dormitory. There he found a box of fifty cartridges, from which eleven were missing.

How deep had been the friendship between these two women was not fully realized here until a search was made of their effects. This search brought to light, too, the suggestion that the friendship, however much it had once meant to both of them, had latterly meant far more to Rosalie Roque than it did to Miss Lacey. Her bureau had on it two photographs of herself and Miss Lacey standing together. Her trunk contained nearly a dozen pictures of Miss Lacey and no pictures of any one else. She had treasured many letters, which came thick and fast on the few occasions of their separation. They testified to an attachment of extraordinary warmth.

"No letter from you to-day," was a phrase in a letter written by Miss Lacey from Oswego nearly two years ago. "Of course, I had two yeterday and I ought not to be selfish, but I miss them and you so much."

A letter of recommendation, signed by Frank R. Barnard, Payroll Keeper of the King's Park State Hospital on Long Island, dated Sept. 7 last, set forth that the two women had been employed for two years in that institution and bore witness to their efficiency and trustworthiness.

The accumulated correspondence showed that at one time or another during the last year, both women had lived at 153 East 108th Street in New York. The examination of Miss Roque's room left this one impression that she was extravagantly fond of Kathryn Lacey and that the only things which she cared to bring with her to Bedford Hills were the letters and pictures, which were memorabilia of their friendship.

An object of interest in Miss Lacey's room was a "dream book" marked with Rosalie Roque's signature. It was "Aunt Sally's Policy Players' Dream Book and Wheel of Fortune.' It was a key, the hospital authorities felt, to the morose and rather murky manner of Rosalie Roque and suggested the grooves along which her strange and sullen thought ran.

Women Were at Odds.

The realization that Nurse Roque was "queer" was very general in Bedford. The knowledge that the two women were at odds was also general. Several times high voices, raised in altercation, had been heard in Miss Lacey's room and only yesterday afternoon the fireman had heard a quarrel there, but by dinner time it seemed to have been patched up.

Although Miss Lacey was frank with no one, she had dropped hints in the sympathetic ear of Lillian Levey, the clerk at the office, who served as stenographer at to-day's brief inquest. On one occasion Miss Levey had asked her why she never went to New York on her day off, particularly as Miss Roque had gone several times.

"I dare not, I dare not," was the answer given apprehensively, and with a little shudder.

"She seemed to be afraid of some one, and I guessed it was Nurse Roque," said Miss Levey to-day.

On another occasion Miss Lacey had said:

"Oh, I am tired to death of this scrapping life!"

Mrs. Lacey is expected here to-morrow morning to take her daughter's body from Katonah to Oswego. Dr. Rosenberg is telegraphing to all possible points in the effort to find some trace of relatives of Miss Roque. From Oswego word reached here that the Laceys think the women must both have been killed by a maniac. They laughed at the story of the women being cousins.

The scene of to-day's double tragedy is one of exceptional beauty. The low-lying wings of the Montefiore Home look out over a rolling and pleasant valley; the grounds are sumptuous, and at this time glorious with roses. The building is so large and the nurses' dormitory so isolated at night from the hospital activities that it was not hard to explain how the four shots were fired unheard. The Montefiore Home (Country Sanitarium) is reserved for cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, and generally for early and favorable cases. It has a capacity of 180 free beds, and the equipment is most modern.

FIGHT DIVORCE "MOVIES."

Five Thousand Picture Men to Debate Their Elimination.

Dissension will be the opening factor at the otherwise pleasant gathering in New York of 5,000 motion-picture exhibitors at the convention and exhibition which will be held at the Grand Central Palace in the week beginning July 7.

Many want every film that treats of divorce or the "eternal triangle" question thrown out entirely. Others insist that these films teach a lesson and are necessary.

The "realists" and the "idealists" are sending out literature and expending much mental and physical energy to have the result of the battle come their way.

"The newspaper is the 'Fourth Estate,'" says Frank A. Tichenor, Chairman of the Executive Committee, "but the 'movies' have become the 'Fifth Estate,' and the fact that the daily show attendance in the United States now averages 10,000,000 means that a message may be 'brought home' quicker than by any other means."

The question now is whether the problem of divorce, and especially the idea of exploiting the "woman in the case," shall be permitted to be shown on the "movie" screens.

Among those who will attend the convention and may speak on the subject are Gov. Sulzer, District Attorney Whitman, and Gov. Cox of Ohio.

CHINESE STUDENT DROWNS.

Son of the Secretary of President Yuan Shi Kai.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE HOPATCONG, N. J., June 27.—King Ng Liang, the fourteen-year-old son of Liang Shi Yi of Canton, Secretary to President Yuan Shi Kai of China, was drowned here while learning to swim early last evening in Lake Hopatcong, near the mouth of the River Styx. The boy was in this country to get an education. He was in the care of Charles M. Muchnic, foreign manager for the American Locomotive Company and a close, personal friend of the Chinese President's secretary. With his brother and sister, he had been in this country only a month.

The boy was learning to swim and he was able to take a few strokes and support himself in the water for a short distance. Yesterday he swam away from shore and soon was in water 16 feet deep. When he stopped paddling and let his feet drop, thinking he would touch a sandy bottom, he sank like a plummet. Seven minutes after the boy went down another boy dived for the body and brought it to the surface.

Mr. Muchnic cabled to-day to China asking instructions for the disposal of the body, which was sent to New York late in the afternoon.

The children were to have gone to school in New York in the Fall.

WRECK KILLS ONE, HURTS 19

Passenger and Work Trains Crash on Pennsylvania Road.

TOLEDO, June 27.—A man was killed, another injured fatally, and eighteen were hurt dangerously late to-day when a westbound Pennsylvania passenger train crashed head on into a work train at Woodville, Ohio. Most of those injured are Greek employes of the railroad. Eight Americans were hurt. The engines were wrecked and the engineers are in hospitals. Steve Ladas, a Greek, was the man killed.

The accident occurred 300 feet east of the Woodville station. The passenger train, thirty minutes late, was traveling at high speed. A sharp curve prevented the engineer from seeing the work train. The frail coach of the work train nearest the engine was almost demolished, but the coaches of the passenger train, which were protected by the baggage and mail cars ahead, were not damaged.

McANENY TO FIGHT VETO.

Refuses to Accept Mayor's Attitude on 34th Street Grade Matter.

Borough President McAneny is not disposed to accept the Mayor's veto of the project for the improvement of the grades at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue without a struggle. The Mayor's action was taken after Mr. McAneny had left town on Thursday. Asked yesterday over the long-distance telephone to Lake George what he had to say about the matter, Mr. McAneny said:

"Mayor Gaynor's veto of this measure seems to block the plan for the present. But I will bring this matter again to the attention of the Board of Estimate at its meeting next Thursday."

ALL SAY LITTMAN WAS A GOOD SOLDIER

Officers Find No Fault with the Record of Militiaman Who Charges Race Discrimination.

HOLD A NIGHT SESSION

Inquiry Ordered by Gov. Sulzer Lasts Until Nearly Midnight—Witnesses Disavow Race Prejudice.

Capt. S. Ralph Tiffany, commanding Company B of the Forty-seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y., was the last witness examined at the fourth session of the special inquiry ordered by Gov. Sulzer into the charges made by Samuel Littman, formerly a Sergeant in that organization, that regular promotion by election was denied him because of race discrimination.

The session closed shortly before midnight last night in the council chamber at the City Hall. Capt. Tiffany, who, according to the testimony of Mr. Littman at the first hearing, was reported to have said that Col. Henry C. Barthman had deferred calling the election for Second Lieutenant in Company B, when he learned that Mr. Littman, the candidate for the vacancy, was a Jew, asserted on the stand that he did not recall having made that statement.

Capt. Tiffany testified that Mr. Littman's record as a soldier had been exceedingly good. He recalled, he said, that Mr. Littman had spoken to him with reference to the vacancy among the Second Lieutenants. He was asked then by Mr. Simmons, counsel for Mr. Littman, if he remembered having told Mr. Littman at that time: "You are as good as anybody I know and you ought to be the candidate for that place."

"That is not my recollection," answered Capt. Tiffany. He recalled that Mr. Littman had spoken to him again about the vacancy at luncheon, when the Captain told Mr. Littman that he believed the latter had worked hard and deserved promotion.

"I knew that he had served me, and served the company well under me," said Capt. Tiffany, "and that he certainly had been too good a man for me to turn down."

"Do you recall meeting Mr. Littman afterward when you said you would be pleased to see him promoted to the place of Second Lieutenant, but that you feared the question of race would be an obstacle in his way?" asked Mr. Simmons.

"I think that the question of race as an obstacle to his promotion was mentioned only in connection with the company election."

Capt. Tiffany said that he had never asked Col. Barthman to call an election on behalf of Mr. Littman. He explained that he had merely presented the name of the Sergeant to the Colonel.

"In any conversation did Col. Barthman ever ask you if Mr. Littman was a Jew?" asked Mr. Simmons.

"I can't tell, because I don't know," the witness said.

When pressed to answer "yes" or "no" to that question, Capt. Tiffany said: "I have been as good a friend to Sergt. Littman as any man in the company. I have associated intimately with him, and have visited at his home. Anything I might say now against him will be said with reluctance."

Capt. Tiffany then explained that while he had formerly been in favor of the promotion of Mr. Littman, he was opposed to him now in view of the publicity with which he had preferred his charges. Capt. Tiffany said that the only time Mr. Littman's religious faith had been discussed was in the presence of Mr. Littman and himself by Col. Barthman.

He recalled that Col. Barthman at that time had said that Mr. Littman might find his situation in the council of officers unpleasant because of the fact that he was a Jew. Otherwise the subject was never discussed in the council of officers or by officers until after the charges had been brought by Mr. Littman, he asserted.

The hearing will be resumed this afternoon at 1 o'clock, when the Board of Inquiry hopes to finish the examination of witnesses and prepare its report for the Governor.

The morning session was marked by an effort on the part of Littman's counsel to show that he was the best man in his company for Second Lieutenant. A statement to that effect was obtained from Lieut. Charles H. Bohn of Company B, and Major Harry B. Baldwin asserted that he considered Littman would have made a good officer. Counsel for Col. Henry C. Barthman, who it was said at the inquiry was responsible for the alleged race discrimination in his regiment, obtained admissions from each of these witnesses that the question of race as a bar to promotion had never been discussed, to their knowledge, by the officers.

Lieut. Bohn said that he had known Mr. Littman for two years, and had found him an excellent soldier. He regarded the former Sergeant as the best man for the place of Second Lieutenant, and was one of a committee that went to the office of Col. Barthman to request an election in Mr. Littman's behalf. While there was no other candidate for the place, Lieut. Bohn testified that he could not say that Mr. Littman was the choice of the company. The committee, he said, did not see Col. Barthman, who asserted that the incident was closed.

Lieut. Bohn admitted that he had said it was a shame to deny a man promotion because of his religious or political belief. He said he had heard that Col. Barthman had objected to promoting Mr. Littman, but that he did not believe his Colonel was guilty of having made such a discrimination. Questioned by Col. Bacon, Lieut. Bohn said he believed that it was from Mr. Littman that he first heard of the alleged discrimination against him. Lieut. Bohn admitted that he had said that the promotion of Mr. Littman, should he force an election, would be made impossible by the nature of his examination paper.

Harry Pachtman of 281 Stanton Street, who was a member of Entertainment and Recruiting Committees of the regiment with Mr. Littman, said that the former Sergeant was a capable and efficient non-commissioned officer. He explained that he had been induced to sign the statement to the effect that he would not have voted for Mr. Littman in the event of an election because he thought he had to "get the Captain out of trouble."

Herbert E. Bush, formerly First Lieutenant of Company B, said he knew Mr. Littman as a capable soldier. Asked by Mr. Simmons to state his preference between Mr. Littman and Corporal Charles H. Rogers, Jr., who was an aspirant to the office of Second Lieutenant, former Lieut. Bush said he considered Corporal Rogers the best man for the place.

Major Harry B. Baldwin, who was a member of the examination board that issued the warrant for Mr. Littman's promotion to Sergeant, said that he had heard Col. Barthman speak of Mr. Littman's candidacy for Second Lieutenant of his company.

"At that time was anything said about Littman as a Jew?" asked Mr. Simmons.

"No, Sir, they merely discussed his record as a soldier."

"Then what objection was made?" inquired Mr. Simmons.

"Why, the Colonel and I were together," said Major Baldwin, "and he asked me if I had any objection to Sergt. Littman's promotion. I had no objection, and that was all there was to it."

Pressed more closely by Mr. Simmons to recall such statements as were made by Col. Barthman at that time, Major Baldwin replied:

"The only thing that was said was, 'No matter how you and I may feel about it there are others against him.'"

At the instance of Mr. Simmons, Major Baldwin recalled having made a statement to the effect that there was no use admitting Jews to the regiment if they were to be discriminated against.

"How did you happen to make that statement?" asked Col. Bacon.

"Well, while it was the general talk, I never heard the question of race discussed in the counsel of officers," he replied.

The final witness of the day session was Major Edward H. Snyder. He said he was not opposed to the admission to the council of officers of any man who was a gentleman and was morally, mentally, and physically capable. He had never heard the question of race introduced or discussed in the council of officers, he asserted.

STREET CAR HITS TRUCK.

Collision in Sixth Avenue Injures Two and Causes a Panic.

A score of passengers on a Sixth and Amsterdam Avenue trolley car made frantic efforts yesterday afternoon to escape when they saw that a collision with a five-ton truck was inevitable at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. The car was south bound, and as it approached Thirty-eighth Street the truck belonging to the McNab & Harlin Manufacturing Company of Paterson, N. J., with New York offices at 55 John Street, was crossing the tracks west bound.

Motorman Patrick McMullen of 169 Edgecombe Avenue, saw that the truck would clear the track if it kept on its course and did not check the car, which was traveling about six miles an hour. Archie Hoffman of 133 Vine Street, Paterson, driver of the truck, found his progress blocked suddenly by a steam roller engaged in street repairing at the corner, and was forced to halt. The rear of the truck was within a few inches of an elevated pillar when the crash came, and this held the ponderous vehicle firmly as the car was forced against it. Iron and wood were twisted and shattered as the car ground into the truck.

Sol Angelo, a tailor, of 34 West Forty-second Street, was in the first seat and was caught in the wreckage. He sustained a compound fracture of the right leg and lacerations. Rescuers tried to release him, and he bravely directed their efforts, although suffering great agony. Volunteers assisted in caring for Miss Amie Vendeweghe of Steuben Place, Rockaway, who had a fracture of the right forearm and lacerations of the thigh and scalp, and Mrs. Beryl Gerard of 122 West Eighty-third Street, who was suffering from shock.

Several other passengers suffered from shock. Traffic was blocked for almost an hour on both the uptown and downtown tracks of the Sixth Avenue trolley lines. No arrests were made.

FISK RAISES $300,000.

Julius Rosenwald Offers $25,000 Toward a New Fund.

The effort of the friends of Fisk University, at Nashville, Tenn., to raise a fund of $300,000 was successful, it was announced at the meeting of the Trustees, held in this city yesterday. This is the fund to which the General Education Board made a conditional gift of $60,000, and to which the late J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, Charles A. Hull, Arthur Curtice James, Mrs. D. Willis James, Mrs. Morris K. Jesup, Nathan H. Blanchard, Samuel Mather, and Charles H. Rutan were liberal subscribers. The alumni, students, and Faculty together pledged $45,000.

Two-thirds of this fund is for endowment, the interest upon which will take care of a large part of the annual deficiency under the present budget. It will be two years or more before it is all paid in and invested. Treasurer Simmons told the Trustees that there was need for an additional $150,000, to be used during the next twenty years to maintain and develop the university along present lines, a fund which might be called a "diminishing endowment," principal and interest to be expended in twenty equal annual payments. He said that Julius Rosenwald of Chicago had offered $25,000 upon this basis, on the ground that such a plan provided for each generation doing its fair share toward the support of this institution for the education of negroes.

WINGDALE SITE DOOMED.

State Likely to Spend More Money Looking for a Prison Spot.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 27.—Having spent nearly $500,000, the State may abandon the second prison site purchased at Wingdale, and hunt another spot for a penitentiary to take the place of Sing Sing. The New Prison Site Commission visited Wingdale yesterday, and Marcus T. Hun, the Chairman, said to-day that the portion which was the hillside site was not suited for a prison building. The Governor may ask the Legislature to appropriate more funds for a site. It is said that owners of land in Putnam County are anxious to sell it to the State.

Another site will call for an expenditure of $65,000 or $70,000, and will necessitate changing the prison plans. The original plans for the Bear Mountain site cost $100,000. When that tract was abandoned and another site was selected at Wingdale the alterations in the plans cost an additional $30,000. Just before Gov. Dix took office a contract for a prison building was awarded to the Carlin Construction Company of New York.

Gov. Dix ordered the work stopped and the contractors got about $200,000 for work which the State probably will abandon. If another site is selected the new prison will not be ready for use in two years.

CONVICT A FENCE WHO DEFIED POLICE

Zerillo Boasted He Could "Beat" Any Case They Brought Against Him.

RELATIVE TURNS ON HIM

Brother-in-Law Found After Long Search Tells of Theft from a Pier—Expect Zerillo to Confess.

Frank Zerillo, who Isidore Rader, the east side Fagin, told Judge Swann was his chief competitor in instigating thefts from trucks, piers, and railroad stations, was convicted yesterday afternoon before Judge Crain in General Sessions of receiving stolen goods. After Assistant District Attorney Bostwick had closed his case Zerillo's brother-in-law entered the court room and gave evidence which removed all doubt of Zerillo's guilt. The defendant was sentenced to from two to four years in Sing Sing.

Zerillo had boasted that he could "beat" any case which the police brought against him, and he made good this boast less than six months ago, when he was acquitted on a similar charge after a material witness had been induced to leave the State. He made a specialty, it was said, of stealing merchandise from piers and ferry slips. Rader, on the other hand, was the "boss" of the thieves who stole from trucks after they departed from the piers.

"If you convict Zerillo," Rader told the District Attorney, "he'll talk so loud that the whole town will hear him."

The District Attorney is now awaiting to hear what Zerillo has to offer, and he will be kept in the Tombs for several days to give him an opportunity to tell all he knows. It is thought that he can give evidence involving the police along the same lines as that obtained from Rader.

Zerillo had a stable at 90 Thompson Street, and he had a trucking contract for Reichenbach & Co. of 160 Fifth Avenue. On Jan. 22 a large consignment of laces arrived for this firm from France, and Zerillo was ordered to get seven cases of the goods from the French Line pier and to deliver them to one of the Pennsylvania Railroad's freight piers for shipment to a Chicago firm. When the goods were checked up it was found that three of the cases were missing. The cases were found in Zerillo's stables, where the addresses were scratched off. Zerillo was arrested, and the check clerk at the Pennsylvania pier confessed that Zerillo's driver had given him $100 to overlook the three cases which were stolen.

Assistant District Attorney Bostwick could not find Zerillo's driver, and without him the case was weak. All Thursday night and until 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. Bostwick, with detectives, searched houses in East Sixty-third Street for a man who knew this driver. Detectives finally found the man they wanted at noon yesterday. The State had closed its case, but Judge Crain reopened it when the new witness was produced at the afternoon session. This witness said he was Antonio Podesta, Zerillo's brother-in-law. He testified that he had been a driver for Zerillo, but that he had hauled no goods on Jan. 22. The driver who worked for Zerillo on that day, he said, was Enrico Zaneo, a man with a criminal record. When asked what he had done on Jan. 22 he said:

"Zaneo sent me to Zerillo's stable, in Thompson Street. He told me to ask Zerillo for $100 for the check clerk at the Pennsylvania pier. Zerillo refused to give it to me. He told me that Zaneo was to get the goods from the pier and that he would not give the $100 to any one but Zaneo. He told me to tell Zaneo to come to his place at once. I found Zaneo and told him what Zerillo said, and then Zaneo went to get the money."

Zerillo seemed greatly frightened when he returned to the Tombs after his conviction.

In summing up in the case Assistant District Attorney Bostwick gave credit for the arrest of Zerillo to Lieut. Charles H. McKinney, who was formerly head of the second division of the Detective Bureau. McKinney was one of the men who were transferred by Commissioner Waldo immediately after Rader's confession was made public. He was demoted from the rank of Acting Captain and assigned to desk duty in the Hamburg Avenue Station, in Brooklyn. Mr. Bostwick exonerated him from all connection with the Rader charges.

"Lieut. McKinney," he said, "is one of the most efficient men I have ever encountered. He and his men deserve great credit for arresting Zerillo. He needs no squaring. He is a square man."

FENCE ACCUSES SLEUTH.

Charges Private Detective with Investigating Hotel Thefts.

An effort on the part of Luigi Meighetti, who pleaded guilty last Tuesday to receiving silverware stolen from hotels in the city, to gain leniency from Judge Swann in General Sessions, caused a stir in court yesterday and produced trouble for a private detective of the Berry Detective Agency at Broadway and Thirty-third Street. Meighetti, when he appeared for sentence, was asked whether he had anything to say.

"I want to say," he shouted, pointing to Detective Arnold Herman, one of the spectators, "that that man got me into this. He told me to get the silverware, and said that he would pay me for all I got. I bought the silverware from waiters."

Judge Swann ordered the arrest of Herman, and an investigation followed in the District Attorney's office. An hour later Herman was discharged for want of evidence to sustain Meighetti's charges. He explained that he had adopted the methods complained of to gain Meighetti's confidence, but he denied that he was involved in the prisoner's transactions. He volunteered to aid the District Attorney in running down thieves who he said had stolen $5,000 worth of silverware from the hotels in the last few months.

Meighetti was sentenced to from a year and a half to three years in Sing Sing. Esmeraldo Bono, a waiter formerly employed in the Hotel Astor, pleaded guilty to stealing silverware from that house and was sentenced to a year in prison.

New Trial for Mrs. Fitzhugh.

Mrs. Catherine Randolph Fitzhugh, who pleaded guilty on her trial, after dropping her counsel, Abraham Levy, who advised her to do so, to the theft of a gold mesh bag worth $550 from Miss Dorothy Fiske, the daughter of Pliny Fiske, the banker, asked Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday to allow her to withdraw her plea of guilty in order that she might have a new trial. On the motion of Assistant District Attorney T. C. Press, Judge Swann consented, and set Mrs. Fitzhugh's bail at $2,000.

MAN DROWNED BY FISH.

Tries to Swim Paulinskill Carrying Forty Pounds of Them.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, N. J., June 27.—Harry C. Pitman, 18 years old, was drowned the Paulinskill with a catch of forty early this morning in trying to swim pounds of all kinds of fish strung about his neck. He went down in the whirlpool near the Stillwater Bridge, while friends who thought his cries for help were in fun laughed at him. They answered his second frantic cry, but too late.

Pitman went spearing fish last night with Edward Huff of Hardwick Township, by whom he was employed, and Lester Huff, brother of Edward. They had good luck, and at 2:30 o'clock this morning decided they had enough to "call it a night." Pitman suggested that they swim back and started first.
